Wholesale Price Boosts Giving Grocer A Headache

By PAT ANGLE

There wasn't much good news for local shoppers coming out of Fred Saccone's office in San Rafael yesterday as wholesalers scurried in and out for their weekly sales meetings with the vice president of United Markets.

Many sales representatives brought with them either lists of higher prices or rumors of future cost hikes for a wide variety of products, from spaghetti to dog food.

It was Saccone's first buying day since the federal government lifted its price controls last Wednesday and even he was a bit surprised by some of the rapidly-skyrocketing prices.

At one point he answered the phone to learn that eggs had just gone up another 7 cents per dozen, jacking the price up a total of 15 cents in less than a week. "My God," Saccone breathed.

"Aren't you embarrassed? Isn't your face red?" he asked another supplier who telephoned to announce that pork prices were up 20 to 30 cents a pound.

J. L. (Jack) Jackson, representative for Oscar Mayer and Co. presented a new price list showing that bacon, which cost $1.11 on the wholesale market two weeks ago was now selling for $1.37. "And I can't guarantee I won't pick up the phone and say it's up another dime tomorrow," he told the supermarket official. "As long as our costs continue to go up, so will our prices."

It was almost too much for the genial Saccone. Speaking angrily of the effects of Phases 1 through 3, he said, "If the government just wouldn't stick its nose in our business, if they had just left things alone and let the laws of supply and demand operate, we wouldn't have all this.

"Prices would have risen gradually and there wouldn't have been the problem. As it is now, people are panicking and that's not going to help a bit."

(He said the constant price changes now under way will raise food prices even further since it costs stores about 13 cents a minute to pay clerks for putting new prices on cans and boxes and removing ones obsolete.

The news was the same — gloomy — from many wholesaler's representatives. Brown and Serve sausages were up from 66 to 72 cents a pound wholesale. Allsweet margarine had risen by 2 cents a pound. Lunch meat, especially that made with pork was up; so were picnic hams, cranberry juice and packaged soups.

Most of the increases were in perishable products which have been sent to market since the freeze was lifted — meats, eggs and fresh vegetables. Purveyors of canned goods, frozen foods and paper products said they had not yet expereinced the effects of the lifting of controls, but nobody was willing to predict that his company would be unaffected.

"Dog food is going to go sky high because we've lost our fish protein source in Peru and are now using a chicken base," said Robert Stout of the Carnation Co. "Now the chicken producers are sitting there with a trump hand and they're going to make us pay through the nose."

(Stout said many chicken producers are now grinding up some of their chickens to feed the rest since that food source is cheaper than grain.)

"Gee, I wonder how many people are going to take their dogs down to the pound because they can't afford to feed them," Saccone mused. "Wouldn't that be a sad thing?"

Saccone and several other sales representatives had harsh words for the government's decision to sell wheat and grain to Russia and other countries, believing the sales were made at the expense of the American consumer.

"The entire economy has gone to hell because of this one wheat deal," said Walt Lowry of Whitman Foorman Co. Not only are oil and oil-based products up, but feed costs too are contributing to inflationary meat prices, many wholesalers believe.

Douglas De La Fontaine, a representative for Golden Grain, said the price of spaghetti had remained unchanged

Shoppers Voice Frustration, Ire

Like frustrated shoppers everywhere, Marin and Southern Sonoma residents are wondering where spiraling food costs will end and what the future holds for those already struggling to make ends meet.

Some residents, interviewed at random by telephone yesterday by the Independent-Journal, blame President Richard M. Nixon and the government for rising costs; others thought the supermarkets were helping to create higher prices to fatten their profits.

Yet most told the I-J they really don't understand what is happening. Many said they are frightened and dismayed that they must stand by helplessly as prices soar.

A few are buying large quantities of certain items — such as eggs and meat, trying for at least a temporary reprieve for their food dollars.

Others plan to eliminate certain expensive or non-nutritious products from their diets.

Mary Lou Geoffrion of 1359 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo (mother of four) — "I wouldn't stock up like the others have done because I think it's ridiculous. I wouldn't take the time to stock up. I think this whole thing is a bit exaggerated."

Florence Maloney of 199 Riviera Drive, San Rafael (shops for two) — "One has to be more careful about his buying these days, and limit the menu. There's only two in our family and we're not hurt as much as people with children. "I wonder what it's all about myself. I'm just as confused by this food situation as everyone else."

Ken McLean of 18 Forbes Avenue, San Anselmo (single) — "I work in a grocery store and I think it's getting out of hand. The way prices are going up, people aren't going to be able to buy food. There should be a freeze, or some sort of stabilization.

"In the store, it's unbelievable. Unreal. It has been the biggest week we've had. People are hoarding, buying like it's going out of style. And they're buying up every little item. Canned goods are going like hot cakes. But store owners have no choice in this. They have to raise prices to meet costs."

Polly Stevens, of 89 Via La Cumbre, Greenbrae (shops for two) — "It's ridiculous. I go to the food market and see some of the prices on the cans have been erased three times — you know those cans were already on the shelf; they didn't get them at thenew higher prices. I know it isn't legitimate; they're getting by with something. It really bugs me to see these prices when I know they're not warranted."

Edward J. Steers of 8 Redwood Avenue, Corte Madera (shops for two) — "Terrible. . . I paid 83 cents a dozen for eggs that were 69 cents the last time. I think it's entirely due to mismanagement by the administration, and the Russian wheat sale, because the people who have to raise beef cattle have to payhigher prices. I think the president has done all right as far as foreign policy is concerned, but he hasn't done anything for us here."

Fort Troops May Move To Hamilton

Pentagon Urged To Open Posts For Public Uses

The Department of Defense is considering a plan to shift Army operations and personnel from Forts Barry, Baker and Cronkhite to Hamilton Air Force Base; thus opening up the picturesque Marin Headlands for public recreation.

The plan was disclosed yesterday by Marin Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste as the board of supervisors discussed a proposal by the state Department of Aeronautics to make Hamilton a major civilian airport.

Baptiste said he got his information on the plan through the office of Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, told the Independent-Journal today that at least 750 of the 1,300 family housing units on and off the base will be used, but he knew nothing of the larger plan for freeing the forts.

Sen. Cranston today told the I-J he asked Secy. of Defense James Schlesinger on Friday to approve the plan to relocate the fort facilities to Hamilton.

According to Baptiste, the Army transfer plan also proposes moving some flight operations from Crissy Field at the Presidio of San Francisco to the Marin air base.

He said the three Marin Army posts, which have panoramic water views, are proposed to become part of the

Alpine Lake Hunt Planned For Auto

The California Highway Patrol at noon today was preparing to search a corner of Alpine Lake in the belief that a car may have plunged into the reservoir some time in the last several days.

"There's something down there," said Highway Patrol officer Henry Durbin, "but we don't know yet just what it is."

Yesterday Marin Municipal Water District employees noticed a small oil slick north of Alpine Dam. Today a pair of women's brown highheeled shoes were found floating in the water nearby. Bubbles, indicating a foreign object in the lake, were also discovered this morning.

An investigation this morning by district employees turned up what appeared to be tire tracks leading from a sharp curve in the road around the leek, down a steep embankment into the water.

Highway patrolmen and water district employees were attempting to obtain a diver to send down into the area where the tracks led.

The water at that end of the lake is approximately 20 feet deep.

A water district employee said several stolen cars have been abandoned into the lake in the past few years.

Ehrlichman Claims Dean 'Spun Tales' In Testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman testified today that John W. Dean III was "spinning tales" when he swore that executive clemency had been offered the seven original Watergate conspirators with President Nixon's approval. (See other stories, page 36.)

Ehrlichman, the balding Seattle lawyer who was one of Nixon's closest advisers until this spring, said he certainly had not sought such a promise from Nixon nor had he passed along assurances that clemency would be forthcoming —as Dean has testified.

Calm and self-assured in his second day before the Senate Watergate Committee, Ehrlichman said that to the contrary, Nixon had given strict orders as far back as last July that there should be no discussion of clemency for the men convicted in the June 17, 1972, raid on Democratic offices at the Watergate.

"The President wanted no one in the White House to get into this whole area of clemency with anyone involved in this case and surely not to give them any assurances," Ehrlichman said.

He said he suspected that Dean —fired as White House counsel on April 30, the same day that Ehrlichman resigned from Nixon's staff with the President's highest praise — was trying to cover his own tracks when he testified at the nationally televised Senate hearings about the clemency offers.

"I'm speculating, frankly speculating..." Ehrlichman said. "I don't know if that's what happened or not. But it certainly occurred to me as I watched John Dean spinning these tales."

He also said that neither he nor Nixon had expressly authorized the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist —but defended the burglary as necessary and proper to defend national security.

On another matter, Ehrlichman denied —as Dean has testified —that he had ordered the destruction of documents removed from the White House safe of E. Howard Hunt soon after Hunt's arrest in connection with the Watergate break-in.

Dean had testified that Ehrlichman instructed him to "deep six" the documents — throw them over the side of a bridge into the Potomac River.

"I would not have and did not propose the destruction of those documents," Ehrlichman said. He said he and Dean had agreed that the documents should be turned over to L. Patrick Gray III, then acting director of the FBI.

Ehrlichman denied having said the papers "should never see the light of day."

When he learned that Gray had destroyed the papers, Ehrlichman said, "I was just nonplussed. There was nothing in the conversation to tell him that he should destroy them."

In developments outside the hearing:

Congressional Republican leaders met with Nixon at the White House and said later that Nixon's refusal to voluntarily surrender tapes and documents subsequently subpoenaed by the committee and Special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox had not been discussed. Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania predicted, however, that Nixon would comply if the Supreme Court ruled he must yield the tapes. "I do not believe the President would defy the law," Scott said. He predicted, too, that the court would side with Nixon.

The latest Louis Harris public opinion poll, published today, found 60 per cent of the public believed Nixon wrong in refus-

Single-Way Toll Eyed To Richmond

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — One-way toll collection on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge has been proposed by the staff of the state Division of Bay Toll Crossings.

The proposal calls for collecting $1 tolls from westbound motorists, double the present toll of 50 cents each way for automobiles.

One-way toll collection was pioneered almost five years ago by the Golden Gate Bridge District, and its success has been followed by other toll facilities around the world. The system speeds traffic and cuts manpower expenses.

The proposal will be on the Sept. 5 agenda of the California Toll Bridge Authority when it meets in Sacramento. A spokesman for the state division said it was unknown when the system could be started if approved by the authority.

Hair Length No Longer An Issue For Athletes

The San Rafael Board of Education last night approved a policy ending hair length as a criterion for participation in school sports. (Another board of education story, page 43.)

The board, saying athletes may wear pony tails or headbands to control flowing locks, said the manner in which hair is worn, and not its length, will determine athlete eligibility.

Previously, a coach could ban a student from team sports if he felt hair length affected the student's performance in competition, according to Supt. Donald Leisey.

Athletes' hair must still be "neat and well-groomed at all times," but may be worn "in a manner consistent with good health and safety," according to the policy. The old policy said hair should be of a "length" consistent with health, safety and performance.

"The only concern a coach should have is with the health and safety of the student," said board member Paul K. McMullen. "We can assume our coaches are reasonable people."

The new policy, sparked when students at Terra Linda High School boycotted the track team due to hair "discrimination," comes up for adoption Aug. 6.

The board was unanimous in hoping this action wouldsettle the issue. "This is only a first reading," noted president Francis X. Kelly, "we'll hear this again. I hope for the last time..."

Gas Shortage Easing But Rationing Plans Proposed

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Gasoline stations across the nation are staying open a little longer and have relaxed quotas on sales slightly for the third week in a row, according to the American Automobile Association (AAA).

Inventories of gasoline and heating oil "are in pretty fair shape" and "gradually creeping up" due to a slowing of demand, according to Dr. James S. Cross of the National Petroleum Council.

But the AAA said there is still a shortage, and the petroleum council, an oil industry group which advises the interior secretary, urged the government yesterday to establish an emergency plan including fuel rationing in case foreign petroleum supplies are suddenly cut off.

The AAA's weekly report said 48 per cent of the stations surveyed in a national sample are operating normal hours without limiting sales, compared to 47 per cent the previous week—and 7.5 per cent are limiting sales, compared with 9 per cent the week before.

But Denver, Colo., was still the hardest hit area. The AAA said 97 to 98 per cent of the city's stations were closed during the weekend, and 66 per cent of them are closing by noon on weekdays.

The energy shortage, while it may be easing slightly, is the result of years of using fuel carelessly, according to Standard Oil of Indiana Chairman John E. Swearingen.

"We have been on a long binge, during which we have taken unlimited, low-cost energy for granted, and we have been consuming it at a rate which has no parallel in history," he told the National Press Club.

"It is now the morning after, and we have some medicine to take."

The petroleum council's report said, "On an emergency basis, petroleum fuel usage could possibly be reduced in the range of about 1.2 billion barrels per day to 1.6 barrels per day in 1974 and 1.4 million to 2 million barrels per day in 1978, with a combination of voluntary and mandatory fuel curtailment procedures.

"Rapid attainment of these reductions would depend on the ready availability of a standby gasoline rationing system that could be put into effect quickly."

Former Colorado Gov. John A. Love, President Nixon's energy advisor, met with the petroleum group and said his biggest problem is getting federal agencies together on a comprehensive energy use plan.

Love criticized the Federal Trade Commission, which has taken antitrust action against eight big oil companies, saying the commissioners "tend to throw it (the energy situation) off as some sort of plot."

Nixon, Shah Of Iran See Great Chance For Peace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and the Shah of Iran said last night there is greater chance for world peace now than at any time in history, but both stressed it must be a peace guaranteed by strength.

The two leaders made their comments at a state dinner that followed a day of discussions centering on a theme of peace through strength in the oil rich Persian Gulf area. Nixon and the Shah, both known to be concerned about growing Soviet influence in the Middle East, planned further talks today.

In the presence of Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, Nixon called the Middle East "a critical area of the world that is potentially the most explosive."

In toast remarks Nixon told the Shah that "your leadership is critical to any hopes that we can find a way to avoid any eruption that would break the peace."

"Perhaps the world has never had a greater opportunity for world peace," Nixon said. "This is a chance that all of us as world leaders must not allow to slip by. This has been the subject of our talks today."

The President said the Shah, who reportedly wants to purchase a dozen F14 supersonic jet fighter bombers for Iran's defense, "plays a very central role in terms of keeping that peace and building it."

Three Food Additives Found Safe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said today it has determined that three widely used food additives are safe for continued human use, but a fourth additive should be placed under new controls.

The announcement was the first positive result of a review the FDA began on Dec. 8, 1970, of all food additives generally recognized as safe. That review was ordered by President Nixon in his 1969 consumer message, partially in response to the controversy that rose after the artificial sweeteners cyclamates, previously on the safe list, were banned as possible cancer causers.

There are 533 ingredients now on the generally recognized as safe (GRAF) list. That category was created in 1958 when a law covering food additives exempted those which had been approved for use prior to enactment of the law or which had been "generally recognized as safe."

Today the FDA said its' review has determined three widely used food additives have passed the test and should continue to be recognized as safe. They are propyl or methyl parabens, widely used as preservatives; mannitol, used as a sweetener and thickener among other things; and sorbitol, used as a sweetener, stabilizer, lubricant and for other purposes.

In proposing these three additives on a new post-review GRAF list, the FDA also proposed that labels of food products of which a consumer might eat more than 20 grams of mannitol or 50 grams of sorbitol should warn the buyer that "excess consumption may have a laxative effect."

But the agency proposed a different treatment for a fourth additive—carob bean gum, also known as locust bean gum. The dried gum from the bean has been used for years as a stabilizer and a thickener for food and as a coating for the inside of food packages.

The FDA proposed that the packaging used continued to be listed as safe, but that the direct use in human food be the subject of a new food additive regulation. That action would essentially free the use of the gum in food at its current levels.

Phnom Penh Shelled— U.S. Planes Retaliate

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist gunners shelled Phnom Penh twice late today, inflicting casualties and damage despite U.S. air strikes less than five miles south of the city. U.S. gunships came in after the shelling to try to knock out the rebel positions.

The shells hit during rush hour traffic just after 5 p.m. (3 a.m. PDT), and initial reports said four persons were killed and another 37 wounded and a number of houses destroyed. A High Command spokesman said there were "about 30 casualties."

Some rockets landed only about 300 yards from the private residence of Cheng Heng, vice president of the High Political Council, and about half a mile from the residence of Prime Minister In Tam.

A major Communist offensive has pressed in on Phnom Penh for several weeks and several foreign embassies have ordered nonessential personnel to leave. President Lon Nol has ordered tighter defenses in and around Phnom Penh and the U.S. Air Force has intensified its strikes in the suburbs.

After today's shelling attacks American Spookie and Specter aircraft —prop-driven planes outfitted with rapid firing machineguns —were ordered to fly as close to the city as possible, without intruding on restricted air space.

Three hours after the shelling, crews were sent out to retrieve and disarm unexploded rounds which fell on the city.

American warplanes flew heavy strikes on all sides of the capital, trying to knock out rebel positions. Heavy concentrations of American air strikes were reported along Highways 2 and 3 to the south and Highway 5 to the north.

In Tam visited two separate sites on the capital's defense perimeter. He distributed relief supplies to refugees six miles north of the capital and then visited the southern defense perimeter at Prek Ho, nine miles south down Highway 2. American F4 fighter bombers flew strikes near Prek Ho while In Tam was in the vicinity.

Authoritative military sources said the provincial capital of Prey Veng, 30 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, was shelled last night with 20 rounds of 122 and 107 mm rockets and 75 mm recoiless rifle. Two persons were wounded.

Prisoner Trades Drag In Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI) — Cease-fire violations soared to the highest in more than a month today and Communist and government officials struggled to break a deadlock in prisoner exchanges, military spokesmen said.

In the 24 hours ending at noon today, the Saigon command said it counted 93 Communist truce violations, highest noon-to-noon total since June 17 when there were 111.

Command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said the chiefs of the two-party Joint Military Commission went into session late today to explore ways out of the prisoner exchange deadlock. They have three days to do so.

The joint communique signed in Paris June 13 gave both sides until July 28 to complete prisoner exchanges. The South Vietnamese government has returned more than 800 of the 5,081 prisoners it said it held and the Viet Cong has freed 228 of the 662 prisoners it held.

But the government halted release of civilian war prisoners at Loc Ninh yesterday, accusicng the Communist of trying to prevent some of the prisoners from defecting to the government.

"This is an action lacking in good will on the part of the Saigon administration," a Viet Cong official said, "and is aimed at dragging out the detention of civilian prisoners, to continue bringing pressure on them and wipe them out."

A total of 825 government-held prisoners and 28 Communist-held prisoners had been freed in the current exchange, which began Monday, when the releases were halted yesterday.

Bombing Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch has dismissed a suit by eight members of Congress that sought to halt the American bombing of Cambodia.

Casch ruled yesterday that the issues in the suit involved "political questions which are clearly beyond the proper limitation of judicial power."

The congressmen, all Democrats, were Herman Badillo, Benjamin Rosenthal, and Bella Abzug, all New York; Parren O. Mitchell, Maryland; Don Fraser, Minnesota; Bob Kastenmeier, Wisconsin; Don Edwards, California; and Michael Harrington, Massachusetts.

U.N. Membership

GENEVA (UPI) — The U.N. Trade and Development Conference said yesterday that North Korea has been officially accepted as a member, the second U.N. organization accepting it for membership.

A spokesman said the organization received an official application from North Korea.

Under the so-called "Vienna Formula," the spokesman said, a member state of any specialized U.N. agency is automatically eligible for membership in all other U.N. bodies.

Lee Funeral

HONG KONG (UPI) — More than 12,000 persons attended Buddhist funeral services today for American-born actor Bruce Lee, who became the star of films featuring the ancient Chinese fighting art of fung ku.

The 32-year-old Bruce, who also once starred in the "Green Hornet" television series, died last Friday in a Hong Kong hospital after he collapsed.

The cause of his death was listed as "pending" after six doctors conducted an autopsy.

More Aid Asked

BANGKOK (UPI) — Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn said today he has asked the United States to increase its military aid to Thailand after the Aug. 15 bombing halt in neighboring Cambodia.

Thanom said the request was made recently to U.S. charge Edward Masters, who is acting in the absence of U.S. Ambassador Leonard Unger, who is on leave.

Thanom told newsmen the situation in Cambodia would become "critical" when the United States halts the bombing there next month—"so we have to be prepared."

Troop Cut Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called today for a 50 per cent reduction of the 606,000 American troops stationed overseas, contending their presence was inconsistent with the growing U.S.-Soviet detente.

Mansfield, in testimony before the Senate arms control subcommittee, said the reduction "should be accomplished within a three-year period and in a carefully structured way which would not necessarily entail the same percentage reduction in each of the three years or in any one area of the world ...."

Election Pledge

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The government promised fair and free elections yesterday and said the long-banned Communist party is free to nominate a candidate for president. This would allow the Communists that right for the first time in 18 years.

Elections were scheduled in September after President Hector J. Campora, in office for less than two months, resigned to make way for ex-President Juan D. Peron.

Peron, who returned home from exile last month after 18 years, is favored to win by a landslide.

Commission Neutral About Redevelopment

The Marin County Human Rights Commission last night declined to take a stand on San Rafael's controversial redevelopment plan, saying the legal challenge by a colleague is a private matter.

The commission decided informally that it would not be appropriate to take a position on the matter since the board of supervisors has preempted any action, according to Douglas H. Bosco, director of the county's human relations department.

Bosco noted that the commission is an advisory agency to the board, and that the board has withdrawn its opposition to the city's $6 million urban renewal project.

"The commission would have felt uncomfortable taking any position at all," Bosco said.

At issue is the suit of human rights commissioner Joaquin P. Gallardo, virtually all that is blocking San Rafael's redevelopment program. Gallardo signed a suit challenging the plan months ago, along with the board of supervisors, the community college district board, and two college trustees.

While the others have agreed to drop their suits, Gallardo has remained solid in opposition, saying the redevelopment is oriented toward the business community "and not the people."

Among his concerns are the lack of provision for low and moderate income housing in the redevelopment plan, the lack of a relocation program for those forced to move because of redevelopment, and the lack of a youth center in the plan.

The city, saying many of Gallardo's concerns are confused and unfounded, has said that future plans include moderate income housing projects, relocation of residents will be minimal and that the plan includes a recreation center.

Deputy County Counsel Allen A. Haim also explained that although the county counsel's office had solicited Gallardo's participation in the suit months ago, it couldn't now represent a private citizen, Bosco said.

(Redevelopment attorney Steven Goldfarb told the Independent-Journal today that San Rafael will seek to quash Gallardo's suit at 9 a.m. Friday in Marin Superior Court. If the city is unsuccessful, it will ask that Gallardo post a $400,000 bond to cover the cost of any tax incremental revenue lost because of the suit and resulting delays, he said.)

In other business, the commission asked the San Rafael City Council to postpone consideration of an "anti-commune" ordinance until commissioners have a chance to review it.

The ordinance, already approved by the planning commission, would limit the number of unrelated people that can live in a single family residence to five.

Bedayan Jury Waits As High Court Rules

The jury in the Brent W. Bedayan murder trial was assembled today and then sent home until Tuesday to give the state supreme court time to rule on a pretrial maneuver.

In a three-minute session in the court of Judge Henry J. Broderick, the judge said the trial either will begin Tuesday or the jury will be dismissed. Broderick said he didn't want to do that because more than two days has been invested in jury selection.

Pending before the supreme court is a decision by Broderick to combine the guilt-or-innocence phase of the trial with the sanity phase.

The merger was proposed by deputy Public Defender Frank J. Cox because he is not denying that Bedayan killed Melvin J., Ruth E. and Daniel Schallock March 16.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales has opposed the merger because, he said, it will confuse the jury to have to separate testimony on whether Bedayan did the killings from evidence on his mental state at the time.

False Alarm Rate Is Extremely High

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard says it answered a record 131,000 burglar alarms in 1971 and 99 per cent of them were false alarms.

Children's Center At College Is Uncertain

The future of the campus children's center at College of Marin for the coming school year is very uncertain, the Marin County Board of Education learned last night, even though the college district, students and the board itself have budgeted nearly $20,000 for its operation.

No federal funds for the college nursery are forthcoming, board members were told.

Asst. Supt. Robert E. Spain said the children's center will cost $37,550 to run. In the projected budget, $15,402 in federal funds and $2,250 from state food services are included. This money, as far as county schools office staff can determine, isn't available.

Spain said the Marin Community College District has budgeted $1,634 from the College of Marin's adult program funds, and $8,130 from the community services department. Associated Students have promised $5,000, and parent fees should bring in $800.

The county board itself has budgeted a contribution of $4,334.

Spain said the board took no action on the report, since local agencies wouldn't be permitted to run the campus center without state authority, which in turn hinges on federal funding.

A report on the campus center's first year of operation by Joseph H. Denhart, director, said it had an average enrollment of 34 children, from 2 to 5 years old. Most of them were from single parent families, with their mother or father attending College of Marin full-time and on public assistance.

Denhart said the main values of the center were social and self-concept development and increased health and better nutrition for the children. Parents weren't able to help as much as had been expected, he said, because "the majority had to direct their full energies toward their studies and personal family responsibilities."

The Marin County Board of Education Also:

PERSONNEL — Hired Thomas M. Lalor as a teacher for the new hearing handicapped school at Adaline E. Kent School in Kentfield at $12,421 a year; Marilyn Mann as a hearing impaired teacher at Gallinas Annex at $9,983 a year; and Martha Burgheimer hearing handicapped teacher at $12,273 a year.

ATTENDANCE — Denied an appeal by Mr. and Mrs. Otis Gaines of 999 Drake Avenue, Marin City, against the Sausalito School District's refusal to allow their daughter to attend school in the Mill Valley School District.

BUDGET — Learned that two state-funded additions will be made before the 1973-74 budget comes up for its public hearing at the county schools office on Aug. 2 at 8 p.m.; another class is needed for the hearing handicapped program, and an extra autistic class at Magnolia Park School.

ing to release the tapes and documents and 30 per cent supported him. The poll also found 51 per cent of 1,485 households canvassed believed Nixon "more wrong than right" in refusing to testify before the committee, 37 per cent considered him "more right than wrong," and the rest were undecided. The poll found 59 per cent of those questioned believed Nixon knew about the Watergate cover-up.

In reference to the executive clemency issue, Dean —in his testimony to the committee just a month ago — said then-presidential adviser Charles W. Colson had come to him and Ehrlichman on Jan. 3, "extremely shaken" about his old friend Hunt, who was about to go to trial for his part in Watergate.

According to Dean, Ehrlichman said he would have to check with the President and the next day returned and said "he had given Colson an affirmative reading regarding clemency for Hunt." Further, Dean said, Ehrlichman assured him the promise "applied to all" the other six Watergate defendants as well.

Ehrlichman denied Dean's story. He also denied what he called "the out-of-town tryout" that preceded it —published reports prior to Dean's sworn testimony that Ehrlichman had left the Jan. 3 meeting, gone into Nixon's Oval Office and had come back with the clemency pledge.

Ehrlichman said, in fact, the meeting had centered on whether Colson should even meet with Hunt's attorney, William O. Bittman, and that Colson had been cautioned not to mention clemency at all.

"Then you didn't take this up with President Nixon at any time?" asked Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla.

"I didn't have to," Ehrlichman replied. "I knew what the marching orders were since July; that this was a closed subject and that we couldn't get near it."

"Then your testimony is that John Dean told an untruth?" Gurney asked.

"Yes, sir," Ehrlichman said. "Twice. Once in the out-of-town tryout and once here."

He said Dean may have dreamed up the story to cover for himself —since there has been extensive testimony that at Dean's direction, a clemency offer was relayed during the Watergate trial to conspirator James W. McCord Jr.

Ehrlichman was questioned extensively on the 1971 Ellsberg break-in, which was conducted by a squad of White House secret agents under his direction known as "The Plumbers." He admitted initialing a memo approving a "covert operation" to obtain Ellsberg's medical files, but said he never intended that a burglary be involved. —

Man Is Found Dead In Yard

The body of Sven Erik Olson, 63, of 852 Cypress Street, Novato, was found hanging from a tree in his back yard at 8 a.m. today.

He was found by his son, Karl Erik Olson, Novato police reported.

He had last been seen at 6 a.m. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Deputy Coroner Bill Thomas. Olson was suffering from terminal throat and lung cancer, police reported.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Redwood Chapel Funeral Home, Novato.

FOOD

for the past 10 years. There has already been a price hike in pasta earlier this year and another is on the way, he predicted. "The price of our wheat has doubled," he told Saccone.

There are no real shortages now, but Saccone predicted that beef will become more and more scarce since its price will remain frozen until mid-September and it may be the biggest meat bargain around for awhile.

"Our beef suppliers are losing $20 a head now and they tell me that unless there is a drastic change in the next week or two, a lot more processing plants will close down. You can only keep losing money for so long."

"This is a typical Tuesday; I'm starting to get a headache," Saccone said as the stream of bad news continued.

The July 23 United Grocers Limited bulletin in Richmond showed that the price of some canned meats and fish were already up. For example, a case of kipper snacks now costs United Markets 96 cents more than last time and canned corned beef is up $2.45 a case.

The only foods which the government considers plentiful this week, according to the bulletin are dry beans, rolled oats, corn meal and grits. "Wouldn't that make a great meal," Saccone joked.

(The only happy tidings to come out of the buying session were for those who like wild rice. That grain may be reduced in price in September, according to Milano Rispoli of Associated Wild Rice Producers Inc. He said producers are now planting the rice instead of harvesting the wild variety and have already brought prices down from $6.00 to $2.50 a pound in four years. The price may dip even lower, he said, since wild rice production continues to increase.)

Despite the continued inflation, the supermarket vice president urged consumers not to panic and hoard foods, believing that costs will level off once producers can "catch up" with the money they lost during the freeze.

He also said that the American people may be able to take some comfort in the fact that less of their spendable income goes for food than in almost any other country.

"We are really spoiled. The last figures I saw indicated we spend 15 per cent of our wages (after taxes) for food, while people in other countries spend much, much more, up to 50 or 75 per cent."

"We had a friend visiting from Japan this week and she told us that a roll of American toilet paper cost $1 there, a small rib steak is $6 and you can spend $32 for lunch at a restaurant without even trying," he said.

"You know, we Americans don't appreciate what we have in this country despite our problems," Saccone said. "If we traveled more and saw what other people have to spend for food, we might see things a bit differently."

Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

"This does well for the national recreation area and for Hamilton," Baptiste said, receiving unanimous endorsement of the proposal from his colleagues.

He said many of the problems created by the Air Force pullout of Hamilton — such as vacant housing — may be solved.

Amy Meyer, co-chairman of People for a Golden Gate National Recreation Area, later told newsmen she expects a decision from Washington within the next few days.

Ben R. Ostlind, longtime supporter of commercial aviation at Hamilton, likewise predicted a Department of Defense decision shortly. He said he was not concerned with the Army shift to Hamilton, provided the Air Force remains landlord of the base.

Flight operations from Crissy Field"amount to peanuts" and are mostly light aircraft and helicopters, he said.

The three Army posts in Marin are used mainly for housing of military families from the Presidio and for training reservists. Many of the buildings are substandard and are receiving minimum maintenance from the Army, according to Mrs. Meyer.

Civilians using the Cronkhite beach area "frequently find soldiers maneuvering around them," she said. "We would like people to have free access to recreation in the three forts."

She said that her group has been working to get the transfer plan approved by the defense department for some time.

Congressional legislation approving the national recreation area notes the Army will eventually abandon the three posts, she said. "This will just make it faster."

In a related action, the board of supervisors requested officials of the state Department of Aeronautics to give a presentation on their report, which recommends Hamilton become a civilian airport. No date was set for the presentation.

Baptiste said the department also plans to hold a Bay Area hearing on the document within the next three months and said he will ask that the hearing be held in Marin.

Greenbrae Man Dies In Span Plunge

A Greenbrae resident jumped to hisdeath yesterday afternoon from the Golden Gate Bridge.

Byron J. Wiederkehr, 58, of 45 Via Navarro, parked his car near the south tower of the bridge and jumped from the span at 12:28 p.m. according to the California Highway Patrol. His body was recovered by an unidentified fishing boat and was taken to the Coast Guard station in San Francisco.

Wiederkehr was an executive with Fireman's Fund American Insurance for 25 years and was a Marin resident for nine years in Greenbrae.

A native ot Massachusetts he spent his early years in the northeast and was a chemical engineering graduate from Northeastern University. He served in the Navy during World War II as an officer.

Wiederkehr was transferred to Marin with the insurance company from Newark, N.J.

He is survived by his wife, Rosemargaret of Greenbrae; a daughter, Sandra Donnelly of Van Nuys; two sons, Neil Wiederkehr of Fanwood, N.J., and William Wiederkehr of Cotati, and a sister, Ann McLaughlin of Boston.

Memorial services for Wiederkehr will be held Friday at 3:30 p.m. in Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. His remains will be cremated and his ashes will be scattered at sea by his stepson, William G. Bishell. The family prefers memorial contributions to the American Cancer Society.

Prisoner Applies For Appointment

BOSTON (UPI) — James Pina, 37, who is serving a 15-to 25-year sentence at Walpole State Prison, has applied for appointment as Massachusetts corrections commissioner.

Pina wrote Gov. Francis W. Sargent seeking the appointment and was asked to submit a full resume "in order that your candidacy receive full consideration," a spokesman for the governor said.

The spokesman added, however, Pina is not among the 25 persons being "seriously" considered to replace former Commissioner John O. Boone.

Marinwood led the way with an even 100 degrees, followed by Terra Linda with 97. Other Marin and southern Sonoma towns were in the mid-90s, and even usually cool Sausalito recorded 90 degrees.

The San Francisco Bay Area forecast center predicts similar temperatures through tomorrow, with patches of morning fog near the coast. Low temperatures will be in the 50s.

Mercury readings from other Marin and southern Sonoma towns yesterday were Novato 94, Woodacre 92, San Anselmo 94, Fairfax 95, and Petaluma 92.

Children's Center At College Is Uncertain

The future of the campus children's center at College of Marin for the coming school year is very uncertain, the Marin County Board of Education learned last night, even though the college district, students and the board itself have budgeted nearly $20,000 for its operation.

No federal funds for the college nursery are forthcoming, board members were told.

Asst. Supt. Robert E. Spain said the children's center will cost $37,550 to run. In the projected budget, $15,402 in federal funds and $2,250 from state food services are included. This money, as far as county schools office staff can determine, isn't available.

Spain said the Marin Community College District has budgeted $1,634 from the College of Marin's adult program funds, and $8,130 from the community services department. Associated Students have promised $5,000, and parent fees should bring in $800.

The county board itself has budgeted a contribution of $4,334.

Spain said the board took no action on the report, since local agencies wouldn't be permitted to run the campus center without state authority, which in turn hinges on federal funding.

A report on the campus center's first year of operation by Joseph H. Denhart, director, said it had an average enrollment of 34 children, from 2 to 5 years old. Most of them were from single parent families, with their mother or father attending College of Marin full-time and on public assistance.

Denhart said the main values of the center were social and self-concept development and increased health and better nutrition for the children. Parents weren't able to help as much as had been expected, he said, because "the majority had to direct their full energies toward their studies and personal family responsibilities."

The Marin County Board of Education Also:

PERSONNEL — Hired Thomas M. Lalor as a teacher for the new hearing handicapped school at Adaline E. Kent School in Kentfield at $12,421 a year; Marilyn Mann as a hearing impaired teacher at Gallinas Annex at $9,983 a year; and Martha Burgheimer hearing handicapped teacher at $12,273 a year.

ATTENDANCE — Denied an appeal by Mr. and Mrs. Otis Gaines of 999 Drake Avenue, Marin City, against the Sausalito School District's refusal to allow their daughter to attend school in the Mill Valley School District.

BUDGET — Learned that two state-funded additions will be made before the 1973-74 budget comes up for its public hearing at the county schools office on Aug. 2 at 8 p.m.; another class is needed for the hearing handicapped program, and an extra autistic class at Magnolia Park School.

ing to release the tapes and documents and 30 per cent supported him. The poll also found 51 per cent of 1,485 households canvassed believed Nixon "more wrong than right" in refusing to testify before the committee, 37 per cent considered him "more right than wrong," and the rest were undecided. The poll found 59 per cent of those questioned believed Nixon knew about the Watergate cover-up.

In reference to the executive clemency issue, Dean —in his testimony to the committee just a month ago — said then-presidential adviser Charles W. Colson had come to him and Ehrlichman on Jan. 3, "extremely shaken" about his old friend Hunt, who was about to go to trial for his part in Watergate.

According to Dean, Ehrlichman said he would have to check with the President and the next day returned and said "he had given Colson an affirmative reading regarding clemency for Hunt." Further, Dean said, Ehrlichman assured him the promise "applied to all" the other six Watergate defendants as well.

Ehrlichman denied Dean's story. He also denied what he called "the out-of-town tryout" that preceded it —published reports prior to Dean's sworn testimony that Ehrlichman had left the Jan. 3 meeting, gone into Nixon's Oval Office and had come back with the clemency pledge.

Ehrlichman said, in fact, the meeting had centered on whether Colson should even meet with Hunt's attorney, William O. Bittman, and that Colson had been cautioned not to mention clemency at all.

"Then you didn't take this up with President Nixon at any time?" asked Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla.

"I didn't have to," Ehrlichman replied. "I knew what the marching orders were since July; that this was a closed subject and that we couldn't get near it."

"Then your testimony is that John Dean told an untruth?" Gurney asked.

"Yes, sir," Ehrlichman said. "Twice. Once in the out-of-town tryout and once here."

He said Dean may have dreamed up the story to cover for himself —since there has been extensive testimony that at Dean's direction, a clemency offer was relayed during the Watergate trial to conspirator James W. McCord Jr.

Ehrlichman was questioned extensively on the 1971 Ellsberg break-in, which was conducted by a squad of White House secret agents under his direction known as "The Plumbers." He admitted initialing a memo approving a "covert operation" to obtain Ellsberg's medical files, but said he never intended that a burglary be involved. — for the past 10 years. There has already been a price hike in pasta earlier this year and another is on the way, he predicted. "The price of our wheat has doubled," he told Saccone.

There are no real shortages now, but Saccone predicted that beef will become more and more scarce since its price will remain frozen until mid-September and it may be the biggest meat bargain around for awhile.

"Our beef suppliers are losing $20 a head now and they tell me that unless there is a drastic change in the next week or two, a lot more processing plants will close down. You can only keep losing money for so long."

"This is a typical Tuesday; I'm starting to get a headache," Saccone said as the stream of bad news continued.

The July 23 United Grocers Limited bulletin in Richmond showed that the price of some canned meats and fish were already up. For example, a case of kipper snacks now costs United Markets 96 cents more than last time and canned corned beef is up $2.45 a case.

The only foods which the government considers plentiful this week, according to the bulletin are dry beans, rolled oats, corn meal and grits. "Wouldn't that make a great meal," Saccone joked.

(The only happy tidings to come out of the buying session were for those who like wild rice. That grain may be reduced in price in September, according to Milano Rispoli of Associated Wild Rice Producers Inc. He said producers are now planting the rice instead of harvesting the wild variety and have already brought prices down from $6.00 to $2.50 a pound in four years. The price may dip even lower, he said, since wild rice production continues to increase.)

Despite the continued inflation, the supermarket vice president urged consumers not to panic and hoard foods, believing that costs will level off once producers can "catch up" with the money they lost during the freeze.

He also said that the American people may be able to take some comfort in the fact that less of their spendable income goes for food than in almost any other country.

"We are really spoiled. The last figures I saw indicated we spend 15 per cent of our wages (after taxes) for food, while people in other countries spend much, much more, up to 50 or 75 per cent."

"We had a friend visiting from Japan this week and she told us that a roll of American toilet paper cost $1 there, a small rib steak is $6 and you can spend $32 for lunch at a restaurant without even trying," he said.

"You know, we Americans don't appreciate what we have in this country despite our problems," Saccone said. "If we traveled more and saw what other people have to spend for food, we might see things a bit differently."

Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

"This does well for the national recreation area and for Hamilton," Baptiste said, receiving unanimous endorsement of the proposal from his colleagues.

He said many of the problems created by the Air Force pullout of Hamilton — such as vacant housing — may be solved.

Amy Meyer, co-chairman of People for a Golden Gate National Recreation Area, later told newsmen she expects a decision from Washington within the next few days.

Ben R. Ostlind, longtime supporter of commercial aviation at Hamilton, likewise predicted a Department of Defense decision shortly. He said he was not concerned with the Army shift to Hamilton, provided the Air Force remains landlord of the base.

Flight operations from Crissy Field "amount to peanuts" and are mostly light aircraft and helicopters, he said.

The three Army posts in Marin are used mainly for housing of military families from the Presidio and for training reservists. Many of the buildings are substandard and are receiving minimum maintenance from the Army, according to Mrs. Meyer.

Civilians using the Cronkhite beach area "frequently find soldiers maneuvering around them," she said. "We would like people to have free access to recreation in the three forts."

She said that her group has been working to get the transfer plan approved by the defense department for some time.

Congressional legislation approving the national recreation area notes the Army will eventually abandon the three posts, she said. "This will just make it faster."

In a related action, the board of supervisors requested officials of the state Department of Aeronautics to give a presentation on their report, which recommends Hamilton become a civilian airport. No date was set for the presentation.

Baptiste said the department also plans to hold a Bay Area hearing on the document within the next three months and said he will ask that the hearing be held in Marin.

Greenbrae Man Dies In Span Plunge

A Greenbrae resident jumped to hisdeath yesterday afternoon from the Golden Gate Bridge.

Byron J. Wiederkehr, 58, of 45 Via Navarro, parked his car near the south tower of the bridge and jumped from the span at 12:28 p.m. according to the California Highway Patrol. His body was recovered by an unidentified fishing boat and was taken to the Coast Guard station in San Francisco.

Wiederkehr was an executive with Fireman's Fund American Insurance for 25 years and was a Marin resident for nine years in Greenbrae.

A native of Massachusetts he spent his early years in the northeast and was a chemical engineering graduate from Northeastern University. He served in the Navy during World War II as an officer.

Wiederkehr was transferred to Marin with the insurance company from Newark, N.J.

He is survived by his wife, Rosemargaret of Greenbrae; a daughter, Sandra Donnelly of Van Nuys; two sons, Neil Wiederkehr of Fanwood, N.J., and William Wiederkehr of Cotati, and a sister, Ann McLaughlin of Boston.

Memorial services for Wiederkehr will be held Friday at 3:30 p.m. in Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. His remains will be cremated and his ashes will be scattered at sea by his stepson, William G. Bishell. The family prefers memorial contributions to the American Cancer Society.

Prisoner Applies For Appointment

BOSTON (UPI) — James Pina, 37, who is serving a 15-to 25-year sentence at Walpole State Prison, has applied for appointment as Massachusetts corrections commissioner.

Pina wrote Gov. Francis W. Sargent seeking the appointment and was asked to submit a full resume "in order that your candidacy receive full consideration," a spokesman for the governor said.

The spokesman added, however, Pina is not among the 25 persons being "seriously" considered to replace former Commissioner John O. Boone.

Marin Due Hot Spell

Following a period of moderate temperatures, Marin today appeared to be headed for another hot spell, as temperatures jumped above 90 throughout the county.

Marinwood led the way with an even 100 degrees, followed by Terra Linda with 97. Other Marin and southern Sonoma towns were in the mid-90s, and even usually cool Sausalito recorded 90 degrees.

The San Francisco Bay Area forecast center predicts similar temperatures through tomorrow, with patches of morning fog near the coast. Low temperatures will be in the 50s.

Mercury readings from other Marin and southern Sonoma towns yesterday were Novato 94, Woodacre 92, San Anselmo 94, Fairfax 95, and Petaluma 92.

Neighbors Object But Church School Wins

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night was accused of nibbling away at existing residential zoning restrictions within the city.

Several residents spoke against an amendment to a use permit for a Christian educational child care center in the Assembly of God Church at 1675 Grand Avenue.

Carol Sandler, who identified herself only as a resident of San Rafael, said existing restrictions in the residential zoning are being nibbled away.

Several other speakers objected to the use of the church saying it was a day care center and not a school as claimed by the Rev. R. J. Sequeira who requested the use permit amendment.

Herbert S. Hotchner, city planning director, told planners that he viewed the request as falling within the definition of a school which is allowed under residential R-1 zoning.

Mary O'Callaghan, 3 Grand Court, disagreed with Hotchner and said the use would constitute a day care facility needing state licensing.

Barbara Costello, 1610 Grand Avenue, said if the church program is for children from preschool ages through kindergarten then it cannot be a school in the usual definition.

Commissioner Jorgen V. Lunding said the use would not be an erosion of residential restrictions because it is a school and is a permitted use under R-1 zoning. His commission colleagues agreed by a 6-0 vote, with Commissioner Albert J. Boro absent.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

ELECTION — Postponed election of a chairman until its next meeting when a full commission might be present.

MAP — Reviewed plans for a map showing spheres of influence for the 11 Marin cities by the Local Agency Formation Commission and instructed staff to be present at an Aug. 8 meeting of the county agency when the map will be approved.

SIGNS — Instructed staff that the city's limit to three signs per business does not preclude a business with frontage on more than one street from having three signs on each street side.

TENNIS — Approved a request for conversion of half-court tennis area into a regular tennis court at the Marin Tennis Coub, 925 Belle Avenue.

OFFICE — Approved a request for conversion of an office at 710 C Street owned by George Kerrigan into office-living quarters.

DESIGN — Approved designs submitted for an auto leasing building, 445 Francisco Boulevard; replacement of an old shop area with a new structure, 826 Second Street; stock room and receiving area addition for the Safeway Store at 950 Las Gallinas Avenue with changes to add architectural design and landscaping, and a maintenance and truck parking facility, 151 Mitchell Boulevard.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Aug. 7 in city hall.

San Rafael Annexation Is Endorsed

Annexation of the Country Club tract to the city of San Rafael was found last night by the San Rafael Planning Commission to be in accord with the San Rafael General Plan, a finding required before the proposal can go to the city council.

The commission, with Councilman Albert J. Boro absent, unanimously resolved that "the annexation is a natural extension of city boundaries and is consistent with the general plan."

"This is something we who have lived here have looked forward to for many, many years," said Commissioner Jorgen V. Lunding in proposing approval.

The annexation has been asked so that the area west of Loch Lomond can receive city services, especially fire protection.

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission approved the plan earlier this month subject to legal clearance from the county counsel's office on points raised by area residents opposed to annexation.

Planners Demand Impact Report On Golden Gate Bus Facility

The Golden Gate Bridge District's plan to expand its San Rafael bus base should be protested if a satisfactory environmental impact report has not been filed, San Rafael planning commissioners declared last night.

Having been asked by the San Rafael City Council for their opinion, commissioners voted 5-0 (with Commissioners Albert J. Boro and Joseph J. Garbarino absent) to advise the council to file a protest if it is not too late.

"A lot of projects across this country have been stopped cold when the environmental impact report was improperly filed," said Commissioner Ben C. Albritton.

The expansion would enable the agency to park up to 300 buses on the site, now accommodating 120 buses.

The bridge district had assured the council in April that it would provide an impact report on the plan to enlarge the parking facility on Jacoby Street between highways 17 and 101.

But as of last night's meeting the planners had only a letter from the bridge district general manager saying, "The board of directors of the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District has determined that the project will not have a significant effect on the environment."

J. Stanley Ott, senior planner for the city, said a check with the county clerk's office showed no impact report on file, only a copy of the letter from the general manager.

In May, planning commissioners approved a split of adjacent property, district purchase of land needed for the project. But Ott said at that time that approval of the split did not constitute approval of the project for the parcels.

The city council in June complained to the bridge district that expansion had started without an impact report promised in April.

The district, although exempted by state law from local planning control, has said it will cooperate with local agencies.

Commissioners recommended that the city council seek legislation to restore the "controls and prerogatives" in planning which it has lost through such state law.

Commissioner Jorgen V. Lunding also asked that a city employee be required to monitor all impact reports filed with the county clerk and report them to the agencies they might involve. He said this might preclude a repeat of the present problem.

Finally, anticipating that a protest might not stop the project but that the district might consider recommendations from the commissions', they told planning staff to review the project under existing city guidelines with a special eye to the architectural design of three proposed metal buildings on the project, review of proposed parking area and the "sea of asphalt" it would create and review night lighting on the lot.

NOT YOUR CLASSIC MOBY DICK

Beached in colorful splendor in the playground of the Janus nursery school at 221 Belle Avenue, San Rafael, lies a wonderful whale with children on it, in it and through it. # Neighbors Object But Church School Wins

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night was accused of nibbling away at existing residential zoning restrictions within the city.

Several residents spoke against an amendment to a use permit for a Christian educational child care center in the Assembly of God Church at 1675 Grand Avenue.

Carol Sandler, who identified herself only as a resident of San Rafael, said existing restrictions in the residential zoning are being nibbled away.

Several other speakers objected to the use of the church saying it was a day care center and not a school as claimed by the Rev. R. J. Sequeira who requested the use permit amendment.

Herbert S. Hotchner, city planning director, told planners that he viewed the request as falling within the definition of a school which is allowed under residential R-1 zoning.

Mary O'Callaghan, 3 Grand Court, disagreed with Hotchner and said the use would constitute a day care facility needing state licensing.

Barbara Costello, 1610 Grand Avenue, said if the church program is for children from preschool ages through kindergarten then it cannot be a school in the usual definition.

Commissioner Jorgen V. Lunding said the use would not be an erosion of residential restrictions because it is a school and is a permitted use under R-1 zoning. His commission colleagues agreed by a 6-0 vote, with Commissioner Albert J. Boro absent.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

ELECTION — Postponed election of a chairman until its next meeting when a full commission might be present.

MAP — Reviewed plans for a map showing spheres of influence for the 11 Marin cities by the Local Agency Formation Commission and instructed staff to be present at an Aug. 8 meeting of the county agency when the map will be approved.

SIGNS — Instructed staff that the city's limit to three signs per business does not preclude a business with frontage on more than one street from having three signs on each street side.

TENNIS — Approved a request for conversion of half-court tennis area into a regular tennis court at the Marin Tennis Coub, 925 Belle Avenue.

DESIGN — Approved designs submitted for an auto leasing building, 445 Francisco Boulevard; replacement of an old shop area with a new structure, 826 Second Street; stock room and receiving area addition for the Safeway Store at 950 Las Gallinas Avenue with changes to add architectural design and landscaping, and a maintenance and truck parking facility, 151 Mitchell Boulevard.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Aug. 7 in city hall.

San Rafael Annexation Is Endorsed

Annexation of the Country Club tract to the city of San Rafael was found last night by the San Rafael Planning Commission to be in accord with the San Rafael General Plan, a finding required before the proposal can go to the city council.

The commission, with Councilman Albert J. Boro absent, unanimously resolved that "the annexation is a natural extension of city boundaries and is consistent with the general plan."

"This is something we who have lived here have looked forward to for many, many years," said Commissioner Jorgen V. Lunding in proposing approval.

The annexation has been asked so that the area west of Loch Lomond can receive city services, especially fire protection.

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission approved the plan earlier this month subject to legal clearance from the county counsel's office on points raised by area residents opposed to annexation.

'Cowboys' Start The Pony Auction

CHINCOTEAGUE, Va. (UPI) — Volunteer firemen doubling as cowboys herded wild colts through a shallow channel separating Chincoteague Island from Assateague Island today to begin the 49th annual pony penning and auction.

Shoppers Frustrated By Food Price Spiral

Marilyn Noble of 9 Walnut Avenue, Ross (shops for five and frequent guests) — "I really feel some sympathy with farmers in the cost of raising products. I've already cut down on the things I don't really consider nutritious for the children — I'm boycotting cold cereals."

Susan Leipsic of 26 Acorn Way, Kentfield (shops for five) — "So far the meat prices haven't affected us too much because we buy a hindquarter of beef from Fresno and freeze it, and we eat a lot of chicken, fish and salads. And I just won't buy the things that are too expensive. Lately I've been buying peaches on special and today I'm making blackberry jam from the fruit in our garden."

Josephine N. Hickman, 901 School Street, Cotati — "My husband is retired and it's really hit us hard. You can't expect a big raise next week. I think the whole thing is very bad. We haven't had any bacon in 100 years. It's too expensive. I've been reading a lot, but I still don't understand about inflation.

Mrs. Gene Minton of 545 Santa Barbara Court, Rohnert Park — "Lots of things are going up. With three children still at home it makes it rough. It's hit everything — even the tuna fish has gone up —and that can't be considered eating high on the hog. My children love Fruitloops cereal and they have gone from 63 cents to 79 cents."

Ruby Johnston of 1950 Mountain View Avenue, Petaluma (mother of four) — "This whole Phase Four thing is ridiculous. It seemed like most of the stores didn't pay any attention to the price freeze anyway, but they'll use this new phase thing to put prices up even higher. We haven't had a recession since Eisenhower was in office and I guess it takes another Republican to give us one. Nixon is busy paying back all the promises he made for campaign contributions, but it's the people who'll pay in the end. The whole thing is impossible."

Josephine Bryant, 300 Stony Point Road, Petaluma — "The way the prices are going it looks like we'll have to quit Weight Watchers and go back to starchy foods. It's getting to the point that you can't even afford to buy beans instead of meat. Everything is going up. I feel sorry for people with big families. I just don't know what's going to happen."

Patricia M. Simmons of 94 Lovell Avenue, Mill Valley (shops for three persons and a dog): "I went to the market this morning and it was not as bad as I thought it would be from reading the papers. Eggs were 60 cents a dozen; I paid 55 cents two weeks ago. I try to stay under $25 a week for groceries, but I think I spent more this week."

Debra A. LePage of 45 Mercury Avenue, Tiburon (shops for three): "I went to the store this morning and bought five chickens and four pounds of bacon because I'm scared. The man at the market told me that eggs would be $1 a dozen soon. I wonder what we'll be eating in the future. We're young and we own our own house, but right now it's pretty rough feeding ourselves. The only meat we have is hamburger, except for a ham now and then."

Jack Muller of 809 Reichert Avenue, Novato (three children) — "I have worked in an oil refinery for almost 40 years. When I started, I was getting $90 a month and now I'm getting $880, but it doesn't buy as much as the $90 did when I started."

Jackie Vaughn of 52 Leland Drive, Novato (mother of four) — "It's very depressing."

Ralph P. Cooper of 1126 Fourth Street, Novato (retired and on a fixed income) — "We'll make out but we don't like it. Supermarkets are bandits; they have no competition and stick us with whatever they want to."

Delores Trimble of 446 School Road, Novato (mother of two) — "We are going to do all we can for ourselves; we have our own garden and chickens and are going to start buying half a beef wholesale."

Annabelle Hartz of 311 Third Street, Sausalito, (a widow, shops for herself) — "I went to the meat market the other day and I saw a man standing there at the counter in shock. He said, 'I can't believe it.'

"As long as Nixon is president, I don't see much hope for anything. When you have dishonesty at the highest level, what can you expect. I don't think I'm alone in my opinion. I don't think he cares at all about the little fellow. I am on a fixed income,social security disability, and whether prices go up or down I just have to make do.

"I hope for everybody's sake that things get straightened out at all levels of government. My only suggestion is that we get people at the head of government who care about the people. You should hear me talking back to the TV."

John W. Lowe of Sunset Way, Muir Beach, (shops for two) — "I was out today at two places, Mayfair in San Rafael; things look normal there; then Cala Foods in Mill Valley. I notice eggs are up to 66 cents at Mayfair and it seems like medium eggs at Cala are at 77, but I've seen them as high as 84. I buy meat at a wholesale market and bacon was 75 cents a pound, but other places it's 85, 90 cents a pound or better.

"I see prices continuing to go up. You can't boycott because people have to eat. What makes it tough is for people on fixed income, like retired people. The real stiff raise in prices began when they began selling grain to Russia."

Mary Vetromile of 127 Buchanan Drive, Sausalito, (shops for five) — "Prices have been going up every time I go to the store. . .chickens were up. I bought two whole chickens at 69 cents a pound. I've never seen prices that high for whole chickens. They used to be 29 cents a couple of years ago, then they went up to 49 and now they're at 69. I asked my husband for $50 more per month for food. Dog food was the same, but don't tell them because they're liable to raise that. I pray for a depression, but personally I don't think I'm going to get it."

Shoppers Frustrated By Food Price Spiral

Marilyn Noble of 9 Walnut Avenue, Ross (shops for five and frequent guests) — "I really feel some sympathy with farmers in the cost of raising products. I've already cut down on the things I don't really consider nutritious for the children — I'm boycotting cold cereals."

Susan Leipsic of 26 Acorn Way, Kentfield (shops for five) — "So far the meat prices haven't affected us too much because we buy a hindquarter of beef from Fresno and freeze it, and we eat a lot of chicken, fish and salads. And I just won't buy the things that are too expensive. Lately I've been buying peaches on special and today I'm making blackberry jam from the fruit in our garden."

Josephine N. Hickman, 901 School Street, Cotati — "My husband is retired and it's really hit us hard. You can't expect a big raise next week. I think the whole thing is very bad. We haven't had any bacon in 100 years. It's too expensive. I've been reading a lot, but I still don't understand about inflation.

Mrs. Gene Minton of 545 Santa Barbara Court, Rohnert Park — "Lots of things are going up. With three children still at home it makes it rough. It's hit everything — even the tuna fish has gone up —and that can't be considered eating high on the hog. My children love Fruitloops cereal and they have gone from 63 cents to 79 cents."

Ruby Johnston of 1950 Mountain View Avenue, Petaluma (mother of four) — "This whole Phase Four thing is ridiculous. It seemed like most of the stores didn't pay any attention to the price freeze anyway, but they'll use this new phase thing to put prices up even higher. We haven't had a recession since Eisenhower was in office and I guess it takes another Republican to give us one. Nixon is busy paying back all the promises he made for campaign contributions, but it's the people who'll pay in the end. The whole thing is impossible."

Josephine Bryant, 300 Stony Point Road, Petaluma — "The way the prices are going it looks like we'll have to quit Weight Watchers and go back to starchy foods. It's getting to the point that you can't even afford to buy beans instead of meat. Everything is going up. I feel sorry for people with big families. I just don't know what's going to happen."

Patricia M. Simmons of 94 Lovell Avenue, Mill Valley (shops for three persons and a dog): "I went to the market this morning and it was not as bad as I thought it would be from reading the papers. Eggs were 60 cents a dozen; I paid 55 cents two weeks ago. I try to stay under $25 a week for groceries, but I think I spent more this week."

Debra A. LePage of 45 Mercury Avenue, Tiburon (shops for three): "I went to the store this morning and bought five chickens and four pounds of bacon because I'm scared. The man at the market told me that eggs would be $1 a dozen soon. I wonder what we'll be eating in the future. We're young and we own our own house, but right now it's pretty rough feeding ourselves. The only meat we have is hamburger, except for a ham now and then."

Jack Muller of 809 Reichert Avenue, Novato (three children) — "I have worked in an oil refinery for almost 40 years. When I started, I was getting $90 a month and now I'm getting $880, but it doesn't buy as much as the $90 did when I started."

Jackie Vaughn of 52 Leland Drive, Novato (mother of four) — "It's very depressing."

Ralph P. Cooper of 1126 Fourth Street, Novato (retired and on a fixed income) — "We'll make out but we don't like it. Supermarkets are bandits; they have no competition and stick us with whatever they want to."

Delores Trimble of 446 School Road, Novato (mother of two) — "We are going to do all we can for ourselves; we have our own garden and chickens and are going to start buying half a beef wholesale."

Annabelle Hartz of 311 Third Street, Sausalito, (a widow, shops for herself) — "I went to the meat market the other day and I saw a man standing there at the counter in shock. He said, 'I can't believe it.'

"As long as Nixon is president, I don't see much hope for anything. When you have dishonesty at the highest level, what can you expect. I don't think I'm alone in my opinion. I don't think he cares at all about the little fellow. I am on a fixed income,social security disability, and whether prices go up or down I just have to make do.

"I hope for everybody's sake that things get straightened out at all levels of government. My only suggestion is that we get people at the head of government who care about the people. You should hear me talking back to the TV."

John W. Lowe of Sunset Way, Muir Beach, (shops for two) — "I was out today at two places, Mayfair in San Rafael; things look normal there; then Cala Foods in Mill Valley. I notice eggs are up to 66 cents at Mayfair and it seems like medium eggs at Cala are at 77, but I've seen them as high as 84. I buy meat at a wholesale market and bacon was 75 cents a pound, but other places it's 85, 90 cents a pound or better.

"I see prices continuing to go up. You can't boycott because people have to eat. What makes it tough is for people on fixed income, like retired people. The real stiff raise in prices began when they began selling grain to Russia."

Mary Vetromile of 127 Buchanan Drive, Sausalito, (shops for five) — "Prices have been going up every time I go to the store. . .chickens were up. I bought two whole chickens at 69 cents a pound. I've never seen prices that high for whole chickens. They used to be 29 cents a couple of years ago, then they went up to 49 and now they're at 69. I asked my husband for $50 more per month for food. Dog food was the same, but don't tell them because they're liable to raise that. I pray for a depression, but personally I don't think I'm going to get it."

Food costs less at Mayfair!

Uncle Sam helps us prove that food cost less at Mayfair last week than at 7 other top chains

RETAIL FOOD PRICE COMPARISONS
BASED ON U.S. DEPT. OF LABOR, BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS ITEM LIST, IN MAYFAIR DISCOUNT AND IN OTHER STORES, EFFECTIVE JULY 12 TO 13

Again last week, we compared food prices with the major supermarkets in this area.

"Specials", "total discount", and most other kinds of prices were compared. In this survey of July 12 to 13, Mayfair's overall food prices were lower than seven other top supermarket chains'.

To try to be fair, the comparisons were again with Uncle Sam's list, the same full list of items that the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, uses every month to measure food prices as part of the cost of living.

These comparisons show you could have saved from $.70 to $7.69 on the $50 to $60 worth of basic foods in this list.

With the high cost of living these days, really, can you afford not to buy your food at Mayfair?

Food costs less at Mayfair!

Uncle Sam helps us prove that food cost less at Mayfair last week than at 7 other top chains

RETAIL FOOD PRICE COMPARISONS
BASED ON U.S. DEPT. OF LABOR, BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS ITEM LIST, IN MAYFAIR DISCOUNT AND IN OTHER STORES, EFFECTIVE JULY 12 TO 13

|---|---|---|---|---|
| Discount Chain A | 82 | 54.42 | 57.36 | 2.94 |
| Discount Chain B | 84 | 52.87 | 54.27 | 1.40 |
| Discount Chain C | 82 | 52.90 | 55.03 | 2.13 |
| Discount Chain D | 86 | 56.39 | 57.09 | .70 |
| Non-discount Chain E | 86 | 54.09 | 59.79 | 5.70 |
| Non-discount Chain F | 82 | 53.33 | 61.02 | 7.69 |
| Non-discount Chain G | 77 | 46.90 | 52.37 | 5.47 |

Again last week, we compared food prices with the major supermarkets in this area.

"Specials", "total discount", and most other kinds of prices were compared. In this survey of July 12 to 13, Mayfair's overall food prices were lower than seven other top supermarket chains'.

To try to be fair, the comparisons were again with Uncle Sam's list, the same full list of items that the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, uses every month to measure food prices as part of the cost of living.

These comparisons show you could have saved from $.70 to $7.69 on the $50 to $60 worth of basic foods in this list.

With the high cost of living these days, really, can you afford not to buy your food at Mayfair?

CHAMPAGNE FOR CENTENARIAN

Emma Judge, born July 24, 1873, near Ashland, Ore., accepts champagne toasts on her 100th birthday, celebrated yesterday at Nazareth House in San Rafael. Miss Judge, whose blue eyes are as bright as her red hair, said her best birthday present came from a grandnephew, who cut his beard for the occasion. "I'm still after that pony tail of his," she remarked about the youth's long hair. Miss Judge, who lived most of her life in San Francisco, has been at Nazareth House since it opened seven years ago.

Extra Work On Airport Requested

The Marin County Aviation Commission voted unanimously last night to ask county supervisors to enlarge a proposed airport expansion project at Gnoss Field.

Francis E. Torr, Airport Manager, said the matter will be considered by the board of supervisors next Tuesday.

He said recent changes in federal regulations will enable the county to get more federal matching dollars for each local dollar put into the project.

Instead of a $400,000 project to enlarge the airport apron area and provide airplane warmup areas, the project can be expanded to about $500,000 worth of work at no additional cost to local taxpayers.

He said the expanded project, if approved by supervisors, would provide even more apron area at the North Marin Airport.

Supervisors may choose, however, to stay with the smaller project and bank the county's matching funds. Torr had no estimate of how much that would be.

Meeting Called On Crime In Marin

A special meeting to "discuss lawless activities in Marin City and Marin City Public housing" has been called for tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. by the Marin County Redevelopment Agency and Marin County Housing Authority boards.

The boards will meet in the agency and authority offices at 47 Paul Drive in the Northgate Industrial Park, San Rafael.

Bodega Developers Win Round In Court

The order had been issued Monday by Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge Paul T. Gallagher against the 1,600-home Bodega Harbor project. Attorneys for Transcentury Properties of Palo Alto, developer of the project, persuaded the judge to dissolve his own temporary restraining order on the ground they already had obtained a contrary order from a Sonoma judge.

The contrary order had been issued Saturday morning from his home by Sonoma County Superior Court Judge John H. Moskowitz at the request of Transcentury. It barred the state and North Central Coast Regional Commission from seeking a court order to halt the construction.

At issue is the corporation's claim it is exempt from the commission because work began before the commission was created in November. The regional commission recently denied the claim of exemption, and Transcentury has appealed to the state commission. The state commission will vote on the appeal on Aug. 8.

Transcentury late Monday had Moskowitz extend his order to the Coastal Alliance, the citizens group that obtained the order from Gallagher.

Gallagher, however, did not cancel the hearing before him on Aug. 3 on arguments on the bid by the alliance to stop the work. A hearing before Judge Moskowitz will be held on Aug. 6.

Gallagher said he would not have issued his order if he had known about the earlier one by Moskowitz.

The executive director of the regional commission, Michael L. Fischer, told the Independent-Journal today it was "very strange for Moskowitz to have precluded the commission and state from their right to seek a court decision on the matter."

The commission's counsel, Deputy Atty. Gen. Donatas Januta told the I-J he will take legal steps to overturn Moskowitz's order within a few days. He declined to elaborate, saying he did not want "to tip off the opposition."

Ukiah Jarred By A Light Quake

UKIAH, Calif. (UPI) — It measured only 3.6 on the Richter Scale, but residents in Lake and Mendocino Counties were jarred awake when a small earthquake shook their areas.

The temblor struck the area at 6:48 a.m. yesterday and was centered in Ukiah.

Rural Sewer Rules Urged In Petaluma

Petaluma should develop a firm policy on extending sewer lines into rural areas, the planning commission was told last night.

Senior planner Frank Gray said the current policy is far too broad and needs more detail to cope with the growing number of applications from outside the city to connect with the sewer system.

Gray told the planners that such a policy should cover a variety of applications, including those for single houses, for larger areas of land to be subdivided and also for large sewer assessment districts.

Al Solnit, consultant to the Sonoma County Planning Department, said the city should work closely with residents of outlying areas before setting the new policy.

He said many persons moved outside the city to enjoy the rural atmosphere and strongly oppose the extension of sewer lines which might encourage urbanization.

Gray said he would present policy recommendations for consideration at the Aug. 7 planning commission meeting.

Rocket Site Approved By Supervisors

A plan to make the Civic Center a part-time model rocket launching site, which nearly fizzled out last week, was unanimously approved yesterday by the Board of Supervisors.

Despite a dubious safety demonstration last Tuesday, the supervisors said the dance floor site near the Veterans Memorial Auditorium will receive a trial launching permit, under stringent fire regulations.

Only organized groups, such as rocket clubs and explorer posts, will be allowed to use the facility, under supervision of a range safety officer certified by the San Rafael Fire Department.

Marin Supervisors Supporting Change In Air Board's Makeup

Marin County supervisors voted 3-to-2 yesterday in support of changing the composition of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District board to include directly elected members.

The vote came after two members of the audience questioned, and Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. defended, the air board's track record in solving air pollution problems. Arrigoni is one of Marin's two representatives.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere joined Arrigoni in opposing the position statement, which endorses the concept of mixed representation on the air board — some elected, some appointed.

The position statement came after supervisors voted unanimously to oppose two bills in the state legislature to change the make-up of the present 18-member board, which includes two members appointed from each Bay Area county.

The first, SB 546 by Senator Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, calls for the air district board to be composed of 20 elected officials, each representing a ward of about 230,000.

Whereas Marin currently has an equal voice with the other Bay Area counties, the Alquist bill would give Marin only one representative.

Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini, Michael Wornum and Arnold M. Baptiste said they preferred the second bill, AB 2467 by Assemblyman Willie C. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, which would establish a 22-member board.

Each of the nine Bay Area county boards of supervisors would appoint one member and the other 13 would be elected from wards of about 380,000 population.

While the mixed representation appealed to supervisors, they voted to oppose the Brown bill because it proposes annual salaries of $10,800 for those elected to the district board and mandates four meetings a month. Appointed representatives would get $50 per meeting.

Support for Brown's bill came from several members of the audience, including Barbara Boxer, who last year ran for Arrigoni's seat on the board of supervisors.

Mrs. Boxer, supported by Pam Lloyd of Mill Valley, said the change would make the much criticized air district more responsive to Bay Area residents.

She said she agreed with a newspaper editorial saying the current board is a rubber stamp and "at the mercy of its professional staff."

Arrigoni defended the district as one of the best, worldwide, in controlling air pollution. He said district policies were cited at a convention in Chicago as "the most far reaching, the most stringent ... and have done the most to clean up the air of any district in the world."

Arrigoni disagreed that elections would promote better representation and opined that the high cost of campaigning would invite "special interest money" to back candidates.

Supervisors Giacomini, Wornum and Baptiste differed, however, and said they would prefer the board to be partially made up of directly elected officials. They also urged that the air district be disbanded and its functions given to a multipurpose regional agency, if one is ever formed.

Dominican Apartments Approved

An environmental impact report for a senior citizens' housing project at the old Dominican Priory in Kentfield was approved yesterday by county supervisors over objection by a nearby resident.

Attorney Louis F. Hawkins, who lives near the priory site at 217 Laurel Grove Avenue, complained that environmental impact questions raised earlier by himself and other neighbors had not been answered in the report.

He said he was concerned with increased sewage and drainage, among other things, that would be created when 102 apartment dwellings are built at the site.

The project is sponsored by the Catholic Social Services Agency which proposes to convert the old priory building for 30 units and construct eight other buildings for the remaining 72 units.

Hawkins has been fighting the project for about two years and at one point won a court battle that forced the county to revise its zoning ordinance to permit apartments in a single-family residentil area.

Supervisors, with little discussion, said they found the environmental report adequate and voted unanimously to accept it, as well as saying no separate report is necessary for immediate residential use of the existing building.

The board's action yesterday does not end Hawkins' chances to block the project. He can still appeal temporary use permit and design review approval.

Man Denies He Assaulted Woman

A San Rafael man yesterday denied in Marin Municipal Court that he tried to rape a 26-year-old woman in the hills above Sausalito June 23.

Preliminary hearing for Sam Yul Oh, 27, was set for Aug. 7 by Judge Gary W. Thomas.

Oh is charged with trying to rape a hitchhiker he picked up in San Francisco. The woman said she fought him off, however, and he was arrested later after she identified his photograph to Sausalito Police.

Woman Denies Check Forgery

A San Rafael woman yesterday pleaded innocent to cashing a forged check Friday at a Sears and Roebuck Store in San Rafael.

Mynelle Glenney Griswold, 19, is to appear again in Marin Municiapl Court Aug. 7.

She is charged with three counts of forging a check, all stemming from an incident in which she allegedly passed a check for $175 written on the account of a San Rafael woman, Rose M. Pennington.

Albertina Masterpieces Come From Pens Of The Old Masters

By ANNA and GIORGIO BACCHI
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

VIENNA — The exposition "Masterpieces of the Albertina" at The Hermitage in Leningrad and the Pushkin Museum in Moscow was such a success (over 300,000 visitors at the Pushkin alone), that on its return to Vienna, the directors of the Albertina decided to show it also to the hometown Viennese public and visitors to the city.

The Albertina 1973 Summer Exposition offers lovers of art as well as students and scholars a unique opportunity to see in one viewing an exceptionally large number of prime drawings and sketches. It may whet the appetite to know that after such a long exposure, in the fall, these particular works will be returned to their dark storage and for the purpose of conservation will not again see the light for some time.

Vienna's Albertina Graphic Art Collection is fabulous, one of the largest and most important of its kind in the world, with 44,000 drawings and a million other works of graphic art each acquired solely for its artistic-historic value.

One part of the current exposition is a comprehensive selection from all the European schools of the 15th to the 19th Century, the other a survey of Austrian drawings from the Baroque to the middle of this century. To list individual artists is like calling the roll of the big names in art: included are Uccello, Pollaiuolo, Michelangelo, Raphael, Durer, Breughel, Van Dyke, Rembrandt, Tiepolo, Rubens, Poussin, Boucher, Fragonard, Goya, Romney, Makart, Klimt, Schiele, Kokoschka and Wotruba.

"The Betrayal of Christ" by Sir Anthony Van Dyke (1599-1641) reveals his artistic personality better than the elegant portraits of distinguished people for which he is best known.

Wildness of pen and brush strokes, fluent energetic lines that sometimes ignore possibilities in their haste, impetuosity of the dark wash — all these mark this as a first sketch, with the artist intent on capturing an idea as it clarifies.

The drawing is probably the earliest scheme for the painting now at the Minneapolis Institute of Art, and the painting itself could be an intermediate version of the huge, more finished picture in Madrid's Prado Museum.

Despite the apparent spontaneity and direct impact of his majestic historical and religious paintings, Vay Dyke took meticulous care and made numerous such preparatory studies as the Albertina sketch.

"Seated Woman," subtly drawn on fine Japan paper, is by Gustav Klimt (1862-1918, Vienna). Delicate waving lines curl like rippling water over and around the form, revealing the emotional nuance at the same time as the corporal. Klimt is considered the artist who made modern art in Austria possible. Because of his personal stand against the decidedly conservative spirit of old Austria, artists of the younger generation, for instance the Expressionists, were permitted to develop their quite different aesthetic and philosophic ideas.

Vienna's remarkable art treasure was started by Duke Albert of Sachsen-Teschen and his wife, the Arch Duchess Maria Christina, favorite daughter of Queen Maria Theresa. Their visit to Italy in 1775-76 became the cultural and spiritual foundation on which was built the Albertina.

By 1822, when he died at the age of 84, Albert, acting as a private citizen, had purchased, studied, and documented 14,184 drawings and 157,952 engravings. They came chiefly from art merchants in a market where rivalry of acquisition was almost warlike.

Reportedly he spent more than a quarter of his inheritance for a collection which the 1824 inventory found to be "composed of works of the highest order very difficult to find in commerce and whose rarity augments every day and, in addition, a considerable number of rapid sketches also by celebrated masters which retain the imprint of genius and enchant connoisseurs and artists."

Cavernous Auditorium, Nervous Cast Hinder 'My Fair Lady'

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — A lot of people probably went home Monday night from the Veterans Memorial Auditorium with stiff necks and a melodic aching in their hearts.

It was Jack Aranson's opening of a miniversion of Lerner and Loewe's "My Fair Lady."

First, the auditorium is a ghastly place to stage anything. The stage is so much higher than the seat level that a playgoer has to crane his neck to see any of the action. Secondly, the acoustics are terrible. Aranson tried to solve the problem with microphones, but they, too, were ineffective in fighting the Stone Age atmosphere of the theater.

Third, the lovely melodies fell flat despite a gallant attempt by Claudia Cummings, a young soprano of great beauty and topnotch lyrical soprano qualities. While her Eliza Doolittle was sometimes fetching, Miss Cummings lacks the Broadway musical stage experience to generate a compelling on-stage presence.

"MY FAIR LADY" — A two-act musical by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe from Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion." Directed by Jack Aranson of the San Francisco Performing Arts Repertory Company in association with the San Francisco City Theater. Costumes by Jill Percival; choreography, Margot Jones; lighting, David Arrow; orchestra, Duane Carroll. The cast: Mrs. Eynsford-Hill, Georgia Upshaw; Eliza Doolittle, Claudia Cummings; Freddy Eynsford-Hill, Roy Neuner; Colonel Pickering, David Eadie; Henry Higgins, Jack Aranson; Mrs. Hopkins, Maria Lakkala; Harry, Jeff Meilandt; Jamie, Richard Wagner; Alfred P. Doolittle, Richard Lewis; Mrs. Pierce, Carol McElheney, and Mrs. Higgins, Kenna Hunt.

Aranson, who has built this vehicle as a showcase for himself and Miss Cummings, who recently became the new Mrs. Aranson, was adequate as Henry Higgins, but seemed a little weary. His dual task as director and lead actor making a debut in a musical was probably too much for the noted dramatic actor.

The rest of the major members of the cast seemed simply hard workers, but less than effective. At moments David Eadie seemed to catch some of the urbane charm of Colonel Pickering, but was generally too bland. And while Roy Neuner looked the part of the love-stricken Freddy Eynsford-Hill, his opening-night nervousness spoiled his one big number, "On the Street Where You Live."

Aranson has mounted the production with simple, inexpensive sets. His cost-saving efforts paid off best in the "Ascot Gavotte," the one really charming moment of the whole evening. Aranson entirely overlooked the lovely ballroom scene where Eliza is completely transformed from a Covent Gardens flower girl to a "real lady."

Margot Jones teamed with Aranson for the dance numbers, but if they were good, they could hardly be seen. And, too, the small orchestra seemed lost in the acoustically-mean auditorium.

As preannounced, Aranson is planning a limited engagement of the famed musical. It could be further "limited" if something isn't done to bring the production up to a higher level. It just isn't fair to "My Fair Lady."

Hawaii's Kilauea Volcano Expected To Rumble Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hawaii's Kilauea volcano, in more than four years of almost continuous eruption, has spewed out more than 400 million cubic yards of lava to cover 25 to 30 square miles of surrounding forest and ranchland, government scientists said yesterday.

On five separate occasions parts of the rivers of lava have poured into the Pacific Ocean, adding about 210 acres of new land to the island of Hawaii, U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) officials said.

Part of that 210 acres of new land has been worn away by ocean waves, they added.

The USGS officials said Kilauea (pronounced key-lawayuh) has been in almost continuous activity since May of 1969.

It has had five distinct eruptions since then, with the first one lasting 29 months.

And, they said, the worst may not be over yet.

"As Kilauea entered its fifth year of activity, the eruption waned to a relatively low level," they said, "but expectations are that a new more vigorous phase of this eruption will soon get underway."

Dr. D.W. Peterson, chief scientist at the USGS's Hawaiian Volcano Observatory at Kilauea, said "abrupt changes in the nature of the eruptive activity can be expected at any time."

Peterson said the lava, flowing out at the average rate of 300,000 cubic yards per day over the past four years, has covered parts of the Naulu Forest, threatening some species of rare Hawaiian plants and trees with extinction.

Early last year, the National Park Service opened a site on the north rim of one of Kilauea's craters to the public, allowing visitors to see close at hand a bubbling pool of molten lava.

Budget Hearing

The Alto-Richardson Bay Fire District board will hold its final hearing on its 1973-74 budget Friday at 8 p.m. at the Alto fire station on Shell Road, according to Chief Carl O. Heynen Jr. The tentative budget is $261,199.

Presidency Hint In Connally Talk

PALM [illegible], Fla. (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary John Connally held a two-hour meeting this weekend with billionaire John D. MacArthur and two Florida GOP leaders, and the possibility of Connally's seeking the presidency was discussed, the Palm Beach Post reported today.

One of those at the meeting said it was an indefinite talk and it would be "presumptuous" for the former Texas governor to elaborate about any such plans.

Bob Hope's $3 Million Dream Home Is Destroyed

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) — An enormous $3 million home being built on a hilltop for comedian Bob Hope was destroyed by fire yesterday.

Only the steel skeleton was left standing. Damage to the structure, which was nearly completed after a year's work, was estimated at $1.5 million by firemen.

The land alone cost Hope $587,000, and the house's 44-foot-high domedroof $490,000. The house was to contain 29,000 square feet of floor space—more than one local department store—a 100 foot indoor swimming pool built to look like a natural lake.

Fire officials said they did not know what caused the blaze, which gutted the building "in a matter of minutes."

A spokesman for the comedian said Hope and his wife took the news in a "philosophical and hopeful" way, and plan to rebuild the house.

Albertina Masterpieces Come From Pens Of The Old Masters

By ANNA and GIORGIO BACCHI
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

VIENNA — The exposition "Masterpieces of the Albertina" at The Hermitage in Leningrad and the Pushkin Museum in Moscow was such a success (over 300,000 visitors at the Pushkin alone), that on its return to Vienna, the directors of the Albertina decided to show it also to the hometown Viennese public and visitors to the city.

The Albertina 1973 Summer Exposition offers lovers of art as well as students and scholars a unique opportunity to see in one viewing an exceptionally large number of prime drawings and sketches. It may whet the appetite to know that after such a long exposure, in the fall, these particular works will be returned to their dark storage and for the purpose of conservation will not again see the light for some time.

Vienna's Albertina Graphic Art Collection is fabulous, one of the largest and most important of its kind in the world, with 44,000 drawings and a million other works of graphic art each acquired solely for its artistic-historic value.

One part of the current exposition is a comprehensive selection from all the European schools of the 15th to the 19th Century, the other a survey of Austrian drawings from the Baroque to the middle of this century. To list individual artists is like calling the roll of the big names in art: included are Uccello, Pollaiuolo, Michelangelo, Raphael, Durer, Breughel, Van Dyke, Rembrandt, Tiepolo, Rubens, Poussin, Boucher, Fragonard, Goya, Romney, Makart, Klimt, Schiele, Kokoschka and Wotruba.

"The Betrayal of Christ" by Sir Anthony Van Dyke (1599-1641) reveals his artistic personality better than the elegant portraits of distinguished people for which he is best known.

Wildness of pen and brush strokes, fluent energetic lines that sometimes ignore possibilities in their haste, impetuosity of the dark wash — all these mark this as a first sketch, with the artist intent on capturing an idea as it clarifies.

The drawing is probably the earliest scheme for the painting now at the Minneapolis Institute of Art, and the painting itself could be an intermediate version of the huge, more finished picture in Madrid's Prado Museum.

Despite the apparent spontaneity and direct impact of his majestic historical and religious paintings, Vay Dyke took meticulous care and made numerous such preparatory studies as the Albertina sketch.

"Seated Woman," subtly drawn on fine Japan paper, is by Gustav Klimt (1862-1918, Vienna). Delicate waving lines curl like rippling water over and around the form, revealing the emotional nuance at the same time as the corporal. Klimt is considered the artist who made modern art in Austria possible. Because of his personal stand against the decidedly conservative spirit of old Austria, artists of the younger generation, for instance the Expressionists, were permitted to develop their quite different aesthetic and philosophic ideas.

Vienna's remarkable art treasure was started by Duke Albert of Sachsen-Teschen and his wife, the Arch Duchess Maria Christina, favorite daughter of Queen Maria Theresa. Their visit to Italy in 1775-76 became the cultural and spiritual foundation on which was built the Albertina.

By 1822, when he died at the age of 84, Albert, acting as a private citizen, had purchased, studied, and documented 14,184 drawings and 157,952 engravings. They came chiefly from art merchants in a market where rivalry of acquisition was almost warlike.

Reportedly he spent more than a quarter of his inheritance for a collection which the 1824 inventory found to be "composed of works of the highest order very difficult to find in commerce and whose rarity augments every day and, in addition, a considerable number of rapid sketches also by celebrated masters which retain the imprint of genius and enchant connoisseurs and artists."

Bob Hope's $3 Million Dream Home Is Destroyed

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) — An enormous $3 million home being built on a hilltop for comedian Bob Hope was destroyed by fire yesterday.

Only the steel skeleton was left standing. Damage to the structure, which was nearly completed after a year's work, was estimated at $1.5 million by firemen.

The land alone cost Hope $587,000, and the house's 44-foot-high domedroof $490,000.
The house was to contain 29,000 square feet of floor space—more than one local department store—a 100 foot indoor swimming pool built to look like a natural lake.

Fire officials said they did not know what caused the blaze, which gutted the building "in a matter of minutes."

A spokesman for the comedian said Hope and his wife took the news in a "philosophical and hopeful" way, and plan to rebuild the house.

Cavernous Auditorium, Nervous Cast Hinder 'My Fair Lady'

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — A lot of people probably went home Monday night from the Veterans Memorial Auditorium with stiff necks and a melodic aching in their hearts.

It was Jack Aranson's opening of a miniversion of Lerner and Loewe's "My Fair Lady."

First, the auditorium is a ghastly place to stage anything. The stage is so much higher than the seat level that a playgoer has to crane his neck to see any of the action. Secondly, the acoustics are terrible. Aranson tried to solve the problem with microphones, but they, too, were ineffective in fighting the Stone Age atmosphere of the theater.

Third, the lovely melodies fell flat despite a gallant attempt by Claudia Cummings, a young soprano of great beauty and topnotch lyrical soprano qualities. While her Eliza Doolittle was sometimes fetching, Miss Cummings lacks the Broadway musical stage experience to generate a compelling on-stage presence.

"MY FAIR LADY" — A two-act musical by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe from Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion." Directed by Jack Aranson of the San Francisco Performing Arts Repertory Company in association with the San Francisco City Theater. Costumes by Jill Percival; choreography, Margot Jones; lighting, David Arrow; orchestra, Duane Carroll. The cast: Mrs. Eynsford-Hill, Georgia Upshaw; Eliza Doolittle, Claudia Cummings; Freddy Eynsford-Hill, Roy Neuner; Colonel Pickering, David Eadie; Henry Higgins, Jack Aranson; Mrs. Hopkins, Maria Lakkala; Harry, Jeff Meilandt; Jamie, Richard Wagner; Alfred P. Doolittle, Richard Lewis; Mrs. Pierce, Carol McElheney, and Mrs. Higgins, Kenna Hunt.

Aranson, who has built this vehicle as a showcase for himself and Miss Cummings, who recently became the new Mrs. Aranson, was adequate as Henry Higgins, but seemed a little weary. His dual task as director and lead actor making a debut in a musical was probably too much for the noted dramatic actor.

The rest of the major members of the cast seemed simply hard workers, but less than effective. At moments David Eadie seemed to catch some of the urbane charm of Colonel Pickering, but was generally too bland. And while Roy Neuner looked the part of the love-stricken Freddy Eynsford-Hill, his opening-night nervousness spoiled his one big number, "On the Street Where You Live."

Aranson has mounted the production with simple, inexpensive sets. His cost-saving efforts paid off best in the "Ascot Gavotte," the one really charming moment of the whole evening. Aranson entirely overlooked the lovely ballroom scene where Eliza is completely transformed from a Covent Gardens flower girl to a "real lady."

Margot Jones teamed with Aranson for the dance numbers, but if they were good, they could hardly be seen. And, too, the small orchestra seemed lost in the acoustically-mean auditorium.

As preannounced, Aranson is planning a limited engagement of the famed musical. It could be further "limited" if something isn't done to bring the production up to a higher level. It just isn't fair to "My Fair Lady."

Hawaii's Kilauea Volcano Expected To Rumble Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hawaii's Kilauea volcano, in more than four years of almost continuous eruption, has spewed out more than 400 million cubic yards of lava to cover 25 to 30 square miles of surrounding forest and ranchland, government scientists said yesterday.

On five separate occasions parts of the rivers of lava have poured into the Pacific Ocean, adding about 210 acres of new land to the island of Hawaii, U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) officials said.

Part of that 210 acres of new land has been worn away by ocean waves, they added.

The USGS officials said Kilauea (pronounced key-lawayuh) has been in almost continuous activity since May of 1969.

It has had five distinct eruptions since then, with the first one lasting 29 months.

And, they said, the worst may not be over yet.

"As Kilauea entered its fifth year of activity, the eruption waned to a relatively low level," they said, "but expectations are that a new more vigorous phase of this eruption will soon get underway."

Dr. D.W. Peterson, chief scientist at the USGS's Hawaiian Volcano Observatory at Kilauea, said "abrupt changes in the nature of the eruptive activity can be expected at any time."

Peterson said the lava, flowing out at the average rate of 300,000 cubic yards per day over the past four years, has covered parts of the Naulu Forest, threatening some species of rare Hawaiian plants and trees with extinction.

Budget Hearing

The Alto-Richardson Bay Fire District board will hold its final hearing on its 1973-74 budget Friday at 8 p.m. at the Alto fire station on Shell Road, according to Chief Carl O. Heynen Jr. The tentative budget is $261,199.

Presidency Hint In Connally Talk

PALM [illegible], Fla. (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary John Connally held a two-hour meeting this weekend with billionaire John D. MacArthur and two Florida GOP leaders, and the possibility of Connally's seeking the presidency was discussed, the Palm Beach Post reported today.

One of those at the meeting said it was an indefinite talk and it would be "presumptuous" for the former Texas governor to elaborate about any such plans.

Sheriff Deputies Get 4 Pct. Raise

A new one-year contract, calling for a 4 per cent salary hike for sheriff's deputies, was approved unanimously yesterday by Marin County supervisors.

The contract, retroactive to July 15, has been the subject of lengthy negotiations between the county and the Marin County Deputy Sheriff's Association.

Besides the salary increase, the yearly uniform allowance was increased from the former $200 to a new $240 and the monthly contribution for health insurance from $38 per employee to $43.

Earlier this year most other county employees were given a 5 per cent salary hike as called for in the three-year contract approved in 1971 with the Marin County Employees' Association.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

APPOINTMENTS — Reappointed Ray White and John McNear the county board of (building permit) appeals and appointed Lisa Maibach of Kentfield, a student at Redwood High School, to the county youth commission.

RESTROOMS — Appropriated $600 for rental of two portable restrooms to be located at Inverness. Inverness businessmen have complained that their facilities cannot handle the number of visitors traveling through the community to the seashore.

REVENUE SHARING — Voted unanimously to oppose a bill in the state Legislature which would give cities a portion of the federal revenue sharing funds now given the counties.

PAYMENT — Authorized members of the county redevelopment agency board to be paid $15 per meeting for two meetings a month.

STREET REPAIRS — Tabled discussion on county payments to cities for road repairs near county line exceeding the payments made through the $200,000 Urban Thoroughfare Program, which allocates county road funds to cities.

RABIES — Continued until next week discussion of Marin County Veterinary Medical Association suggestions regarding Marin rabies control and laboratory testing.

DREDGING —Allocated $20,000 from the North Bay Front Park fund to assist County Service Area No. 6 in dredging Gallinas Creek for recreational boating use.

RECREATION COMMITTEE — Urged the Department of the Interior speedily to approve appointments to the Golden Gate National Recreation Area Advisory Committee, and to include as many Marin residents as possible on the 15-member body.

THERAPIST — Allocated $1,760 as the county's share of the salary of an additional physical therapist for the Crippled Children's Program at the Forest Meadows Development Center, contingent upon county schools and state officials allocating agreed shares of the cost of the therapist.

ACCOUNTING — Routinely made final fiscal 1972-73 adjustments in funds in the salary savings account, road fund, contingency fund, maintenance, and capital outlay savings fund.

CONTRACT — Approved a $3,200 contract with planning consultant Steven E. Chaum of Sebastopol to complete the Strawberry community plan he worked on while employed by the county. Chaum left the county after his "extra-hire position" was not funded in the 1973-74 budget.

APPEAL — Upheld the appeal of Beverly Grant to keep three horses at her home in Lagunitas. The planning commission had limited the number to two.

PIER — Voted 4-to-1, Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini opposing, to approve a 300-foot-long pier as part of a controversial condominium and restaurant project proposed for the Tomales Bay shoreline near Marshall. The project is backed by Herbert Angress.

Lucas Valley Issue Back To Planners

New life was pumped yesterday into development of the Big Rock and Foster ranches in Upper Lucas Valley as county supervisors rejected a recommendation the lands be placed in A-60 agricultural zoning, which would limit the number of dwellings to one per 60 acres.

Supervisors instead returned the rezoning proposal to the planning commission with a recommendation it consider three to six times that density, a zoning between A-20 and A-10. The land currently is in a holding zone.

The planning commission, following the advice of the planning department, last month recommended A-60 zoning for the two ranches which total 1,790 acres. Under that zoning, no more than 30 homes could be built.

San Rafael attorney Roderick P. Martinelli, representing the property owners, argued yesterday that it would be unfair to place the low-density zoning on his clients' lands since nearby ranches to the east and west carry higher density zoning.

He outlined plans by the property owners to develop 163 ranchettes of three to 10 acres each, though building would be permitted on only one acre of each ranchette. The remaining lands would be "private open space," he said.

Planning Director Werner von Gundell said the proposed plan exceeded the population growth limits of the countywide general plan. He later acknowledged his department had endorsed development of the land prior to adoption of the countywide plan.

Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini supported the planning commission's recommendation, saying to reject the A-60 zoning would be disregarding the recently approved countywide plan.

Others appeared to agree with Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste who said he considered the two ranches to fall within a "transition zone" between the eastern urban corridor and the inland rural corridor of the countywide plan.

He said he considered the proposed development "not only reasonable but in the public interest" by preserving open space.

The matter was referred back to the planning commission with instructions to investigate clustering of the ranchettes and to check water and sewage conditions on the ranch lands.

Supervisor Giacomini opposed the action.

Lanes To Close

The state Division of Highways announced today that traffic will be reduced to one lane east and westbound from the west gate of San Quentin Prison to the Larkspur City limits from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow to permit widening and realignment of the roadway.

Sheriff Deputies Get 4 Pct. Raise

A new one-year contract, calling for a 4 per cent salary hike for sheriff's deputies, was approved unanimously yesterday by Marin County supervisors.

The contract, retroactive to July 15, has been the subject of lengthy negotiations between the county and the Marin County Deputy Sheriff's Association.

Besides the salary increase, the yearly uniform allowance was increased from the former $200 to a new $240 and the monthly contribution for health insurance from $38 per employee to $43.

Earlier this year most other county employees were given a 5 per cent salary hike as called for in the three-year contract approved in 1971 with the Marin County Employees' Association.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

APPOINTMENTS — Reappointed Ray White and John McNear the county board of (building permit) appeals and appointed Lisa Maibach of Kentfield, a student at Redwood High School, to the county youth commission.

RESTROOMS — Appropriated $600 for rental of two portable restrooms to be located at Inverness. Inverness businessmen have complained that their facilities cannot handle the number of visitors traveling through the community to the seashore.

REVENUE SHARING — Voted unanimously to oppose a bill in the state Legislature which would give cities a portion of the federal revenue sharing funds now given the counties.

PAYMENT — Authorized members of the county redevelopment agency board to be paid $15 per meeting for two meetings a month.

STREET REPAIRS — Tabled discussion on county payments to cities for road repairs near county line exceeding the payments made through the $200,000 Urban Thoroughfare Program, which allocates county road funds to cities.

RABIES — Continued until next week discussion of Marin County Veterinary Medical Association suggestions regarding Marin rabies control and laboratory testing.

DREDGING —Allocated $20,000 from the North Bay Front Park fund to assist County Service Area No. 6 in dredging Gallinas Creek for recreational boating use.

RECREATION COMMITTEE — Urged the Department of the Interior speedily to approve appointments to the Golden Gate National Recreation Area Advisory Committee, and to include as many Marin residents as possible on the 15-member body.

THERAPIST — Allocated $1,760 as the county's share of the salary of an additional physical therapist for the Crippled Children's Program at the Forest Meadows Development Center, contingent upon county schools and state officials allocating agreed shares of the cost of the therapist.

ACCOUNTING — Routinely made final fiscal 1972-73 adjustments in funds in the salary savings account, road fund, contingency fund, maintenance, and capital outlay savings fund.

CONTRACT — Approved a $3,200 contract with planning consultant Steven E. Chaum of Sebastopol to complete the Strawberry community plan he worked on while employed by the county. Chaum left the county after his "extra-hire position" was not funded in the 1973-74 budget.

APPEAL — Upheld the appeal of Beverly Grant to keep three horses at her home in Lagunitas. The planning commission had limited the number to two.

PIER — Voted 4-to-1, Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini opposing, to approve a 300-foot-long pier as part of a controversial condominium and restaurant project proposed for the Tomales Bay shoreline near Marshall. The project is backed by Herbert Angress.

Heir Is Sought; Reward Offered

A former Sausalito resident said to be heir to between $2,700 and $3,000 is being sought by a San Francisco firm in connection with the inheritance.

Don E. Crutcher, who formerly used the address, RFD 1, Box 130A, Sausalito, is being sought by the American Equities Group. Anyone with information regarding Crutcher's whereabouts may write to American Equities at P. O. Box 27246, San Francisco, said William Greene of the firm.

Greene said a $25 reward will be paid for information directly leading to location of Crutcher or his heirs.

Lucas Valley Issue Back To Planners

New life was pumped yesterday into development of the Big Rock and Foster ranches in Upper Lucas Valley as county supervisors rejected a recommendation the lands be placed in A-60 agricultural zoning, which would limit the number of dwellings to one per 60 acres.

Supervisors instead returned the rezoning proposal to the planning commission with a recommendation it consider three to six times that density, a zoning between A-20 and A-10. The land currently is in a holding zone.

The planning commission, following the advice of the planning department, last month recommended A-60 zoning for the two ranches which total 1,790 acres. Under that zoning, no more than 30 homes could be built.

San Rafael attorney Roderick P. Martinelli, representing the property owners, argued yesterday that it would be unfair to place the low-density zoning on his clients' lands since nearby ranches to the east and west carry higher density zoning.

He outlined plans by the property owners to develop 163 ranchettes of three to 10 acres each, though building would be permitted on only one acre of each ranchette. The remaining lands would be "private open space," he said.

Planning Director Werner von Gundell said the proposed plan exceeded the population growth limits of the countywide general plan. He later acknowledged his department had endorsed development of the land prior to adoption of the countywide plan.

Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini supported the planning commission's recommendation, saying to reject the A-60 zoning would be disregarding the recently approved countywide plan.

Others appeared to agree with Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste who said he considered the two ranches to fall within a "transition zone" between the eastern urban corridor and the inland rural corridor of the countywide plan.

He said he considered the proposed development "not only reasonable but in the public interest" by preserving open space.

The matter was referred back to the planning commission with instructions to investigate clustering of the ranchettes and to check water and sewage conditions on the ranch lands.

Supervisor Giacomini opposed the action.

Lanes To Close

The state Division of Highways announced today that traffic will be reduced to one lane east and westbound from the west gate of San Quentin Prison to the Larkspur City limits from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow to permit widening and realignment of the roadway.

President Exposes Deeply Disturbing Questions

The confrontation that many in Washington dreaded has arrived.

President Nixon has refused to release White House documents and tapes of Oval Office conversations to either the Senate's Ervin committee or Archibald C. Cox, the special Watergate prosecutor appointed by the President himself.

And both Cox and the Senate committee have subpoenad the papers and tapes.

Mr. Nixon based his refusal on the doctrines of executive privilege and separation of powers. In the case of Cox's request, he cited the separation between executive and judicial departments; in that of the Ervin committee, between executive and legislative.

The federal courts thus may be handed an extremely sticky problem.

The courts are always reticent about getting involved in disputes between the executive and legislative branches, so the Ervin committee's challenge is sticky enough. But far stickier is that posed by Cox's demand; for in refusing to release the records to Cox on the basis of separation of powers between judicial and executive branches, the President in effect has put himself above the courts — since they are part of the judiciary.

BEYOND THE LEGAL and constitutional questions involved, though, are considerations deeper and more important to the nation than any legal question.

Senator Ervin raised one of them in commenting on the President's not-unexpected turndown of the committee's request. Does presidential privilege, he asked rhetorically, include the right to withhold information about the commission of a crime? He answered himself that it does not.

Further, does it empower the President to lie to the legislators and the American people — as Dwight D. Eisenhower did when a U-2 spy plane was shot down in Russia on May 1, 1960; as John F. Kennedy did when U.S.-trained forces were transported in U.S. vessels to the Bay of Pigs in April, 1961; as Richard M. Nixon did when, announcing the Cambodia invasion on May 1, 1970, he claimed we had never before made any move against "Communist sanctuaries" in Cambodia?

Eisenhower and Kennedy soon admitted their falsehoods. That regarding Cambodia has been admitted only recently by the Defense Department, and not yet by the President.

If the President is permitted to lie to the legislators and the people, are they precluded from exposing the lie? Are they denied the legal processes for ferreting out the truth — because the President is involved? Is presidential privilege so broad that it bars inquiry into whether the White House has told the truth (as, in the instances mentioned and others, it has sometimes failed to do)?

IF SO, the man in the White House is not merely a President. He is an autocrat with the "divine right of kings." He can do no wrong. He can make his own moral code. He is answerable to nobody.

By refusing cooperation with efforts to uncover crimes committed in his election campaign, Mr. Nixon has exposed all these deep and disturbing questions.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND: Watergate Causes

WASHINGTON — Congress and commentators will soon begin considering what can be done to prevent future Watergates. That will be welcome because prevention is always better than punishment.

But before we can avert another Watergate, we need to find out what caused the first one.

Let me cite one clue:

TWO DAYS AFTER the Watergate burglary and bugging, a veteran Washington reporter (not this writer), sympathetic to the President, was talking with a top White House aide on other matters. At the end, the aide asked the reporter: "What should we do about Watergate?"

The reporter replied: "Is there any doubt? Every day that passes without all the facts being laid on the line, the consequences get worse and worse. If the President doesn't know the facts as to who approved it, who financed it, who is responsible, then he better get the truth fast and tell it all."

Probably this wise suggestion was never passed on to the only man who could have acted on it.

But why should it have been necessary to pass it along? If a Washington reporter was sensitive enough to know instantly what had to be done to deal effectively with the Watergate scandal, why wasn't the President sensitive enough to see it?

THE ANSWER is that the President is isolated — and doesn't know it. Not isolated in the conventional sense of not knowing about affairs; not isolated from the news, good and bad. He has more knowledge of most events than any person in the nation.

But the President is isolated from what he can't afford to be isolated from. He is perpetually and increasingly isolated from the candid, plain-speaking, blunt and honest opinions of those who surround him —or else he is surrounded by the wrong people.

No one talks back to the President. It's too bad. It's dangerous. It's unfair to the President and the President is unfair to himself by tolerating — perhaps even encouraging — this kind of isolation.

TAKE THE MATTER of White House press conferences. The press can get along without press conferences, but the President can't. He needs them, not just as a means of communication to the public but as a means of communication to the President.

I know of no one who knows more about Presidents and press conferences than George Reedy, a philosopher and practical politician who has spent his life in Washington as correspondent, legislative aide and press secretary to President Lyndon B. Johnson. Here is the way he puts it in his book, "The Twilight of the Presidency":

"The significant impact of the press upon the President lies not in its critical reflections, but in its capacity to tell him what he is doing as seen through other eyes. This is a service which, though little appreciated, is indispensable, as it will rarely, if ever, be performed by any other medium."

TO HAVE ISOLATED himself from press conferences, to have surrounded himself, for the most part, with inexperienced aides whose motto was "don't tell the President anything you can help and don't talk back to him," and to have preferred to fire a cabinet member (former Secy. of Interior Walter Hickel) rather than listen to him — these were primary causes of Watergate.

I have come to the conviction that from here on every President needs more qualified people willing to talk candidly and forthrightly with him — with respect but without awe.

This is why I think the need is for more press conferences.

This is why I think it would be a great boon to adopt one element of parliamentary government and have a periodical "question period" in Congress where members of the cabinet would have to answer questions from Congress face to face.

The more powerful the President has become, the more isolated he has become. If the President is to remain powerful, he can't afford to remain so isolated from those whose frank counter-opinions every President crucially needs.

How Senator Collier Distributed Political 'Pork' In Secret

By RUS WALTON

Something's gotta be done about that joint legislative conference committee on the budget — the one that puts the final grab on our tax money.

The way things work, unscrupulous or arrogant politicans can use that procedure — that combines secrecy and power — for their own designs. It's costing us millions and millions of dollars.

Look what happened this time around.

SEN. RANDOLPH COLLIER, D-Yreka, was chairman of this year's joint conference committee on the budget. That's the one that meets in secret, behind locked doors.

Collier used his post to force through a $42 million appropriation as the first step toward building his memorial — the twin 17-story legislative towers: $21 million for an initial payment on the Collier Towers, $21 million to refurbish the 105-year-old capitol.

He converted the Bagley Conservation Fund into a giant pork barrel and used it as a vending machine to buy friends and influence votes.

(Let me tell you about the Bagley Conservation Fund. It was a one-time, non-recurring revenue dispenser tacked on the 1971 "mini-tax" act. It provided that $40 million of an anticipated one-time $150 million tax withholding "windfall" would be used for conservation projects.

(Senator Collier changed all that. His control section of the 1973 budget act virtually guarantees that the Bagley fund will be a permanent pork barrel. So much for the way "one-time" funds are given eternal life.)

WHEN THE 1973-74 joint conference committee went into secret session, the budget contained $9.8 million in capital outlay money for 25 beach and park projects. Those projects were to be financed by the Bagley fund. Nothing wrong with that.

But, lo and behold, when the conference committee's first budget report slipped out of secret session, $36 million had been transferred from the general fund to the Bagley Conservation Fund and the original $9.8 million for 25 projects had been increased to $54 million for 39 projects.

The 14 "new" projects just happened to be located in the districts of senators who supported the budget and, of course, the initial appropriation for the Collier towers.

BUT COLLIER wasn't out of the woods. He was still short of the 27 votes needed to get the budget through the Senate. Some of his colleagues were not sold on his memorial.

So, back to the pork barrel — and those secret conferences.

This time another $5.5 million was transferred from the general fund to the Bagley fund and the original $9.8 million grew to $58 million. Three new projects were added: the South Carlsbad parkland acquisition — $1.5 million; the Empire Mine historical site — $1.5 million, and the Mount Diablo parklands — $1 million.

In another deal, $3 million for the acquisition of the Borderland park in San Diego County was switched to the purchase of the Simi Valley (Strathern) park property in Ventura County.

The senators whose districts benefit from those projects voted "yes" on the budget — and the Collier towers. Whether Collier's pork barrel influenced their votes is open to conjecture.

Such a procedure must be challenged. It cannot stand the light of day; it thrives in the dark and on secret deals.

Nixonville Isn't Much Of A Place, But . . .

NIXONVILLE, S.C. — This does not qualify as a town. South Carolina Highway 90 does not even widen as it runs by. You whip past bean fields simmering, farmhouses overhung with mauve crape myrtle grown into trees. An old frame mansion decays back off the road while a family lives in a house trailer out front, its motorcycle parked near the door. A service station on the left, the Tilley Swamp Baptist Church on the right, and you are through Nixonville before you know you have arrived.

Still it is a spot on the map, and it endures in memory of the Nixon family that remains thick and busy in this northeast corner of the state — one chartering a fishing boat out of Little River along the intracoastal waterway, another an M.D. with a neat house beside the road to Cherry Grove.

OF COURSE, none is so well known as that presidential son of another branch of the family, the one that branched west instead of south. Yet he inevitably comes to mind here, the more so now when the subject of his own place in history is so deeply in doubt.

Many towns and counties are named for Presidents —dozens for Grant, even a couple for Harding. Conceivably Whittier or San Clemente or Key Biscayne will be renamed for this one someday. The greater ones have granite monuments memorializing them in the national capital. But outside those giants, an average President must know that the most lasting impression of him will be rendered not by the cartographers or architects, but by the historians.

"The Arms Limitation Conference through which Harding thought to secure his administration's name in history is no more than a footnote, one of the futile peace gestures in the interval between World War I and World War II. His administration is recalled, when all else is blurred over, through the name of an eroded sandstone rock shaped somewhat like a teapot and perched over a dome of oil about 50 miles north of Casper, Wyo., Teapot Dome. . ."

IT IS ALMOST a reflex to envision another historian a half-century from now substituting "detente with Moscow and Peking" for the first words of that paragraph, and "a dragon-toothed apartment-office complex one mile west of the White House" where it fits. The broad parallels between Teapot Dome and Watergate are obvious. They also hold up under closer examination.

Teapot Dome symbolized the scandals of the Harding administration, but by no means covered them all. So Watergate is the handy word used to refer to all the crimes connected to the Nixon administeation — but in this case it is so inadequate as to be seriously misleading.

Defendants in the many current cases and noninvolved supporters of the President cling to that single word as if to a life buoy. Taken in its narrowest meaning, it refers to one break-in of the Democratic headquarters on one early morning in June, 1972. And in the minds of the most determined Nixon supporters, if the President or any of the other accused can dissemble skillfully enough to make it doubtful that they knew about that break-in in advance, then they are innocent of "Watergate."

IN FACT, that break-in is no more than one rotten scrap on the vast garbage heap of campaign scandal now being explored. That is why I think the television announcers, headline writers and even Sam Ervin himself are mistaken to keep saying "Watergate" when they mean much more.

To continue the parallel, Mr. Nixon is vulnerable at many more points than Harding was. Harding personally was never found guilty of anything except ignorance, and that, of course, is what our current President is pleading.

The law has its own view of ignorance. In literature, Christopher Marlowe told us that "there is no sin but ignorance." Robert Browning said "ignorance is not innocence but sin," and it is on such versions that historians base their judgments.

That is why the name Harding conjures up Teapot Dome, and why Mr. Nixon today might happily settle for his memorial to be a sun-baked hamlet with crape myrtle trees like Nixonville, S.C., rather than the "Watergate" that dominates his present and very likely his future.

Why Is Nothing Done To Open Crystal Springs?

Two years ago we were enjoying fresh spring water from Crystal Springs, located on the highway in Samuel P. Taylor State Park, Marin County.

In the spring of 1972 it was closed, which is usual in the early part of the season, because of winter rain runoff. It was usually opened after the runoff when the water became clean enough for human consumption. That spring and summer, I called Environmental Control at the San Rafael Civic Center at least a dozen times to see if it had opened yet and each time the answer was . . . "not yet". It never opened last year and I was told that because of contamination above, at the spring, the water was not good enough.

This year, I again called to see when the spring would be opened and was told that it was closed permanently. I was further told that they didn't have enough money to enclose the spring from intruders.

There were hundreds and perhaps thousands who drank water from Crystal Springs. Surely there is enough money available to correct this problem, especially since a new fence was installed at the road and a new pipe to bring water there was installed two years ago. With fluoridation being crammed down the throats of many who don't wish it, I feel it is the least that can be done.

Americans Shamefully Crucify Their President

The manner in which some Americans crucify their President is not only shameful, but unsurpassed for cruelty. Small wonder our Presidents are forced into defense techniques and manipulations. Small wonder too, that peoples of the world have replaced faith in our system with contempt for us and our dollar.

From the beginning, Watergate has been poorly disguised as an investigation. It is, in reality, a "Roman circus" progressively adapted to "get the President" and a growing stain on Democratic principle. It has irreparably damaged the administrative branch of government to the dubious glorification of a weak, directionless, and unproductive Congress —leaving us with the disastrous prospect of stagnation or chaotic retrogression.

Over the years, the undeniable and indefensible bias of our three largest TV networks has been largely to blame for the tragic disillusionment of many Americans. Network propaganda for ultra-liberalism, accomplished quite easily by the selective presentation of news supporting their viewpoints to the near-total exclusion of counter viewpoint has earned them a return to the Mayflower principle.

Compared with the networks powers for fostering discontent, a President's power to build is weak indeed, and this without a single vote of the people.

Trained Officers May Leave For Better Pay

We would like to take this opportunity to let the citizens of Fairfax know the position of the Fairfax police officers in regards to the failure of the town council to give the police a fair wage this year.

Although the town council did re-evaluate their offer and will give us an additional 2½ per cent wage increase in January, 1974, to bring us closer to the county average, we will still be well below the average for the next six months.

We are very concerned that by not paying a fair salary the citizens of Fairfax will really be the ones that may suffer the most due to the possibility of losing trained officers to better paying departments. When a citizen calls for police assistance he obviously wants a police officer who is trained and has the experience necessary to handle the situation. To retain these trained men the town must pay a reasonable wage, therefore the town must not be allowed to slip back into the position of being one of the lowest paid departments in the county.

The department has a group of fine men as police officers now, and we will continue to give the citizens the best police protection we can provide.

Our association will be involved in various activities throughout this next year to improve the position of the police officers, and we request the support of the citizens of Fairfax in our endeavors.

Senate's Action On Pipeline Negates Own Environmental Law

(Reprinted from Christian Science Monitor)

The Alaskan pipeline may have been passed by the Senate but the controversy isn't ended.

Not that the House won't follow the Senate lead. The House traditionally is more responsive to actions that have economic impact. . .

Laying aside the possible negative effects of building the pipeline through Alaska and transporting the oil thence by tanker, the Senate action in itself was unfortunate. The Senate in effect declared it was itself the judge of the environmental impact of the pipeline. It exempted the pipeline from the impact standards of the 1970 environmental law.

Ultimate evaluation of such issues is a court prerogative. Indeed, the courts could object to this congressional arrogation of authority and embroil the pipeline in an even deeper legal tangle.

The senate is substituting a declaration that environmental legalities are met for a demonstration that this is so under law. It certainly is ironic to see a house of Congress, which has objected so strongly to the executive branch's attempts at interpreting the law, follow this practice themselves.

Either you have environmental protection procedures or you don't. Either you require environmental impact studies be made and have them susceptible to court challenge or you don't. Under the 1970 law, the pipeline builders would have had to prove that the route they planned, through Alaska, would have posed the least environmental hazard among possible alternatives — and thus less than one through Canada.

One can grant, for the sake of argument, that the Alaska oil will be needed and that the environmental risks are worth the taking and still object to the Senate decision to bend the environmental defense mechanism to its wishes.

The Senate may have made the ecology of environmental law as vulnerable as the physical environment the law was meant to protect.

How Senator Collier Distributed Political 'Pork' In Secret

By RUS WALTON

Something's gotta be done about that joint legislative conference committee on the budget — the one that puts the final grab on our tax money.

The way things work, unscrupulous or arrogant politicans can use that procedure — that combines secrecy and power — for their own designs. It's costing us millions and millions of dollars.

(Let me tell you about the Bagley Conservation Fund. It was a one-time, non-recurring revenue dispenser tacked on the 1971 "mini-tax" act. It provided that $40 million of an anticipated one-time $150 million tax withholding "windfall" would be used for conservation projects.

(Senator Collier changed all that. His control section of the 1973 budget act virtually guarantees that the Bagley fund will be a permanent pork barrel. So much for the way "one-time" funds are given eternal life.)

WHEN THE 1973-74 joint conference committee went into secret session, the budget contained $9.8 million in capital outlay money for 25 beach and park projects. Those projects were to be financed by the Bagley fund. Nothing wrong with that.

But, lo and behold, when the conference committee's first budget report slipped out of secret session, $36 million had been transferred from the general fund to the Bagley Conservation Fund and the original $9.8 million for 25 projects had been increased to $54 million for 39 projects.

The 14 "new" projects just happened to be located in the districts of senators who supported the budget and, of course, the initial appropriation for the Collier towers.

BUT COLLIER wasn't out of the woods. He was still short of the 27 votes needed to get the budget through the Senate. Some of his colleagues were not sold on his memorial.

So, back to the pork barrel — and those secret conferences.

This time another $5.5 million was transferred from the general fund to the Bagley fund and the original $9.8 million grew to $58 million. Three new projects were added: the South Carlsbad parkland acquisition — $1.5 million; the Empire Mine historical site — $1.5 million, and the Mount Diablo parklands — $1 million.

In another deal, $3 million for the acquisition of the Borderland park in San Diego County was switched to the purchase of the Simi Valley (Strathern) park property in Ventura County.

The senators whose districts benefit from those projects voted "yes" on the budget — and the Collier towers. Whether Collier's pork barrel influenced their votes is open to conjecture.

Such a procedure must be challenged. It cannot stand the light of day; it thrives in the dark and on secret deals.

Nixonville Isn't Much Of A Place, But . . .

NIXONVILLE, S.C. — This does not qualify as a town. South Carolina Highway 90 does not even widen as it runs by. You whip past bean fields simmering, farmhouses overhung with mauve crape myrtle grown into trees. An old frame mansion decays back off the road while a family lives in a house trailer out front, its motorcycle parked near the door. A service station on the left, the Tilley Swamp Baptist Church on the right, and you are through Nixonville before you know you have arrived.

Still it is a spot on the map, and it endures in memory of the Nixon family that remains thick and busy in this northeast corner of the state — one chartering a fishing boat out of Little River along the intracoastal waterway, another an M.D. with a neat house beside the road to Cherry Grove.

OF COURSE, none is so well known as that presidential son of another branch of the family, the one that branched west instead of south. Yet he inevitably comes to mind here, the more so now when the subject of his own place in history is so deeply in doubt.

Many towns and counties are named for Presidents —dozens for Grant, even a couple for Harding. Conceivably Whittier or San Clemente or Key Biscayne will be renamed for this one someday. The greater ones have granite monuments memorializing them in the national capital. But outside those giants, an average President must know that the most lasting impression of him will be rendered not by the cartographers or architects, but by the historians.

"The Arms Limitation Conference through which Harding thought to secure his administration's name in history is no more than a footnote, one of the futile peace gestures in the interval between World War I and World War II. His administration is recalled, when all else is blurred over, through the name of an eroded sandstone rock shaped somewhat like a teapot and perched over a dome of oil about 50 miles north of Casper, Wyo., Teapot Dome. . ."

IT IS ALMOST a reflex to envision another historian a half-century from now substituting "detente with Moscow and Peking" for the first words of that paragraph, and "a dragon-toothed apartment-office complex one mile west of the White House" where it fits. The broad parallels between Teapot Dome and Watergate are obvious. They also hold up under closer examination.

Teapot Dome symbolized the scandals of the Harding administration, but by no means covered them all. So Watergate is the handy word used to refer to all the crimes connected to the Nixon administeation — but in this case it is so inadequate as to be seriously misleading.

Defendants in the many current cases and noninvolved supporters of the President cling to that single word as if to a life buoy. Taken in its narrowest meaning, it refers to one break-in of the Democratic headquarters on one early morning in June, 1972. And in the minds of the most determined Nixon supporters, if the President or any of the other accused can dissemble skillfully enough to make it doubtful that they knew about that break-in in advance, then they are innocent of "Watergate."

IN FACT, that break-in is no more than one rotten scrap on the vast garbage heap of campaign scandal now being explored. That is why I think the television announcers, headline writers and even Sam Ervin himself are mistaken to keep saying "Watergate" when they mean much more.

To continue the parallel, Mr. Nixon is vulnerable at many more points than Harding was. Harding personally was never found guilty of anything except ignorance, and that, of course, is what our current President is pleading.

The law has its own view of ignorance. In literature, Christopher Marlowe told us that "there is no sin but ignorance." Robert Browning said "ignorance is not innocence but sin," and it is on such versions that historians base their judgments.

That is why the name Harding conjures up Teapot Dome, and why Mr. Nixon today might happily settle for his memorial to be a sun-baked hamlet with crape myrtle trees like Nixonville, S.C., rather than the "Watergate" that dominates his present and very likely his future.

Why Is Nothing Done To Open Crystal Springs?

Two years ago we were enjoying fresh spring water from Crystal Springs, located on the highway in Samuel P. Taylor State Park, Marin County.

In the spring of 1972 it was closed, which is usual in the early part of the season, because of winter rain runoff. It was usually opened after the runoff when the water became clean enough for human consumption. That spring and summer, I called Environmental Control at the San Rafael Civic Center at least a dozen times to see if it had opened yet and each time the answer was . . . "not yet". It never opened last year and I was told that because of contamination above, at the spring, the water was not good enough.

This year, I again called to see when the spring would be opened and was told that it was closed permanently. I was further told that they didn't have enough money to enclose the spring from intruders.

There were hundreds and perhaps thousands who drank water from Crystal Springs. Surely there is enough money available to correct this problem, especially since a new fence was installed at the road and a new pipe to bring water there was installed two years ago. With fluoridation being crammed down the throats of many who don't wish it, I feel it is the least that can be done.

Americans Shamefully Crucify Their President

The manner in which some Americans crucify their President is not only shameful, but unsurpassed for cruelty. Small wonder our Presidents are forced into defense techniques and manipulations. Small wonder too, that peoples of the world have replaced faith in our system with contempt for us and our dollar.

From the beginning, Watergate has been poorly disguised as an investigation. It is, in reality, a "Roman circus" progressively adapted to "get the President" and a growing stain on Democratic principle. It has irreparably damaged the administrative branch of government to the dubious glorification of a weak, directionless, and unproductive Congress —leaving us with the disastrous prospect of stagnation or chaotic retrogression.

Over the years, the undeniable and indefensible bias of our three largest TV networks has been largely to blame for the tragic disillusionment of many Americans. Network propaganda for ultra-liberalism, accomplished quite easily by the selective presentation of news supporting their viewpoints to the near-total exclusion of counter viewpoint has earned them a return to the Mayflower principle.

Compared with the networks powers for fostering discontent, a President's power to build is weak indeed, and this without a single vote of the people.

Trained Officers May Leave For Better Pay

We would like to take this opportunity to let the citizens of Fairfax know the position of the Fairfax police officers in regards to the failure of the town council to give the police a fair wage this year.

Although the town council did re-evaluate their offer and will give us an additional 2½ per cent wage increase in January, 1974, to bring us closer to the county average, we will still be well below the average for the next six months.

We are very concerned that by not paying a fair salary the citizens of Fairfax will really be the ones that may suffer the most due to the possibility of losing trained officers to better paying departments. When a citizen calls for police assistance he obviously wants a police officer who is trained and has the experience necessary to handle the situation. To retain these trained men the town must pay a reasonable wage, therefore the town must not be allowed to slip back into the position of being one of the lowest paid departments in the county.

The department has a group of fine men as police officers now, and we will continue to give the citizens the best police protection we can provide.

Our association will be involved in various activities throughout this next year to improve the position of the police officers, and we request the support of the citizens of Fairfax in our endeavors.

Senate's Action On Pipeline Negates Own Environmental Law

(Reprinted from Christian Science Monitor)

The Alaskan pipeline may have been passed by the Senate but the controversy isn't ended.

Not that the House won't follow the Senate lead. The House traditionally is more responsive to actions that have economic impact. . .

Laying aside the possible negative effects of building the pipeline through Alaska and transporting the oil thence by tanker, the Senate action in itself was unfortunate. The Senate in effect declared it was itself the judge of the environmental impact of the pipeline. It exempted the pipeline from the impact standards of the 1970 environmental law.

Ultimate evaluation of such issues is a court prerogative. Indeed, the courts could object to this congressional arrogation of authority and embroil the pipeline in an even deeper legal tangle.

The senate is substituting a declaration that environmental legalities are met for a demonstration that this is so under law. It certainly is ironic to see a house of Congress, which has objected so strongly to the executive branch's attempts at interpreting the law, follow this practice themselves.

Either you have environmental protection procedures or you don't. Either you require environmental impact studies be made and have them susceptible to court challenge or you don't. Under the 1970 law, the pipeline builders would have had to prove that the route they planned, through Alaska, would have posed the least environmental hazard among possible alternatives — and thus less than one through Canada.

One can grant, for the sake of argument, that the Alaska oil will be needed and that the environmental risks are worth the taking and still object to the Senate decision to bend the environmental defense mechanism to its wishes.

The Senate may have made the ecology of environmental law as vulnerable as the physical environment the law was meant to protect.

Rising costs of nursing care make it difficult for all us hypochondriacs to enjoy our illnesses.

Nurses may be underpaid, but look at the fringe benefits! These include dates with handsome young interns and the chance to marry rich old doctors.

These days a nurse has to know everything: medical routines, labor negotiating techniques, and how to perform on television soap operas.

Riles Attacks Hodgepodge Of 'Special Education'

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

California's multitudinous "special education" programs are a hodgepodge of overlapping services which often don't reach the chindren who need them — and nobody knows whether they work anyhow.

This is not an indictment by the writer of this column. It is the studied conclusion of Wilson C. Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, in a "Report on Program Evaluation in Special Education" presented to the July meeting of the State Board of Education.

Riles's report, prepared by Leslie Brinegar and Alexander I. Law of his office, cites five categories of special education, in all of which other state agencies plus the federal government are involved along with the department of education and local school systems. This results, says the report, in "jurisdictional conflict regarding the use of funds and competition for pupils."

THIS OVERLAPPING and comflict, the report goes on, is complicated by the fact that data is gathered in assorted ways, under varying guidelines, about each of the many different programs within the five main categories: education of physically handicapped, mentally retarded, educationally handicapped, severely handicapped, and mentally gifted.

"A substantial amount of quantitative data" is gathered by the state, says the report, but "little qualitative information . . . is available on a statewide basis." In other words, nobody knows how well the programs work.

This, it notes, has resulted in "mounting concern" by legislative committees and other state departments — as well as the department of education. And the report indicates that the taxpayers may not be getting their money's worth because the "disjointed and non-reinforcing efforts" result in "minimum effective use of funds."

SUPERINTENDENT RILES proposes to do something about it.

Specifically, he proposes to assembly "baseline evaluation information" on existing programs, then require all plans for special education programs to include evaluation procedures. These, he specifies, should "use management-by-objective and report-by-exception procedures."

Riles outlines 11 steps for developing and implementing a master plan for special education evaluation. The aim is to assure that the money — which runs into very sizable amounts, state, federal and local — goes to bring the right kinds of special education to the right children in the right places. Also, it is to assure that only effective programs are continued.

Under the present complicated and largely unevaluated system, says the report, pupils are denied access to programs they need, inadequate diagnosis leads to inadequate placement, most of the programs are isolated from the main stream of education, and they result in "artificial categorization" of many children.

"SPECIAL EDUCATION" is the darling of federal and state legislators. They are quick to appropriate money to "solve the problem" (usually requiring some local matching funds) — but seldom with any real idea of whether it even attacks the problem it is supposed to solve.

Making sense out of this hodgepodge will require a lot of work — and, presumably, some money. Not the least of the problems will be conflicting requirements of the federal government applying to various kinds of programs. But Superintendent Riles has committed himself to have his department do the job.

It won't happen overnight, though. His goal is to have all programs evaluated and the special education master plan reassessed in light of the findings by the fiscal year 1980-81.

A Crackdown On Bicycle Regulations

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The California Highway Patrol has announced two programs to reverse the increase in bicycle deaths and create safety consciousness in bicycle riders.

Walter Pudinski, Highway patrol commissioner, ordered an increase in enforcement of bicycle regulations after bicycle deaths increased from 20 during the first quarter of 1973 to 40 in the second quarter.

Bicycle violators under 15 years old will not be cited but a letter will be sent to their parents. Warnings and citations will be issued to the 15-to-17 age group and riders over 18 face the full range of enforcement actions.

The patrol will also issue safety stickers to youngsters for bicycles in an attempt to create safety consciousness after checking brakes, light reflectors, height of handlebars and effectiveness of lights.

The program will be started immediately but will receive added emphasis when officers deliver classroom lectures on bike safety after school resumes and conduct bike inspections to students requesting them.

State Health Boss Fears Polio Woes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Health Director J. M. Stubblebine warned yesterday that the number of California youngsters receiving polio immunizations has declined to "potentially dangerous levels."

He said the situation opens up the possibility of another scourge of the crippling and sometimes fatal disease.

"With schools reopening in September, it is essential to reach as many non-immunized children as possible," Stubblebine urged in a statement. "Outbreaks such as we had in the 1950s could occur again, particularly in areas with large number of young, susceptible children."

The Health Department chief estimated 27 per cent of the state's 1 to 4-year-olds have not received adequate polio immunization. He said the figure "has dropped to potentially dangerous levels."

In order to achieve a 90 per cent immune level, Stubblebine said 221,000 young children would have to receive at least two doses of the vaccine.

He included a reminder for parents that proof of immunization is required before a child can be admitted to school.

Polio is suspected in the current case of a 4-month-old Pomona boy, Stubblebine said, but a final determination must await laboratory tests.

A 56-year-old San Francisco man reportedly was hospitalized earlier this month apparently after contracting polio in Mexico, he said.

Since the development of Salk and Savin vaccine programs beginning in 1955, Stubblebine said polio has been nearly eliminated in California. In 1952, department figures show 2,574 cases and 201 deaths; in 1962, there were 76 cases and five deaths, and in 1972, two cases and no deaths.

Immunizations can be obtained from private physicians or, in some cases, without cost from local health agencies.

Adults, except health workers and those traveling abroad, do not need routine immunizations, he said.

Probers Told About Prisons' Gory Tide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two California prison officials testified yesterday that several violence-prone, revolutionary groups have planted a strong foothold in the state's panel institutions.

Sgt. William Hankins, an investigations officer with the California Department of Corrections, said the most dangerous organization is called the "Venceremos."

They attempt to recruit the most violent men," he told the House Internal Security Committee which is concluding a series of hearings on how radical groups infiltrate prisons across the nation.

Committee Chairman Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., said the panel has gathered enough evidence which substantiates reports that some revolutionary organizations are exploiting and encouraging prison unrest.

Hankins told the committee that the "Mexican Mafia," which he said has a membership of nearly 100 at San Quentin, is among the most violent of underground prison gangs.

"What they lack in sophistication they make up in cold bloodedness," he said. "They have no fear of getting killed."

Raymond Procunier, director of the California Department of Corrections, said that in the last three and a half years the prison system in his state has gone through a period of unprecedented fatal violence.

Last year alone, he said, there were 35 inmate murders, a record high.

But, he said, fatal violence appears to be decreasing this year, although "assaults and stabbings continue at an intolerable rate."

Procunier said he believes that recent changes in the way in which California handles felony offenders probably had much to do with the upswing in violence in state prisons.

"As part of a move toward community-based correctional programs," he said, "the state prison system began in 1966 to receive a smaller number of nonviolent property offenders." Such relatively minor offenders are now handled by local jail and probation procedures, he said.

Professor Fined For Marijuana

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A former Sacramento State University professor who told his students he planned to smoke marijuana in class was placed on three years probation yesterday and fined $400 for possession of the weed.

Clark L. Taylor Jr., fired shortly after his marijuana smoking announcement, was arrested Dec. 14, 1970, at his home. Authorities said they found marijuana, LSD and mescaline at the house.

Taylor, an anthropology professor at the school since 1966, had announced in a class titled "The Evolution of Religious Consciousness" that he would smoke marijuana in a later class. His firing and arrest came before the marijuana smoking date.

Signs of the Time

Traffic signs like these, or glyphs as they're called, are gradually becoming familiar to American drivers. Glyphs were first used in this country on federally funded roads, but now many local municipalities are also changing over to the glyph system. For years, other countries have used picture instructions for motorists. In Europe these symbols are a necessity because so many different languages are spoken. An influx of foreign travelers to the U.S. led the Department of Transportation to consider the use of wordless signs. Also, there is evidence that even if the language is familiar, glyphs can be more quickly read and identified by fast moving motorists.

DO YOU KNOW — What organization originated the international road-sign system?

Professor Fined For Marijuana

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A former Sacramento State University professor who told his students he planned to smoke marijuana in class was placed on three years probation yesterday and fined $400 for possession of the weed.

Clark L. Taylor Jr., fired shortly after his marijuana smoking announcement, was arrested Dec. 14, 1970, at his home. Authorities said they found marijuana, LSD and mescaline at the house.

Taylor, an anthropology professor at the school since 1966, had announced in a class titled "The Evolution of Religious Consciousness" that he would smoke marijuana in a later class. His firing and arrest came before the marijuana smoking date.

Skating Trip

The Novato Parks and Recreation Department has announced a roller skating trip will be made next Tuesday, leaving each of the 10 playgrounds at 9:45 a.m. for Marin Skateland, returning to Novato by 1 p.m. Deadline for signing up is Monday.

Signs of the Time

Traffic signs like these, or glyphs as they're called, are gradually becoming familiar to American drivers. Glyphs were first used in this country on federally funded roads, but now many local municipalities are also changing over to the glyph system. For years, other countries have used picture instructions for motorists. In Europe these symbols are a necessity because so many different languages are spoken. An influx of foreign travelers to the U.S. led the Department of Transportation to consider the use of wordless signs. Also, there is evidence that even if the language is familiar, glyphs can be more quickly read and identified by fast moving motorists.

DO YOU KNOW — What organization originated the international road-sign system?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — The first All-Star game was played in 1933.

New Mill Valley Schools Chief Bucks Austerity To Keep 'Frills'

By REBECCA LARSEN

The Mill Valley School District will have to pinch each penny several times for the next few years, according to its new superintendent, Dr. Peter G. Palches.

Palches, who replaced Dr. James A. Collins earlier this month, said that because of SB 90, the legislation shifting school taxes, his biggest headache will be the fact that "we don't have enough money to do all the things we want to do."

But according to the 40-year-old former principal of San Rafael High, he won't be slashing departments like art and music.

"I think these are the things through which young people get a sense of who they are. I don't go along with cutting out as the first thing the so-called frills," he said.

Palches said he would aim instead for cutting out small items in many other areas.

The preliminary 1973-74 budget is $4,382,269; $166,508 higher than that for the past school year. But like many districts Mill Valley has seen its state aid go down because of declining enrollment. Now SB90 has also set limits on how much revenue school districts can raise.

Palches said he stands "smack in the middle of educational arguments" over whether schools should devote themselves to the three R's or educational experiments.

There has been frequent controversy in the Mill Valley district on this issue in the last few years.

"In the past in Mill Valley, we've had a period of innovation and a move towards openness under my predecessor," he said. "At present we have a very exciting district. Now I think it's my job to consolidate things."

According to Palches, the district has to try both the new and the old. "One of our goals has to do with particular skills — can you read, can you add and multiply numbers, can you find things in a library?"

"But another kind of goal is very important —finding out that I'm glad I am me. Do I as a student really look forward to going on a trip, for example, and seeing the things we've been talking about in class?"

Although Palches has been an administrator for several years, he pointed ut that he started out as a teacher in a two-room elementary school in northern British Columbia.

"We had every conceivable elementary school problem — the underachiever, the brutalized kid, the 14-year-old illiterate. But we had some beautiful things, too —a great sports program, mothers who came in to teach bread baking."

Palches said he knows it's hard to be a teacher. "It takes careful and intelligent planning, but I also value someone who is affectionate and glad to be alive."

Bradley Asks Spending Cuts

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mayor Tom Bradley urged the city's department heads Monday to curtail expenditures inthe next fiscal year by cutting back on "lower priority activities" and by improving "employe productivity."

Bradley has made economy one of the main themes of his opening days in office.

In a message to the department chiefs, Bradley said his proposals for the 1974-75 fiscal year would call for an "austere budget" that provides "acceptable levels of service, maximum employe productivity, and significant economies."

The Emporium

An Emporium is the name of a department store. And a department store is a place where you can buy a great variety of things. You can buy very large things, like beds and refrigerators; you can buy very small things, like books and toys; and you can buy things your own size, like your Health-tex clothes. Mothers know that The Emporium has the largest selection of Health-tex clothes. Top quality Health-tex clothes are ready for you as soon as you start to creep around; and The Emporium has Health-tex in single knits, double knits and wovens, for boys size 6 months to size 7 and girls size 6 months to 6x. Health-tex makes mothers happy, too, because they are machine washable and most are permanent press. When mothers want their children to look their best, they shop at The Emporium and dress them in Health-tex.

NORTH AND SOUTH DIFFER

Italian Cuisine Is Varied

Italian cuisine is far more extensive than most Americans realize. The southern specialties consisting mostly of pasta and a hearty tomato sauce contrast sharply with the elaborate, more refined dishes of the northern region.

Food always has been an important part of life in northern Italy and intermingles with art and music. Artists of the Milan region exhibited their fascination with food in their work. And in the 16th Century there developed a whole school of painting that was devoted to the subject of food.

Italian music and food long have been closely associated. In the 18th Century opera buffs attending performances in Milan brought their dinners with them — only a popular aria could still the rattle of their knives and forks.

The northern region of Italy is particularly famous for its veal dishes. Osso Buco, a favorite in Milan, uses segments of veal shank or shin bone with the marrow left in. The recipe shown here calls for dusting the veal with flour, browning in peanut oil then cooking slowly in wine and chicken broth with herbs and seasonings, tomatoes and onion. The dish traditionally is served with rice and suggested here is Risotto alla Marinara, a flavorful rice dish with a wine and tomato sauce that is enlivened with anchovies and sage and served with a sprinkling of Parmesan cheese.

OSSO BUCO

3 pounds veal shank or knuckles, cut in 2-inch pieces
⅓ cup unsifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons peanut oil
1 can (8-ounce) stewed tomatoes
1 cup chicken broth
1 cup dry white wine
½ cup chopped onions
½ cup chopped onions
1 teaspoon crushed rosemary leaves
½ teaspoon rubbed sage
2 cloves garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon slivered lemon peel
Chopped parsley

Remove as much fat as possible from veal. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dust veal with flour mixture. Set aside remaining flour mixture. Heat peanut oil in Dutch oven. Add meat; brown on all sides. Stir in tomatoes, chicken broth, wine, onions, rosemary, sage and garlic. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat to low. Cover and cook for about 2 hours. During last 10 minutes of cooking, add lemon peel.

Remove veal to a heated serving dish. Skim fat off broth mixture. Gradually blend 1/2 cup broth mixture into reserved flour mixture. Pour into remaining broth mixture. Turn heat to high and reduce liquid, about 7 minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour over meat. Garnish with chopped parsley.

Makes six servings.

RISOTTO ALLA MARINARA

3 tablespoons peanut oil
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup uncooked rice
1 can (2-ounce) anchovies, drained and minced
1 teaspoon powdered sage
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 can (8-ounce) tomato sauce
3 cups water
½ cup dry white wine
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Grated Parmesan cheese

Heat peanut oil in 2-quart saucepan; add onions and saute until tender. Add rice and brown until golden, stirring frequently. Stir in anchovies and cook for 2 minutes, stirring frequently. Add sage, salt, pepper, tomato sauce, water, wine and lemon juice. Blend well. Cover and cook over low heat for 30 minutes, or until rice is tender. Stir occasionally. Mix in parsley.

Dieter Can Avoid The Hungry Feeling

Weight-watchers, here's the way to avoid the hungry feeling that comes an hour or two after eating a salad meal. Add sausage or ready-to-serve meats to your favorite vegetable salads. Hard, Genoa, or cotto salami, bologna, ham or New England brand sausage are just a few of the meats which give a gourmet touch to vegetable salads.

Cut the sausage into thin strips, squares, or wedges, and add it to the salad along with dressing. Allow two ounces (two slices) to each cup of vegetables in the salad to be sure each serving supplies enough protein to stave off hunger pangs.

CAMPERS CAN utilize mixes to form new combinations such as this salad made from part of a macaroni and cheese dinner and off-the-shelf egg salad. The cheese mix from the dinner is used in the biscuit dough wrapped around the skinless franks. Dessert is a quick fruit compote with macaroons.

Imagination Adds Joy To Campers' Dining

The imagination and ingenuity that take us from the regular vacation routine to the adventures of camping is reflected in menu planning for the outdoors. Because advance organization is necessary, there is time to experiment with new combinations of old food favorites that are acceptable to the family and adaptable to the trail.

This inventive camp dinner uses mixes to form new taste combinations. The salad is made from off-the-shelf egg salad and part of a macaroni and cheese dinner, while the skinless franks are blanketed in biscuit mix seasoned with the cheese from the macaroni dinner.

Because of their popularity, skinless frankfurters are a must in menu plans and even more tasty over the open fire. Skinless franks are compact, easy to store, ready to eat and a good source of protein, B vitamins and iron.

Because the frankfurthers are the only part of this menu requiring refrigeration, use your ingenuity again. Try one of the cooling methods used before the invention of insulated coolers. If camping near a spring or stream, sink a 5-gallon tin in the water and anchor with rocks to keep it from floating away. Store the skinless frankfurters and reconstituted dry milk in the tightly covered tin.

Or, hang an orange crate or similar box from a tree and cover it with a heavy cloth kept wet by a leaky can of water suspended over the box —this is refrigeration by evaporation.

CAMPER'S DINNER
(Minimal Refrigeration)
Cheesey
Biscuit-Wrapped Franks
Macaroni Salad
Green Beans or Peas
Fruit Compote
Milk Coffee

BEFORE LEAVING HOME: (For 4-6 Persons)

1. Prepare biscuit mix: Sift together 1 cup all-purpose flour and 1 teaspoon baking powder. Stir in powdered cheese mix from one 7¼ ounce package macaroni and cheese dinner. Cut in 2 tablespoons shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Pour into plastic bag or container; seal.

2. Combine dressing ingredients for salad: In an empty spice jar, combine 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon instant minced onion and 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard.

3. Pack additional ingredients:
7-ounce container egg salad with bacon
1-pond can green beans or 1-pound 1-ounce can peas
1 pound skinless frankfurters
Flour (about 2 tablespoons)
11-ounce bag dried mixed fruit
1 cinnamon stick
rum extract
6 coconut macaroons
nonfat dry milk powder
Coffee
Powdered cream and sugar, if desired

AT CAMPSITE: MACARONI SALAD
(Makes 4 Servings)

Preparation: 1. Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water for 7 to 9 minutes; drain and rinse with a little cold water.

2. Combine cooked macaroni with egg salad mix and vinegar dressing prepared at home. Cover and set aside to blend flavors.

CHEESEY BISCUIT-WRAPPED FRANKS
(Makes 4-5 Servings)

Preparation: 1. Select green sticks 3/8" to 1/2" in diameter; peel off bark at end of stick. Push frankfurters onto sticks, end to end.

2. Add 1/2 cup water to biscuit mix; stir with fork to form a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead 8 to 10 times. Divide dough into 8 to 10 balls. Flatten each ball to form a 3½"x3" rectangle and wrap around a frankfurter. Pinch seam together with dampened fingers to seal.

3. Hold stick about 5 inches from hot coals or ashes, turning it to brown dough on all sides.

FRUIT COMPOTE
(Makes 4 Servings)

Preparation: 1. Rub bottom outside of medium-sized pot with soap or detergent and water paste for ease in cleaning.

2. Combine mixed dried fruit, 3 cups water and 1 cinnamon stick in pot.

3. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, for 30 minutes. (Hang pot on stick over fire to boil; move to edge of fire to simmer.)

4. Remove cinnamon stick; stir in 1/2 teaspoon rum extract.

5. To serve, place 1 macaroon on each plate; spoon fruit and juice over top. Crumble remaining 2 macaroons and sprinkle on top.

Imagination Adds Joy To Campers' Dining

The imagination and ingenuity that take us from the regular vacation routine to the adventures of camping is reflected in menu planning for the outdoors. Because advance organization is necessary, there is time to experiment with new combinations of old food favorites that are acceptable to the family and adaptable to the trail.

This inventive camp dinner uses mixes to form new taste combinations. The salad is made from off-the-shelf egg salad and part of a macaroni and cheese dinner, while the skinless franks are blanketed in biscuit mix seasoned with the cheese from the macaroni dinner.

Because of their popularity, skinless frankfurters are a must in menu plans and even more tasty over the open fire. Skinless franks are compact, easy to store, ready to eat and a good source of protein, B vitamins and iron.

Because the frankfurthers are the only part of this menu requiring refrigeration, use your ingenuity again. Try one of the cooling methods used before the invention of insulated coolers. If camping near a spring or stream, sink a 5-gallon tin in the water and anchor with rocks to keep it from floating away. Store the skinless frankfurters and reconstituted dry milk in the tightly covered tin.

Or, hang an orange crate or similar box from a tree and cover it with a heavy cloth kept wet by a leaky can of water suspended over the box —this is refrigeration by evaporation.

CAMPER'S DINNER
(Minimal Refrigeration)
Cheesey
Biscuit-Wrapped Franks
Macaroni Salad
Green Beans or Peas
Fruit Compote
Milk Coffee

BEFORE LEAVING HOME: (For 4-6 Persons)

1. Prepare biscuit mix: Sift together 1 cup all-purpose flour and 1 teaspoon baking powder. Stir in powdered cheese mix from one 7¼ ounce package macaroni and cheese dinner. Cut in 2 tablespoons shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Pour into plastic bag or container; seal.

2. Combine dressing ingredients for salad: In an empty spice jar, combine 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon instant minced onion and 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard.

3. Pack additional ingredients:
7-ounce container egg salad with bacon
1-pond can green beans or 1-pound 1-ounce can peas
1 pound skinless frankfurters
Flour (about 2 tablespoons)
11-ounce bag dried mixed fruit
1 cinnamon stick
rum extract
6 coconut macaroons
nonfat dry milk powder
Coffee
Powdered cream and sugar, if desired

AT CAMPSITE: MACARONI SALAD
(Makes 4 Servings)

Preparation: 1. Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water for 7 to 9 minutes; drain and rinse with a little cold water.

2. Combine cooked macaroni with egg salad mix and vinegar dressing prepared at home. Cover and set aside to blend flavors.

CHEESEY BISCUIT-WRAPPED FRANKS
(Makes 4-5 Servings)

Preparation: 1. Select green sticks 3/8" to 1/2" in diameter; peel off bark at end of stick. Push frankfurters onto sticks, end to end.

2. Add 1/2 cup water to biscuit mix; stir with fork to form a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead 8 to 10 times. Divide dough into 8 to 10 balls. Flatten each ball to form a 3½"x3" rectangle and wrap around a frankfurter. Pinch seam together with dampened fingers to seal.

3. Hold stick about 5 inches from hot coals or ashes, turning it to brown dough on all sides.

FRUIT COMPOTE
(Makes 4 Servings)

Preparation: 1. Rub bottom outside of medium-sized pot with soap or detergent and water paste for ease in cleaning.

2. Combine mixed dried fruit, 3 cups water and 1 cinnamon stick in pot.

3. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, for 30 minutes. (Hang pot on stick over fire to boil; move to edge of fire to simmer.)

4. Remove cinnamon stick; stir in 1/2 teaspoon rum extract.

5. To serve, place 1 macaroon on each plate; spoon fruit and juice over top. Crumble remaining 2 macaroons and sprinkle on top.

SUMMER SALAD

1 head cualiflower
1 basket cherry tomatoes
1 lb. green beans, sliced diagonally and cooked
1 lb. carrots, sliced diagonally and cooked
½ to ¾ cup French dressing
Chopped parsley

Break cauliflower into separate little flowerettes. Drop into boiling water and blanch for 10-12 minutes; drain and cool. Stem and wash the cherry tomatoes. Combine flowerettes, cherry tomatoes, green beans, carrots and the dressing. Toss gently and refrigerate until served. Garnish with parsley.

¼ pound butter
¼ cup white wine
¼ cup minced onion
¼ cup minced parsley
½ teaspoon thyme
salt and pepper to taste

Rub birds with lemon juice and put in enamelware saucepan. Birds can be roasted on grill at picnic site for 50-60 minutes and eaten hot. They also can be roasted at home 40-50 minutes in 375 oven and eaten cold, or partially roasted at home in 375 oven and then barbecued briefly at the picnic site on the grill. Melt butter, add wine, herbs and seasoning just before roasting. Use mixture to baste during roasting or grilling. Game hen is done when the meat pulls away from the bone. If roasting at home, cool, wrap and refrigerate birds then carry in the cooler chest.

Serves four to six.

Vegetarian Treat Can Make A Main Dish

Garden stuffed green peppers add a refreshing and nourishing note to summertime meals. Most of the vegetables are in your garden, or abundant at roadside stands and supermarkets.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

4 large green peppers
¼ cup sliced green onion
¼ cup thinly sliced celery
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups corn cut from the cob
1½ cups cooked rice
1 medium tomato, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon chili powder
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1¼ cups grated Edam cheese
1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce

Heat, stirring. Remove from heat and stir in ¾ cup Edam cheese imported from Holland and ½ cup tomato sauce.

Stuff peppers with mixture and place upright in an 8-inch square baking dish. Pour remaining tomato sauce over peppers. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 20 minutes. Sprinkle remaining edam cheese over peppers and bake 10 minutes or until cheese is melted. Makes four servings.

Secret Of Nectarines

While most of us have become familiar with the eating goodness of nectarines, some still wonder what they are. They are not smooth-skinned peaches or extra-large plums, nor are they a cross between the two.

They are, in fact, a separate and distinct fruit and may even have preceded their cousins, the peach and the plum, in evolving from the rose.

NECTARINE DESSERT PINWHEELS

1 cup water
¾ cup sugar
2 tsp. mace
2 cups packaged biscuit mix
⅔ cup milk
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
3 cups sliced fresh nectarines
Dairy sour cream

Combine water, sugar and mace; bring to boil and simmer for 5 minutes to form syrup. Combine biscuit mix and milk. Reserve 1 tablespoon melted butter; add remainder to biscuit mix and blend. Turn dough out onto lightly floured surface and knead 8 to 10 times; roll out to 10x12-inch rectangle. Brush dough with reserved tablespoon of melted butter.

Spread nectarines over dough; starting at wide edge, roll up, pinching edges to seal. Cut into ¾ to 1-inch slices. Pour hot syrup into bottom of 9x13-inch pan or baking dish. Arrange pinwheels on top. Bake in 425-degree (hot) oven 30 minutes.

GOLDEN NECTARINE CHUTNEY

6 to 8 fresh nectarines
2½ cups golden seedless raisins
2 cups coarsely chopped red onion
2 cups orange juice
½ cup white vinegar
1 stick (2-inch) cinnamon
1½ tsps. ground ginger
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. ground cloves
¼ tsp. pepper

Slice nectarines to yield 5 cups; combine with all remaining ingredients in kettle and ring to boil. Simmer, uncovered, 40 to 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Portion into sterilized jars; seal. Store in cool place.

Best served well chilled. Makes 3 pints.

Woman Librarian Tries To Improve Prison Life

By KAREN PETERSON

Patricia Caldwell, after seven months as the librarian at San Quentin, has lost her former apprehensions about being, as far as she knows, the only woman working in this field of prison life.

Now the soft-spoken, former-librarian at the Presidio, is focusing her energies on the challenges of her job and improvements to the 26,000 volume library.

Mrs. Caldwell gave little thought to what her reactions and feelings might be toward the prison environment during her first interview for the position.

"I really wanted this job," she recalled. "I think a library is valuable in any institution. The contents of the library are filled with different ideas and ways of looking at things."

And because of this feeling, Mrs. Caldwell is sensitive to the needs of the men. Her greatest challenge, she explained, is determining what the needs are of the men in this particular situation and in this particular life experience.

"THE BOOKS I buy," said the Larkspur resident who has already purchased more than 450 volumes, "are subject to what the men want and what they're interested in. And they're free to come in and discuss it with me."

Although San Quentin doesn't necessarily ban certain books from the library, Mrs. Caldwell follows the guidelines of the Department of Corrections manual and her own commonsense.

"Quite naturally I wouldn't look for books that contained recipes for explosives or chemical formulas. And I can't see much point in buying books that are inflammatory in any way.

"Some books even make me want to something radical," she said, "so I wouldn't buy books that would incite anger or rage. And it wouldn't be wise at all to buy books that are racist in any way."

Mrs. Caldwell, who is now buying heavily in fiction, makes up a book list for the men every month containing the new titles added to the library. Reactions have often been, "Very good. This is a winner," she said.

She also has books of interest to the Chicano and Black populations. The Chicanos like both fiction and non-fiction books about their culture, she said, and there is a reading list in Black studies.

San Quentin also has a collection of nearly 1,200 law books besides pamphlets and supplements.

The most popular book seems to be "The Prophet" by Gibran, said Mrs. Caldwell. "The men are interested in every word he has ever written." And typical of tastes outside the prison, she said, the men enjoy science fiction.

EXCEPT for a few who "came on pretty strong," Mrs. Caldwell said the men have been exceptionally good to her — and never forget holidays. "Mother's Day, my birthday, the Fourth of July — they don't miss a thing," she laughed.

"Maybe it's because I'm a woman, but the men are much more refined in their attitudes and behavior," she said, "and they're gentler than I expected."

Mrs. Caldwell recalled that her feelings toward the men weren't clearly defined in the beginning, and generally, there was a great deal of reserve on both sides.

"They had the idea that a woman was invading their world and their masculinity. That a woman would intrude upon their privacy and make them watch their language and be concerned about their appearance. Things they wouldn't have to do otherwise," she said.

But now, she said of the 10 inmates who work with her in the library, we laugh about a lot of things.

An average of 50 men are in the library each hour. The men are quite intelligent, she said, especially one member of the staff. "They utilize their time well, and they seem to take advantage of the education program here," she said.

THEY READ for recreation, she said, and they look for something they can respond to — an idea they might have — so that they can verify and substantiate it. They look to find a reason for believing that way."

Mrs. Caldwell has a daughter, Janice, who is teaching science to Air Force children in Okinawa, and a son, Ted, who is studying in England at the University of Lancaster International Relations.

"They had some apprehensions about my taking the job," she said, "but there was no doubt in their mind that I could do it. They're for changes in society, and if a woman in a maximum security institution is a change for the good then they're all for it."

MRS. PATRICIA Caldwell is perhaps the only female librarian in the country's penal institutions. But the job, aside from its environment, is much like any other library situation. And as far as the reactions of the inmates, Mrs. Caldwell said she had has little trouble. She's even added a new dimension to the book-bound room: houseplants.

Also appearing on the show will be Doug Emerson of a floor covering company in San Rafael, who will discuss new trends in carpeting and tiling the home and will report on the recent home furnishings market.

Most House Plants Grow In Water

Most house plants may be grown in water if careful attention is paid to aerating the water, adding fertilizers, regulating acidity, and changing the solution every two or three weeks, says the Society of American Florists.

Prizes will be awarded to guests with the best costumes. Fred Cope Jr. of San Geronimo is chairman of the committee of sponsors, which are the San Geronimo Valley Association, The San Geronimo Lions Club, San Geronimo Valley Swim and Tennis Club and the Lagunitas School Parent-Teacher Association. Mrs. R. E. Wick of Woodacre is publicity chairman.

A GOURMET buffet Saturday from 2 to 6 p.m. will benefit the Inverness Music Festival. The party will be held at the home of Frances Blair in Point Reyes Station.

A musical program featuring cellist Jed Barahal will be given in the pasture overlooking a lake adjacent to Mrs. Blair's home.

Removal Of Bee Stinger Takes Special Care

If a honey bee stings you, you must take prompt action in order to minimze the pain. Once a bee stings, the barbed stinger and the venom-filled sac remain attached to your skin. Even though you have brushed the bee aside, you have not disposed of the threat. The sac will continue to pump venom. The California Medical Association advises to carefully examine the site of the sting with a knife or your fingernail, and scrape the stinger off immediately. Do not try to grasp the stinger with your fingers, as you are likely to squeeze more venom into your skin.

For first aid, apply a paste of baking soda and water to the area of the sting. Or you may use an analgesic cream to reduce pain and relieve itching.

Hornets, yellow jackets, wasps and bumblebees do not leave their venom sacs when they sting. Consequently, they may sting more than once. These stings bring redness, pain and itching. If you are stung many times, enough venom can be absorbed to make you quite ill. If that happens, you need medical treatment.

Janice Stout Will Wed Alan Lazure

The engagement of Janice Lynn Stout of San Rafael to Alan Maurice Lazure of Pomona has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Stout of San Rafael.

Jan is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and California State Polytechnic University, Pomona.

Alan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rene Lazure of Concord and the grandson of Mrs. Fred Schoettger of Gooding, Idaho. He is the brother of Michaele Lazure of Concord, Mrs. Chris Kuhn of San Francisco and Rene Lazure of Santa Ana.

Alan is a graduate of Ygnacio Valley High School, Diablo Junior College and California Polytechnic in Pomona. He is employed by Environmental Communities, Inc., in Corona.

Many Possibilities Exist For Inexpensive Lighting

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Let us have light — but not too expensive.

This is the plea of people on decorating budgets, who cannot afford eleborate built-in lighting effects, but who want interesting, even dramatic illumination in their homes.

Can you light for less? Of course. You have only to go into a department or store that specializes in lamps and fixtures, or even any dime store, to see the range of possibilities that exist today. You can literally spend from $1.99 up.

With a little imagination you can use inexpensive lights as a creative medium to set moods, accent art objects, light plants, emphasize pictures, or visually expand space. You can make light work for you in decorative ways, and let it help establish character in your rooms.

A small, chrome ball lamp (which ranged in price from $14.99 to $19.99) is portable, flexible, and excellent for lighting a painting or a piece of sculpture. Wall washers — should you want to light up a drapery wall or a shelf arrangement — range from $17.50 to $29.50.

Can or canister lamps, such as one with a 150-watt reflection flood lamp, can be parked under a palm tree or amid a cluster of foliage plants and may be purchased for as little as $22.50.

Levition dimmers, which enable you to adjust the light volume of any standard fixture, now can be purchased for as little as $4.95 but are worth a fortune when it comes to changing the mood of a room from candlelight dim for dining to cheerfully bright conversational level later.

"TO LIGHT small individual objects on a shelf," says one expert, "use a portable 'high-intensity' lamp placed inconspicuously near the object, positioned so that the shadow of the object forms part of the visual composition."

This is exactly what Sandra Merriman, a New York interior designer, did recently when she placed two Lightoiler tensor lamps on the top shelf of an ornate French baker's rack. The strong pinpoints of light directed downward on an assortment of plants and bric-a-brac, created a play of light and shadow on gleaming brass and crystal, all the while bathing living plants with needed light.

If, as Westinghouse suggests, you take a dim view of kitchen chores, it could be because the view in the kitchen is so dim. "Working around in the shadows of a single ceiling fixture can make kitchen work irritat-

With a little imagination you can use inexpensive lights as a creative medium to set moods, accent art objects, light plants, emphasize pictures, or visually expand space. You can make light work for you in decorative ways, and let it help establish character in your rooms.

A small, chrome ball lamp (which ranged in price from $14.99 to $19.99) is portable, flexible, and excellent for lighting a painting or a piece of sculpture. Wall washers — should you want to light up a drapery wall or a shelf arrangement — range from $17.50 to $29.50.

Can or canister lamps, such as one with a 150-watt reflection flood lamp, can be parked under a palm tree or amid a cluster of foliage plants and may be purchased for as little as $22.50.

Levition dimmers, which enable you to adjust the light volume of any standard fixture, now can be purchased for as little as $4.95 but are worth a fortune when it comes to changing the mood of a room from candlelight dim for dining to cheerfully bright conversational level later.

"TO LIGHT small individual objects on a shelf," says one expert, "use a portable 'high-intensity' lamp placed inconspicuously near the object, positioned so that the shadow of the object forms part of the visual composition."

This is exactly what Sandra Merriman, a New York interior designer, did recently when she placed two Lightoiler tensor lamps on the top shelf of an ornate French baker's rack. The strong pinpoints of light directed downward on an assortment of plants and bric-a-brac, created a play of light and shadow on gleaming brass and crystal, all the while bathing living plants with needed light.

If, as Westinghouse suggests, you take a dim view of kitchen chores, it could be because the view in the kitchen is so dim. "Working around in the shadows of a single ceiling fixture can make kitchen work irritat-

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Errant Hubby Always Manages To Make Her The One At Fault

DEAR HELEN:

Before we were married I wondered why I almost always ended up in the wrong while my future husband basked in my apologies. I could be furious because he broke another date, and all of a sudden it would be my fault for not sensing his moods. Once when he went out on me, he made me feel guilty because he said I'd flirted with one of his friends the week before.

Now, it continues. He twists everything around so I'm the villain, and I know I'm not always to blame.

Lately he's got a new approach, or I should say "retreat." He nags at me about my shortcomings until I blow up, and then he storms out of the house saying, "I won't stay here and listen to your bitching." When he comes home around 2 a.m. I'm supposed to be contrite and sorry I "drove him away."

Dumb me, I thought he was just brooding in some bar, or at a late movie or something — until yesterday when a friend told me he's been seeing a woman for the last two months — just about since he started the big "hurt" walkout.

I'm not saying I'm a perfect wife, but I'm tired of being conned. How can I cope, when I know I'm wronged, but yet I'm — ALWAYS IN THE WRONG

DEAR AITW:

Tell "Mr. Always-Right" you're on to him and if he doesn't get honest he'll soon get single. He's lived by his little "stoops to con her" games long enough! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My daughter i 10 years old and she feels I love her Daddy more than I love her. I try to explain that I love my hustand in a different way, but she resents it whenver I show any affection toward him.

We give her lots of attention. She's never been left with a sitter, and her Daddy and I include her in almost everything, hug and kiss her — really, there's no reason for her to be upset.

She asked me questions about sex and I explained that she was made by her Daddy's love, but she just said, "Now that you've got me, why don't you stop doing it?"

Is this something she'll outgrow? — PUZZLED AND UPSET MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER:

Probably. It isn't unusual for a child to resent not being the center of her whole universe — especially when that universe has apparently revolved around her for so long.

Perhaps you've "spoiled" her with only-child closeness and, now when she realizes you two share something she can't, she may feel jealous — and I'd suspect mainly of you, her mother. Father complexes aren't uncommon in 10-year-old girls.

I'd suggest you steer her toward outside interests, a variety of friends and activities, occasional babysitters and (most of all) the realization that the more love you give, the more you have to give. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

The other day I walked past our daughters' room and through the open door, I saw them stark naked, taking Polaroid pictures of each other. I was furious, grabbed them and spanked them hard.

When their father came home, he gave them another spanking and grounded them for a month. They can't understand our punishment. Said they were practicing to be models (they're 13 and 15) as they'd seen in magazines. Please explain to them why we were so terribly — SHOCKED AND UPSET

DEAR S AND U:

Sorry, I really don't know why you were so terribly shocked and upset. If you can't do your own explaining, perhaps your reasons weren't as valid as you thought. — H.

ing, tiring, and frustrating," declares this company's lighting specialist. She recommends individual lighting fixtures to illuminate all separate work areas, including range, sink, and counters.

A VARIETY of inexpensive kitchen lighting fixtures is available, and many fluorescent and incandescent counter and range-lighting fixtures can be installed by the do-it-yourselfer. Such units plug into a nearby outlet and do not require an electrician's costly assistance.

Especially useful for the kitchen is a lamp which is "at home on the range" to help the chef see what's cooking. My own solution for lighting up the darkish corner where my range stands, was to put on the side wall a $12.95 15-inch-long strip fluorescent fixture. (My building superintendent bolted it to the wall for a dollar or two.) It may not have lighted my way to culinary glory, but it at least provides comfort and cheer as I putter among the pots.

There are hundreds of inexpensive lamps on the market today. But some warnings are in order. Some such fixtures will take light bulbs only of limited wattage, such as 60 watts. This may not give you the light you need. So be wary. Watch out for any wattage limitations. Read attached tags carefully. Remember that a cheap lamp can rarely include the engineering that gives it long life and maximum flexibility. Make sure that you are not buying merely a piece of illuminated sculpture rather than a functioning lamp.

INEXPENSIVE PLASTIC mushroom-shaped lamps are omnipresent these days. They can be both useful and decorative if you recognize their limitations and use them wisely.

Before you purchase any lighting equipment at all, the amount of space should be considered and an analysis made of the lighting needs for various family activities: dining, reading, sewing, entertaining, and the like.

A lighting specialist for Sears, Roebuck and Co. advises, "One watt of general lighting is needed for every square foot of floor space." An average 12-by-20-foot living room, for example, requires at least five portable lamps, each with a minimum 50-watt light output. Some should be lamps with flexible wattage — or three-way bulbs — to increase their function. If one area is to be a reading corner, its light source should be able to direct 150 to 200 watts of light from a point 15 inches to the side of the book and at the eye level of the seated reader. Any reading lamp of this sort should have lesser wattage options for non-reading hours.

ANOTHER EXPERT declares, "There is no law saying there must be a lamp at either end of a sofa or at each corner of a room. Light reflected from verticle surfaces such as curtains, or walls decorated with paintings, prints, posters, or hangings, help to make people look more attractive.

Light is actually a magic wand, a tool for creating interesting effects. Dont' be afraid to play with these tools. Push lamps around, focus them on favorite objects. Take a closer look at those new inexpensive models and learn what they can do to help create decorative effects. They are an important part of interior design.

Got An Old Mink Jacket? Designers Suggest A Use

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — Paris offers some sound ideas for what to do with an old mink jacket or coat.

Pierre Cardin cut up mink into patch pockets for wool coats in the winter high fashion shows that opened Monday. Andre Courreges used mink patch pockets and collar on a floor-length dramatic white cape.

Courreges sewed tufts of mink on short puffed sleeves on evening gowns. Dior showed mink shopping bags. Cardin's girls wore square mink handbags with mink straps slung over the shoulder. Jean-Louis Scherrer and Cardin tipped the ends of long scarves with fox or mink.

In little pieces as well as in full coats, mink came in every color in the rainbow and hardly ever brown as nature made it.

Dior's mink coats and jackets were in olive green, navy blue, burgundy red or the new "faded denim blue." The ultimate were beige mink coats inset with brown letters spelling "Dior."

Another trend was hemlines wandering all over the leg. Dior made narrow skirts and dresses cover the knee. Fuller skirts dropped a bit lower and tent "steamer coats" flapped around mid-calf.

Cardin and Louis Feraud kept winter daytime clothes at the knee. Courreges' daytime outfits, including coats, ended well above the knee—almost minis. He added over-the-knee white socks. Ted Lapidus and the Torrente salon rolled out daytime dresses and skirts that ended at mid-calf or below.

Courreges, master of trousers, surprisingly devoted most of his show to long evening gowns that have been bringing him brisk business.

Parents Told How To Help Schoolchildren

NEW YORK (UPI) — Memo to parents:

Dr. Helen D. Wise, president of the National Education Association (NEA), was asked how you can help your children succeed in school. She answered:

"The most important thing is that parents are supportive of children in school. That means, it seems to me, listening to their concerns.

"We have gone through the school of thought that the teacher is always right. That isn't necessarily so. That doesn't mean that we assume that the child is always right. But I think we learn to support youngsters by listening to them and if there are problems of getting to the teachers (teachers have sometimes as many as 150 or 200 children they teach in a day) it is up to the parents to communicate with the children and with the teacher so that they can help.

"I don't think it means elaborate home circumstances. I think it means being supportive and being helpful."

Are the schools doing their fair share to prepare children for life? To that question, Dr. Wise, of State College, Pa., replied:

"I think in the long run schools are doing the very best job they can to provide a realistic, relevant curriculum for children. I have been teaching now for 25 years and I remember that one of the things that we were always taught to do, was not to teach just facts, but to help children question and to wonder, to learn to use their minds so they could continually learn.

"I think we have to realize that, considering the great body of knowledge we have now, children don't go to school just to get those facts and that body of knowledge.

"Instead they are going to school so that they can learn how to keep on learning.

"And I think we are doing a good job of preparing children for life, where we have the adequate schools, facilities and the staff to do it."

Stainless Steel Cookware Easy On Cleanups

If durability and super-cleanability are what you want in cookware, then stainless steel pots and pans may be the answer. The wonder of stainless steel is that it does not rust, scratch, or chemically react with either acidic or alkaline foods. It is inherently a poor conductor of heat, but much stainless is now being cored or covered with copper or aluminum to improve the conductivity while still retaining the "quick clean-up" qualities of the stainless steel surfaces.

Ordinary dishwashing, by hand or machine, washes stainless to original luster, states the Soap and Detergent Association. Remove burned-on food by boiling two tablespoons of baking soda to one quart of water in the pan, then scour with a plastic pad.

ENERGY CRISIS

Popularity Of Natural Gas As Fuel Leads To Shortage

By S. FRED SINGER
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service
(Third of 12 Articles)

A current problem making headline news is the scarcity of natural gas. Gas companies have not been able to service new customers, and pipeline companies in the last couple of years have had to apply curtailment of gas to industrial customers. To understand the problem we must first look at basic facts.

The most striking event in the United States has been not only the annual rise in fuel consumption, about 3 to 4 per cent, or a doubling time of roughly 20 years, but also the rapid change in the "mix" of fuels. Natural gas, which was hardly used 50 years ago, has become a strikingly popular fuel, taking 18 per cent of the energy share in 1950 and nearly 33 per cent in 1970. Oil has increased from 40 per cent to 44 per cent over the last 20 years, while coal has slipped from 38 per cent to 19 per cent.

Over the last 20 years the use of coal has disappeared for household and commercial applications and for transportation. But for natural gas, household consumption has quadrupled, industrial consumption has tripled, and electrical utility consumption has increased by a factor of six, all within 20 years.

The reason for these drastic changes is not difficult to find. The wellhead price of gas has been set and held at levels which must now be considered as too low, around 20 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. During all this time, the price of crude oil held reasonably constant, but it is three times that of gas in terms of its heating value. That's what counts: After all, fuels are used to produce heat.

Of course, electrical utilities use the less costly residual oil (left over after refining crude oil for more expensive gasoline). But it is still a little more costly than delivered natural gas, and so is coal — especially after the costs for air-pollution control are added.

There is one other aspect to use of natural gas: It is a clean fuel that can be burned without producing any appreciable pollution, and it can be burned very cheaply. Unlike oil and coal, it requires no storage and it does not require specialized burning equipment. It is therefore the ideal fuel for households and small commercial users, a premium fuel that is really worth more but costs less.

Hunger Strike Off

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Klaus Altmann, accused of being a Gestapo chief and wanted in France for the murder of a World War II resistance hero, called off a hunger strike in his jail cell yesterday three hours after he started it.

From the point of view of overall national efficiency, one would like to see gas burned by households and small users, while the dirtier fuels — residual oil and especially coal — should go to large industrial users and electrical utilities.

The large users can afford the more complicated burners, as well as the engineers who keep them in adjustment and make sure that as little pollution as possible is generated. Because of the economies that come with large-scale operations, they can purchase and maintain at a lower cost the pollution-control equipment that removes soot, fly ash, and all particulate materials, as well as sulfur dioxide.

Another switch that could be achieved for gas is from intrastate use to interstate use. Keep in mind that the regulation of natural gas by the Federal Power Commission applies only to gas that is produced in one state, say Texas, but then is shipped and sold in another state.

Within the state of Texas the free-market price of gas is more than twice that of the interstate price. Not surprisingly, the producers prefer to sell to intrastate use, rather than make new interstate contracts at the regulated price. This distortion results in a use of gas which from a national point of view is not efficient.

STEADY INCREASE — Consumption of natural gas in the United States has gone up steadily since 1950, increasing almost fourfold in slightly more than two decades.

However, the most serious consequence of strict regulation of well-head prices is the fact that the exploration and production of gas has become a marginal enterprise. Gas is usually discovered jointly in searching for oil. To stimulate exploration and production of gas, its price would have to rise greatly or the price of oil would have to rise moderately.

In summary, a more realistic price for natural gas would go a long way toward achieving the following:

It would not only stimulate exploration and production of new gas, but would also direct existing gas into uses for which it is most uniquely fitted (such as home heating).

It would shift more gas into interstate use.

It would encourage utilities to use less gas and release it to the small user.

This shift (by the utilities) from gas, probably to greater coal use, would lead to lower overall operating costs, lower pollution costs, and therefore to more efficient national performance. Greater use of coal would also reduce the dollar outflow.

NEXT: Some options to the natural gas shortage.

ENERGY CRISIS

Popularity Of Natural Gas As Fuel Leads To Shortage

By S. FRED SINGER
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service
(Third of 12 Articles)

A current problem making headline news is the scarcity of natural gas. Gas companies have not been able to service new customers, and pipeline companies in the last couple of years have had to apply curtailment of gas to industrial customers. To understand the problem we must first look at basic facts.

The most striking event in the United States has been not only the annual rise in fuel consumption, about 3 to 4 per cent, or a doubling time of roughly 20 years, but also the rapid change in the "mix" of fuels. Natural gas, which was hardly used 50 years ago, has become a strikingly popular fuel, taking 18 per cent of the energy share in 1950 and nearly 33 per cent in 1970. Oil has increased from 40 per cent to 44 per cent over the last 20 years, while coal has slipped from 38 per cent to 19 per cent.

Over the last 20 years the use of coal has disappeared for household and commercial applications and for transportation. But for natural gas, household consumption has quadrupled, industrial consumption has tripled, and electrical utility consumption has increased by a factor of six, all within 20 years.

The reason for these drastic changes is not difficult to find. The wellhead price of gas has been set and held at levels which must now be considered as too low, around 20 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. During all this time, the price of crude oil held reasonably constant, but it is three times that of gas in terms of its heating value. That's what counts: After all, fuels are used to produce heat.

Of course, electrical utilities use the less costly residual oil (left over after refining crude oil for more expensive gasoline). But it is still a little more costly than delivered natural gas, and so is coal — especially after the costs for air-pollution control are added.

There is one other aspect to use of natural gas: It is a clean fuel that can be burned without producing any appreciable pollution, and it can be burned very cheaply. Unlike oil and coal, it requires no storage and it does not require specialized burning equipment. It is therefore the ideal fuel for households and small commercial users, a premium fuel that is really worth more but costs less.

Hunger Strike Off

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Klaus Altmann, accused of being a Gestapo chief and wanted in France for the murder of a World War II resistance hero, called off a hunger strike in his jail cell yesterday three hours after he started it.

From the point of view of overall national efficiency, one would like to see gas burned by households and small users, while the dirtier fuels — residual oil and especially coal — should go to large industrial users and electrical utilities.

The large users can afford the more complicated burners, as well as the engineers who keep them in adjustment and make sure that as little pollution as possible is generated. Because of the economies that come with large-scale operations, they can purchase and maintain at a lower cost the pollution-control equipment that removes soot, fly ash, and all particulate materials, as well as sulfur dioxide.

Another switch that could be achieved for gas is from intrastate use to interstate use. Keep in mind that the regulation of natural gas by the Federal Power Commission applies only to gas that is produced in one state, say Texas, but then is shipped and sold in another state.

Within the state of Texas the free-market price of gas is more than twice that of the interstate price. Not surprisingly, the producers prefer to sell to intrastate use, rather than make new interstate contracts at the regulated price. This distortion results in a use of gas which from a national point of view is not efficient.

STEADY INCREASE — Consumption of natural gas in the United States has gone up steadily since 1950, increasing almost fourfold in slightly more than two decades.

However, the most serious consequence of strict regulation of well-head prices is the fact that the exploration and production of gas has become a marginal enterprise. Gas is usually discovered jointly in searching for oil. To stimulate exploration and production of gas, its price would have to rise greatly or the price of oil would have to rise moderately.

In summary, a more realistic price for natural gas would go a long way toward achieving the following:

It would not only stimulate exploration and production of new gas, but would also direct existing gas into uses for which it is most uniquely fitted (such as home heating).

It would shift more gas into interstate use.

It would encourage utilities to use less gas and release it to the small user.

This shift (by the utilities) from gas, probably to greater coal use, would lead to lower overall operating costs, lower pollution costs, and therefore to more efficient national performance. Greater use of coal would also reduce the dollar outflow.

NEXT: Some options to the natural gas shortage.

FOR SAUSALITO COUPLE

'Period' Portraits Good Business

By PAUL LIBERATORE

"People really dig it," say the owners of the Sepia Shop in Sausalito, which specializes in photographic portraits of customers in antique attire like clothes they once may have tried on in a dusty corner of Grandma's attic.

"That's how we got into this," explained Mrs. Perticone, sandy-haired and 30. "We found a trunk in my parents' attic in Vallejo full of clothes that belonged to my grandparents. It was so much fun putting them on. There were pictures, too, old photographs and tintypes that we loved and David later tried to copy."

She wore an ornate Victorian dress that touched the floor in frilly rolls of heavy cloth and he donned a rakish Edwardian coat in the first pictures they took of themselves.

An amateur camera buff, it wasn't long before he was taking snapshots of his friends in costume, then word got around and he began getting requests to do portraits for a fee.

Demand was heavy enough so that two years ago he opened his first shop in a narrow railroad flat on Scott Street in San Francisco, stocked with clothes from Bob Mandel's costume shop.

"I've done pictures of people from Melvin Belli's wife to hippy cab drivers," said David, 31, who is on leave from his regular job as a welder and says business is so good he probably won't go back.

The Perticones recently took on a partner, 26-year-old Richard Rosetti of Brisbane, and three weeks ago moved their business to Sausalito. They now occupy a second floor compartment in a gingerbread-elegant turn-of-the-century house converted to shops at 579 Bridgeway.

The new shop has a darkroom and is a vast improvement over the old one, Perticone said. The darkroom is critical because from it emerge the photographs in warm sepia tones with their faded borders, looking as if they have been snatched from an ancestor's hope chest in a Kansas farmhouse.

"At first, it was hard getting that authentic antique effect," he explained. "I burned my hands many times with chemicals before I got the prints to look the way I wanted."

For the modern double-knit set with a romance for a later period, there are brazen styles from the 20s and 30s.

"We're going to be starting some Civil War stuff soon," said Perticone, "and an 1890s sea captain outfit to match the flavor of Sausalito. A real comin'-round-the-horn-type captain."

Some results hang in carved frames in the reception area. There is Belli's wife, looking coquettish in Victorian frills and holding a French parasol. Here is the hippy cab driver, mustachioed and patriarchal, staring sternly over hands clutching lapels.

Business is sustained, the Perticones say, by tourists who pose for poster-sized prints that can be ready in 30 minutes.

Appointments are taken for longer evening sittings, and customers pick their favorite poses to be turned into finished prints or greeting cards. The Perticones, who live in San Bruno but are planning to move to Sausalito, will go on location to shoot customers on horseback or in front of exotic buildings.

"Women mainly want it done," said Teri, as the couple's two children, Frank, 8, and Lisa, 7, scampered through the shop on their way to explore the Sausalito bayfront. "But once the guys start putting on the clothes and feeling the part they really get into it. Everyone goes out of here with a smile on his face."

Rabid Animal Toll Rises; Clinics For Dogs Listed

Marin County health officials reported yesterday a rabid bat was found earlier this week in Fairfax, raising to 16 the number of rabid animals reported in Marin so far this year.

A test by the state virus laboratory in Berkeley confirmed the bat died of rabies. Dr. Albrecht said there is no known animal or human exposure to the sick bat.

She said it was the fourth bat and 16th animal reported rabid this year. Besides the bats, seven skunks, two horses, a cow, a sheep and a fox have been reported.

She warned persons to stay away from wild animals and to report animals observed acting strangely.

She advised cat owners to consult their veterinarians about vaccinations and reminded dog owners that the county-sponsored rabies vaccination clinics are still in progress.

Dog vaccination clinics will be held:

Tomorrow — 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the city school administration building, Third and E Streets, San Rafael.

Tuesday — 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Ross School, Lagunitas Road, Ross.

Aug. 2 — 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the county fire station, Second and A streets, Point Reyes Station.

Aug. 4 — 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at Marion School, 1705 Marion Avenue, Novato.

Aug. 7 — 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the corporation yard, Sycamore and Camino Alto, Mill Valley.

Aug. 11 — 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the city school administration building, Third and E streets, San Rafael.

Chief Picked For Schools In Bolinas

A 49-year-old associate professor and lecturer at Hayward State College has been named superintendent of Bolinas-Stinson School District.

Dr. Bernard Barrish of Redwood City will take over the $18,000 a year post Aug. 1, replacing Lester M. Horning who announced his resignation May 8.

Before his stint in the department of education at Hayward, Barrish was an elementary school principal for 13 years in Pacifica, Calif. He also has been employed as an elementary school teacher in San Lorenzo, Calif., and for the San Francisco Unified School District.

From 1953 to 1955 he worked for the U.S. Defense Department as an elementary school teacher for children of American personnel in France.

Barrish received his bachelor degree from the University of Illinois, his Master's degree and teaching credential from San Francisco State University and his Doctorate of Education from Stanford University.

His wife is a teacher. They have two children. He also will serve as principal of the district's lone school. Barrish's appointment was announced at a board meeting July 17.

At that meeting, trustees approved a publication budget of $294,479, up $25,725 over the current spending program, according to Judy Weston, Board Secretary. No information was available today on the effect of the budget on the current tax rate of $2.05 per $100 of assessed valuation, Mrs. Weston said. But Horning estimated after the preliminary budget was approved that the rate would be increased to $2.05, the result of land lost to the Point Reyes National Seashore and the Golden Gate Recreation Area.

Apartments Win Permit In Novato

The Novato City Council last night granted a variance to permit construction of 76 apartments on Diablo Avenue in the city's flood plain area.

By unanimous vote, the council granted the permit to International Concrete Systems Consultants Inc. to construct apartments in two five-story buildings.

A week earlier, the council had referred the matter back to the planning commission, which had previously denied the variance for the apartments. The commission again denied the variance Monday night, but was overridden by the council.

Sewer Overload Warnings Issued

I-J Special Report

HAYWARD — Five Marin and Southern Sonoma sewage agencies were put on notice yesterday that their wastewater flows are near the limits of their treatment facilities.

Two of them, the City of Mill Valley and Ross Valley Sanitary District, already are under bans on new sewer connections pending improved treatment, thus halting residential development.

Others cited in the report by the staff of the Regional Water Quality Control Board are the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District, Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District and City of Petaluma.

The board's executive director, Fred H. Dierker, said he "will continue to watch these dischargers closely, and will present recommendations for board action upon completion of further staff investigation." Such action could include connection bans "if they fail to act," he said.

The five agencies were among 18 throughout the region cited in the report. It also mentioned the Novato Sanitary District, but said it is nearing completion of treatment plant improvements that will put flows under 75 per cent of capacity.

Dierker cautioned that the needed improvements will take "substantial expenditures of capital funds," more than will be available through federal and state grants. The agencies thus will have to pay themselves for interim improvements, he said.

Dierker added that "some of these communities are well aware of their problems, while others need reminding."

In Petaluma's case, he said, the city's limit of 500 new dwelling units a year apparently will permit sewage treatment improvements to keep pace with increased wastewater flows. The city is approximately one year behind schedule for interim improvements, however, Dierker noted.

The Las Gallinas district also is a year behind schedule, but plans to allocate new sewer connections yearly to avoid overloading the treatment plant, the report said.

Interim improvements in the Sausalito-Marin City district are due for completion in March, and should correct or minimize violations of board requirements, it said.

Construction of subregional sewage facilities serving Marin and Southern Sonoma will solve the problems of overloaded treatment plants, Dierker said.

In other business, the board adopted waste discharge requirements for Sears Point Raceway, which plans to discharge a maximum of 70,000 gallons a day of sewage from spectators at track events.

Petaluma Growth Limit Challenged In New Suit

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Construction Industry Association yesterday filed a new lawsuit in federal court in an attempt to overturn Petaluma's controlled growth policy.

The original lawsuit was dismissed last week by Judge Stanley A. Weigel on the basis of a June 26 supreme court ruling that civil rights cases cannot be brought against local governments, but only against individuals.

Malcolm A. Misuraca, association attorney, said the ammended complaint names each member of the city council, as well as the City of Petaluma, as defendants. The councilmen were not specifically named in the first suit.

The suit charges that Petaluma's policy of limited growth violates the rights of some individuals to move to Petaluma. The policy limits development to 500 new living units per year and was ovewhelmingly approved by residents in a referendum on June 5.

It is expected that Robert T. Anderson of Oakland, special counsel to Petaluma, will follow the action with a second motion to dismiss the suit.

Misuraca said his staff redrafted the suit as quickly as possible so the case, if accepted in federal court, can be heard on the original trial date of Nov. 14.

Woman Hospitalized After Car Accident

A Greenbrae woman was reported in satisfactory condition today at Kaiser Foundation Hospital with injuries suffered in an automobile accident last night.

Hazel M. Druxman, 69, of 30 Corte Real, received a broken knee and possibly a broken wrist in the accident. California Highway Patrol officers said she missed the San Anselmo exit to Highway 101 in Larkspur and her car ran into the exit's guard rail.

Development Spurt Seen In Larkspur

The Larkspur Planning Commission last night concluded that Larkspur will experience its major growth by 1980 rather than by 1990, as predicted in the Marin Countywide Plan.

Planning Director John Roberto said the county plan projects a 16,256 population within Larkspur's city limits by 1990. As the city's general plan is presently being revised, it would allow about 17,512 residents, he said.

Commissioners said they want to get "a handle" on growth, said Roberto, by working out a system of phased growth based on availability of sewage, utilities and water services.

Roberto said Larkspur's population was 11,203 in 1970, and it's been estimated that if all the presently approved construction is completed, the figure soon will be 13,485.

Using the zoning presently indicated in the general plan it was estimated that 17,512 people could be accommodated, with much of the building expected by the end of this decade.

High density housing planned for the San Quentin Peninsula by T.I. Properties would contribute about 2,300 people to that total, said Roberto.

The commission directed him to prepare a draft of a housing element for inclusion in the general plan, he reported, a statement that will pay attention to phased growth and keeping a balance in the kind of housing available. The proposed policy will be presented to the commission at its Aug. 28 meeting.

The Larkspur Planning Commission also:

SLOPE POLICY — Recommended the city council adopt a slope and hillside development regulations ordinance which uses a complicated formula to govern the density of building permitted on lands with more than a 10 per cent slope.

ORDINANCE — Directed Roberto to check with the city attorney on the wording of a proposed planned development district ordinance and continued a public hearing on it to its Aug. 14 meeting.

CONDOMINIUM — Approved a tentative map converting the San Pan Bay apartments at 517 to 533 Larkspur Plaza Road to condominiums.

MAGNOLIA CINEMA — Rescinded a parking variance for the Magnolia Cinema because the owners haven't executed a contract to use the Arco station parking lot across the street.

NIVEN NURSERIES — — Directed staff to investigate the way the Niven Nurseries agricultural use in downtown Larkspur fits in with the revised general plan.

MEETING — Adjourned to its next regular meeting, Aug. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

HAYWARD — Five Marin and Southern Sonoma sewage agencies were put on notice yesterday that their wastewater flows are near the limits of their treatment facilities.

Two of them, the City of Mill Valley and Ross Valley Sanitary District, already are under bans on new sewer connections pending improved treatment, thus halting residential development.

Others cited in the report by the staff of the Regional Water Quality Control Board are the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District, Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District and City of Petaluma.

The board's executive director, Fred H. Dierker, said he "will continue to watch these dischargers closely, and will present recommendations for board action upon completion of further staff investigation." Such action could include connection bans "if they fail to act," he said.

The five agencies were among 18 throughout the region cited in the report. It also mentioned the Novato Sanitary District, but said it is nearing completion of treatment plant improvements that will put flows under 75 per cent of capacity.

Dierker cautioned that the needed improvements will take "substantial expenditures of capital funds," more than will be available through federal and state grants. The agencies thus will have to pay themselves for interim improvements, he said.

Dierker added that "some of these communities are well aware of their problems, while others need reminding."

In Petaluma's case, he said, the city's limit of 500 new dwelling units a year apparently will permit sewage treatment improvements to keep pace with increased wastewater flows. The city is approximately one year behind schedule for interim improvements, however, Dierker noted.

The Las Gallinas district also is a year behind schedule, but plans to allocate new sewer connections yearly to avoid overloading the treatment plant, the report said.

Interim improvements in the Sausalito-Marin City district are due for completion in March, and should correct or minimize violations of board requirements, it said.

Construction of subregional sewage facilities serving Marin and Southern Sonoma will solve the problems of overloaded treatment plants, Dierker said.

In other business, the board adopted waste discharge requirements for Sears Point Raceway, which plans to discharge a maximum of 70,000 gallons a day of sewage from spectators at track events.

Development Spurt Seen In Larkspur

The Larkspur Planning Commission last night concluded that Larkspur will experience its major growth by 1980 rather than by 1990, as predicted in the Marin Countywide Plan.

Planning Director John Roberto said the county plan projects a 16,256 population within Larkspur's city limits by 1990. As the city's general plan is presently being revised, it would allow about 17,512 residents, he said.

Commissioners said they want to get "a handle" on growth, said Roberto, by working out a system of phased growth based on availability of sewage, utilities and water services.

Roberto said Larkspur's population was 11,203 in 1970, and it's been estimated that if all the presently approved construction is completed, the figure soon will be 13,485.

Using the zoning presently indicated in the general plan it was estimated that 17,512 people could be accommodated, with much of the building expected by the end of this decade.

High density housing planned for the San Quentin Peninsula by T.I. Properties would contribute about 2,300 people to that total, said Roberto.

The commission directed him to prepare a draft of a housing element for inclusion in the general plan, he reported, a statement that will pay attention to phased growth and keeping a balance in the kind of housing available. The proposed policy will be presented to the commission at its Aug. 28 meeting.

The Larkspur Planning Commission also:

SLOPE POLICY — Recommended the city council adopt a slope and hillside development regulations ordinance which uses a complicated formula to govern the density of building permitted on lands with more than a 10 per cent slope.

ORDINANCE — Directed Roberto to check with the city attorney on the wording of a proposed planned development district ordinance and continued a public hearing on it to its Aug. 14 meeting.

CONDOMINIUM — Approved a tentative map converting the San Pan Bay apartments at 517 to 533 Larkspur Plaza Road to condominiums.

MAGNOLIA CINEMA — Rescinded a parking variance for the Magnolia Cinema because the owners haven't executed a contract to use the Arco station parking lot across the street.

NIVEN NURSERIES — Directed staff to investigate the way the Niven Nurseries agricultural use in downtown Larkspur fits in with the revised general plan.

MEETING — Adjourned to its next regular meeting, Aug. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

Petaluma Growth Limit Challenged In New Suit

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Construction Industry Association yesterday filed a new lawsuit in federal court in an attempt to overturn Petaluma's controlled growth policy.

The original lawsuit was dismissed last week by Judge Stanley A. Weigell on the basis of a June 26 supreme court ruling that civil rights cases cannot be brought against local governments, but only against individuals.

Malcolm A. Misuraca, association attorney, said the ammended complaint names each member of the city council, as well as the City of Petaluma, as defendants. The councilmen were not specifically named in the first suit.

The suit charges that Petaluma's policy of limited growth violates the rights of some individuals to move to Petaluma. The policy limits development to 500 new living units per year and was ovewhelmingly approved by residents in a referendum on June 5.

It is expected that Robert T. Anderson of Oakland, special counsel to Petaluma, will follow the action with a second motion to dismiss the suit.

Misuraca said his staff redrafted the suit as quickly as possible so the case, if accepted in federal court, can be heard on the original trial date of Nov. 14.

Woman Hospitalized After Car Accident

A Greenbrae woman was reported in satisfactory condition today at Kaiser Foundation Hospital with injuries suffered in an automobile accident last night.

Hazel M. Druxman, 69, of 30 Corte Real, received a broken knee and possibly a broken wrist in the accident. California Highway Patrol officers said she missed the San Anselmo exit to Highway 101 in Larkspur and her car ran into the exit's guard rail.

Apartments Win Permit In Novato

The Novato City Council last night granted a variance to permit construction of 76 apartments on Diablo Avenue in the city's flood plain area.

By unanimous vote, the council granted the permit to International Concrete Systems Consultants Inc. to construct apartments in two five-story buildings.

A week earlier, the council had referred the matter back to the planning commission, which had previously denied the variance for the apartments. The commission again denied the variance Monday night, but was overridden by the council.

Rabid Animal Toll Rises; Clinics For Dogs Listed

Marin County health officials reported yesterday a rabid bat was found earlier this week in Fairfax, raising to 16 the number of rabid animals reported in Marin so far this year.

A test by the state virus laboratory in Berkeley confirmed the bat died of rabies. Dr. Albrecht said there is no known animal or human exposure to the sick bat.

She said it was the fourth bat and 16th animal reported rabid this year. Besides the bats, seven skunks, two horses, a cow, a sheep and a fox have been reported.

She warned persons to stay away from wild animals and to report animals observed acting strangely.

She advised cat owners to consult their veterinarians about vaccinations and reminded dog owners that the county-sponsored rabies vaccination clinics are still in progress.

Dog vaccination clinics will be held:

Tomorrow — 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the city school administration building, Third and E Streets, San Rafael.

Tuesday — 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Ross School, Lagunitas Road, Ross.

Mill Valley Police Bond Vote Set

Mill Valley residents will vote Nov. 6 on a $545,000 bond issue to finance new police quarters in East Mill Valley in the new fire station building already approved by voters, the city council decided unanimously last night.

The council told city staff to draw up documents for the bond election, retain a bond counsel and explore possible federal funding for part of the project. (Councilman Gerald J. Hood was absent.)

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham estimated the 30-year bond issue could mean an increase in the tax rate of seven cents per $100 assessed valuation. On a $40,000 home this would amount to $7 per year, he said.

But Councilman Robert E. Burton said the city might work out a way to pay for the bonds other than by increasing taxes. He noted that with police moved out of their present quarters, the city would have space in city hall to house the building and planning departments, now renting private office space on Miller Avenue.

A saving of $6,000 per year in rent, he said, could be combined with city revenue sharing for the next few years to pay $35,000 in interest and principal needed annually for the bonds.

Councilman Robert E. Capron commented, however, that revenue sharing may not last forever.

Voters approved a $275,000 bond issue in April 1972 for building a new fire station in East Mill Valley. But because of inflation of construction costs, the council decided earlier this spring to also commit $100,000 of revenue sharing to the project.

During hearings on the fire station, the council also decided that the police needed new facilities.

The combined public safety building is now set to be built at Rogue Moraes Drive and a proposed extension of Sycamore Avenue. If plans continue as mapped out, it will be completed in July 1975.

Architect Matthew R. Mills told the council the combined public safety building would cost $845,740, requiring the spending of $470,000 more than has already been budgeted for the fire station.

But he urged the council to ask for about $550,000 in bonds. "I suggest that you allow for the things that always happen," he said.

"We don't want to get caught short like the last council was on the fire station," said Councilman Capron.

Police Chief William A. Walsh said that with modern facilities the city may not have to add as many new policemen in the future as earlier expected. One major staffing problem now, he said, is that he has to call patrolmen in off the streets to guard suspects because of a lack of holding cells in present city hall quarters. He also said new quarters would make it easier to answer calls. "Right now we're going through the heavily populated downtown area to answer emergency calls."

The council also heard a report from the city engineer on the cost of repairing city streets damaged in winter rains. It agreed to begin work on several projects while asking the federal government for more funds for the repairs. The city had asked for $466,878 in emergency funds but was allotted about $195,122 less by the government.

The council also set Thursday at 8 p.m. as the time of a closed meeting at which Mayor Jean S. Barnard said the council would evaluate the performance of City Manager Cunningham.

Hughes' Mystery Ship Sets Sail

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — Billionaire Howard Hughes' deep sea mining ship, the Glomar Explorer, has set sail down the Delaware River for ocean trials in the Atlantic.

Inmate Says Shackles Are Illegal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Hugo Pinell, a San Quentin Prison convict charged with five counts of murder, said yesterday that shackling him in court violated his constitutional rights.

Pinell told the California Supreme Court that shackling was too severe and a waist chain fixed to a bolted chair would be sufficient for security.

"If the beef is that he shouts or spits, cuffing his hands and feet to his waist will not prevent that," the convict's petition said.

"If the beef is that he throws things or stabs at people with pencils and pens, not giving him anything to throw or stab is sufficient.

"If the beef is that he runs at guards and knocks or blocks them down with his body or shoulder, the waist chains will stop that during court."

Pinell was one of six inmates charged in Aug. 21, 1971, violence which resulted in the deaths of three guards, and three inmates, including black militant convict Gorge Jackson at San Quentin.

An Effort to Compare Food Costs

By Robert Hollis

Everyone who shops in supermarkets is aware that food prices are skyrocketing—47 percent in the past year, says the government.

Last spring, seven students at College of Marin tried to develop comparison shopping techniques that would allow a fair ranking of large food markets.

It turned out to be a difficult, complex project even for business students under the direction of an instructor, Laura Willson, in her class on "Business and Social Problems."

Among the results:

• Although the students started out to test the "poor pay more" theory, they found it's the rich, generally, who get soaked.

• Significant differences in prices for identical items were found in different outlets of the same supermarket chains. A Safeway store in San Rafael, for example, charged more than the Safeway store in Novato for the same items.

• Identical items varied in price as much as 80 percent from store to store. A five-pound bag of Gold Medal Flour, for example, was priced between 63 and 95 cents.

• To make objective comparisons, the students were forced to omit produce and fresh meat counters because of possible variations in quality; house brands were eliminated from the comparisons for the same reason, and the survey couldn't include special sale prices, special services or the like. It was limited, in the end, to a list of 30 popular brand name items.

• Thus defined, the rankings show United markets in San Rafael and San Anselmo as the best places for bargains.

Hard Comparisons

The seven students discovered while visiting Mission District and Hunters Point stores that it's almost impossible to compare many items from market to market.

"One store had three cuts of pork chops and another only one," noted Imron Goldstein, a student surveyor.

Ultimately, it was decided to narrow the price study to 30 items of identical brands and weight.

One dozen eggs (AA Large) varied in price from 57 to 87 cents; C&H sugar in a five pound bag cost between 54 and 79 cents; a six-pack of 12 ounce cans of Coca Cola was 89 cents in one store and $1.15 in another.

Greatest Gap

Perhaps the greatest price spread was found in Oscar Mayer Sliced Bologna in a 12 ounce package. The lowest price found was 97 cents; the highest was $1.64.

Yet of the 30 popular brand name items looked for, only 12 were found in every store.

The students decided to find a "mode price" on each item. That was the price most often charged. Then all the other prices of the same item were arranged in four zones, two above and two below the mode price.

Thus in a Lucky market in Terra Linda, one item was found in the highest price zone, five in the next to the highest, six at the mode price, five in the next to the lowest zone and seven in the lowest zone.

Six items could not be found in the market.

The missing items made it impossible for the students to come up with total costs for a "market basket" of the same 30 items for each store and then compare the 19 stores.

Deputy District Attorney Is Cleared Of Contempt

The judge says the deputy district attorney angrily told him, "It's the (bleep). It's just the (bleep) the way you balled up this case from beginning to end."

The deputy district attorney says she told the judge, "That was a (bleep) thing to do. You have made a complete mess of this case from beginning to end and you have really let yourself be jacked around."

Whatever Kathryn D. Mitchell told Judge David R. Baty two weeks ago in his private office wasn't contempt of court, Baty ruled yesterday as he dismissed a contempt citation against Miss Mitchell.

But even so, both the judge and Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales agreed, Miss Mitchell's language was offensive.

Bath reluctantly dropped the citation after Bales argued that the state code of civil procedures holds that disrespectful language in a judge's chambers can't be termed contempt.

"You're probably right that the code precludes me from treating this as a contempt matter," Baty said to Bales.

But, he told Miss Mitchell "I'm going to send a transcript of your language to the state bar for whatever action they deem proper."

The heated exchange between Miss Mitchell and Baty came July 12 after a day in court in which the judge told her he would not release a San Jose policeman from testifying the next day.

Miss Mitchell, angry because the officer was due to go to Oregon to pick up a prisoner, followed Baty into his office and leveled the verbal broadside.

Bath said yesterday he doesn't think the 30-year-old Miss Mitchell is at all sorry about her remarks.

"I've seen her on several occasions since the incident, and she has not indicated she thinks her remarks were inappropriate or has any regrets for having uttered them."

Miss Mitchell sat quietly through the hearing.

Baty almost seemed to lose his temper when Bales suggested the judge might not have been quite so upset had a man used the language Miss Mitchell did.

"No man has ever talked that way to me," Baty said with emotion. "I've not encountered such talk in all my 14 years on the bench. It was conduct offensive in the extreme and totaly out of line. You know it, I know it and she knows it."

600-Acre Blaze Halted Near Chico

CHICO (UPI) — About 150 men early today contained a fire which blackened 600 acres of brush and grass near Highway 32 about eight miles east of here.

The state Division of Forestry said cause of the blaze, which started yesterday afternoon, had not been determined.

Alaska Oil Line Bill To House Floor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Interior Committee has approved a measure to authorize construction of a trans-Alaska oil pipeline and sent it to the floor for consideration next week.

The bill is similar to a Senate-passed measure authorizing construction of the 789- mile pipeline from Alaska's arctic slope to the warm water port of Valdez regardless of the environmental impact.

The legislation is necessary because present law does not provide for licensing of sufficent width of right of way across public lands for the mammoth construction project.

The committee was evenly divided on whether to allow the pipeline to be built without giving equal consideration to an alternative route across Canada to the midwestern states, but such a requirement was not included in the final version.

Even if the bill passes the House before Congress recesses Aug. 3, differences with the Senate bill would require a conference committee.

Two major sections in the House version not in the Senate's would establish a "no-fault" liability on the oil companies and their affiliates for oil spills between Valdez and the West Coast, and would instruct the administration to conduct a feasibility study with Canada to determine whether Canada can supply enough crude oil to West Coast refineries to make it unnecessary for tankers to enter Puget Sound.

In a related development, a Canadian delegation met with 17 congressmen to express fear of oil spills off Canada's West Coast.

Most debate in committee dealt with National Environmental Protection Act rules requiring environmental impact studies before any project of the pipeline's magnitude can start.

Proposed amendments to require full compliance with the environmental protection requirements were defeated by votes of 19-17, 20-16 and similar margins. The final bill as approved by the committee would protect pipeline companies from court delays over challenges on environmental grounds.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police seized seven sex movies from theaters in the Times Square area yesterday in what was described as their first major such move against obscenity since the Supreme Court ruling.

But one of the theaters reopened shortly after the raids, showing another print of the film that had been confiscated.

Three persons were arrested in the raids, and warrants were issued for four others. "Behind the Green Door," a popular sex film, was among those confiscated.

Deputy District Attorney Is Cleared Of Contempt

The judge says the deputy district attorney angrily told him, "It's the (bleep). It's just the (bleep) the way you balled up this case from beginning to end."

The deputy district attorney says she told the judge, "That was a (bleep) thing to do. You have made a complete mess of this case from beginning to end and you have really let yourself be jacked around."

Whatever Kathryn D. Mitchell told Judge David R. Baty two weeks ago in his private office wasn't contempt of court, Baty ruled yesterday as he dismissed a contempt citation against Miss Mitchell.

But even so, both the judge and Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales agreed, Miss Mitchell's language was offensive.

Bath reluctantly dropped the citation after Bales argued that the state code of civil procedures holds that disrespectful language in a judge's chambers can't be termed contempt.

"You're probably right that the code precludes me from treating this as a contempt matter," Baty said to Bales.

But, he told Miss Mitchell "I'm going to send a transcript of your language to the state bar for whatever action they deem proper."

The heated exchange between Miss Mitchell and Baty came July 12 after a day in court in which the judge told her he would not release a San Jose policeman from testifying the next day.

Miss Mitchell, angry because the officer was due to go to Oregon to pick up a prisoner, followed Baty into his office and leveled the verbal broadside.

Bath said yesterday he doesn't think the 30-year-old Miss Mitchell is at all sorry about her remarks.

"I've seen her on several occasions since the incident, and she has not indicated she thinks her remarks were inappropriate or has any regrets for having uttered them."

Miss Mitchell sat quietly through the hearing.

Baty almost seemed to lose his temper when Bales suggested the judge might not have been quite so upset had a man used the language Miss Mitchell did.

"No man has ever talked that way to me," Baty said with emotion. "I've not encountered such talk in all my 14 years on the bench. It was conduct offensive in the extreme and totaly out of line. You know it, I know it and she knows it."

600-Acre Blaze Halted Near Chico

CHICO (UPI) — About 150 men early today contained a fire which blackened 600 acres of brush and grass near Highway 32 about eight miles east of here.

The state Division of Forestry said cause of the blaze, which started yesterday afternoon, had not been determined.

Alaska Oil Line Bill To House Floor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Interior Committee has approved a measure to authorize construction of a trans-Alaska oil pipeline and sent it to the floor for consideration next week.

The bill is similar to a Senate-passed measure authorizing construction of the 789- mile pipeline from Alaska's arctic slope to the warm water port of Valdez regardless of the environmental impact.

The legislation is necessary because present law does not provide for licensing of sufficent width of right of way across public lands for the mammoth construction project.

The committee was evenly divided on whether to allow the pipeline to be built without giving equal consideration to an alternative route across Canada to the midwestern states, but such a requirement was not included in the final version.

Pipeline proponents got the two-thirds majority needed to suspend House rules that would have delayed floor consideration until September. The vote in favor of the reduced time was 20-9.

Even if the bill passes the House before Congress recesses Aug. 3, differences with the Senate bill would require a conference committee.

Two major sections in the House version not in the Senate's would establish a "no-fault" liability on the oil companies and their affiliates for oil spills between Valdez and the West Coast, and would instruct the administration to conduct a feasibility study with Canada to determine whether Canada can supply enough crude oil to West Coast refineries to make it unnecessary for tankers to enter Puget Sound.

In a related development, a Canadian delegation met with 17 congressmen to express fear of oil spills off Canada's West Coast.

Most debate in committee dealt with National Environmental Protection Act rules requiring environmental impact studies before any project of the pipeline's magnitude can start.

Proposed amendments to require full compliance with the environmental protection requirements were defeated by votes of 19-17, 20-16 and similar margins. The final bill as approved by the committee would protect pipeline companies from court delays over challenges on environmental grounds.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Secret celebrity. Today's contest features another TV star. Next Wednesday he will be 51 years old. If you know today's mystery man, send us his name and you may win a prize. See rules below.

Happy birthday to? A small town boy from Canada. I was born August 1, 1922, in a town so small you couldn't pass anybody on the street without saying hello. It was wheat country. My father was a country lawyer and wanted me to be one, too.

British Columbia is where I headed for my education. Three years as a pre-law student. Then the war came along. I joined the Royal Canadian Air Force, ended up as an airframe mechanic. Never went overseas. But I got some new ideas. Why not try acting? I had been in college productions, liked it a lot better than law. So I finished my degree in liberal arts and drama.

My wife is actress Peggy Hassard. We met and married in Canada. Then a friend in London invited us over. We thought it would be a short vacation. But the BBC hired us both. I got leading roles in the theatre, television and film. Both our children were born there.

Eight years later we came back. I got some good parts on Broadway and played opposite actresses like Uta Hagen and Ingrid Bergman. You also saw me on TV. Everything from Alfred Hitchcock Presents to The Bold Ones.

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Bathtub Is For Baths; Bath Coup Is In Bridge

Today's column is written chiefly for modern bridge players who don't know the difference between a Bath Coup and a bathtub.

The Bath Coup, first invented about 200 years ago, in the days of Whist, is still a very effective play in contract bridge. The bathtub is still effective, too, but not at the bridge table.

KING OF DIAMONDS

West opened the king of diamonds, and South thought before playing the first card from dummy. He saw that there was some danger of losing two diamonds, one heart and one club.

Having thought of a plan, declarer played a low diamond from dummy and could drop the seven of diamonds from his own hand with a very natural motion. The idea was to deceive West and a clumsily executed deceptive play doesn't fool anybody.

EIGHT OF DIAMONDS

West thought that East had played the eight of diamonds from some such holding as A-8-2. West therefore continued with a low diamond, and South was able to win the trick with the jack.

Now South could draw trumps and lead a club. The defenders could take their two acres, but the contract was safe.

South's refusal to take the first trick was the Bath Coup. This play, from A-J-x or A-J-x-x, became very popular in the English resort town Bath in the days of Beau Nash.

SAVE DEFENSE

A switch to hearts at the second trick would save the defense. East would take the ace of hearts and return a diamond. Now the defenders would surely get their two diamond tricks as well as the two acres.

South would lose the contract if he took the first trick with the ace of diamonds. He would then draw trumps and lead a club. West would take the ace of clubs and lead a heart to East's ace.

East would then return a diamond, and West would take two diamond tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one spade.

The next player passes, and you hold:

♠ - K J 9 5
♥ - Q 8
♦ - 6 4 3
♣ - K Q J 9.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs.

The hand is not quite worth a raise to three spades. Bid a side suit and raise spades later. If you had passed originally, you would jump to three spades.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Secret celebrity. Today's contest features another TV star. Next Wednesday he will be 51 years old. If you know today's mystery man, send us his name and you may win a prize. See rules below.

Happy birthday to? A small town boy from Canada. I was born August 1, 1922, in a town so small you couldn't pass anybody on the street without saying hello. It was wheat country. My father was a country lawyer and wanted me to be one, too.

British Columbia is where I headed for my education. Three years as a pre-law student. Then the war came along. I joined the Royal Canadian Air Force, ended up as an airframe mechanic. Never went overseas. But I got some new ideas. Why not try acting? I had been in college productions, liked it a lot better than law. So I finished my degree in liberal arts and drama.

My wife is actress Peggy Hassard. We met and married in Canada. Then a friend in London invited us over. We thought it would be a short vacation. But the BBC hired us both. I got leading roles in the theatre, television and film. Both our children were born there.

ORDINANCE NO. 1110
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL AMENDING TITLE 3, FINANCE AND TAXATION, BY ADDING THERETO CHAPTER 3.26, ENTITLED PROPERTY DEVELOPMENT EXCISE TAX

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

DIVISION 1. Title 3, Finance and Taxation, of the Municipal Code of the City of San Rafael, is hereby amended by the addition thereto of Chapter 3.26, Sections 3.26.010 through 3.26.130, entitled Property Development Excise Tax which shall read as follows:

Chapter 3.26 Property Development Excise Tax.

Sections:

3.26.010 Title.
3.26.020 Purpose.
3.26.030 Definitions.
3.26.040 Tax Imposed.
3.26.050 Rates of Tax.
3.26.060 Persons Liable for Tax.
3.26.070 Construction Without Paying Tax.
3.26.080 Due Date.
3.26.090 Delinquency, Penalty and Interest.
3.26.100 Exceptions.
3.26.110 Exclusions.
3.26.120 Refunds.
3.26.130 Disposition of Proceeds.

3.26.010 TITLE. This Chapter shall be known as the Property Development Excise Tax.

Public Notice

3.26.020 PURPOSE. The City Council of the City of San Rafael hereby declares that these taxes are imposed pursuant to the taxing power of the City of San Rafael and solely for the purpose of producing revenue. The increased development of land in the City of San Rafael has created a need for the acquisition of public property and for public improvements and facilities which cannot be met by the ordinary revenues of the City and has created an urgent need for the planning, acquisition, improvement and expansion and maintenance of public parks, playground and recreational facilities to serve the increasing population of the City and the means for providing additional revenues with which to finance such public facilities and the most practical and equitable method of collecting the funds necessary for such purposes is to impose an excise tax upon the construction and occupancy of commerical and industrial development within the City.

3.26.030 DEFINITIONS. For the purpose of this Chapter, the words defined in this Section shall have the meaning assigned to them unless from the context it appears that a different meaning is intended.

A. "Commercial unit defined." As used in this Chapter, commercial unit shall mean any space in a building or structure designed or intended to be occupied or used for business or commercial purposes, including sleeping rooms in hotels and motels without kitchens or kitchen facilities.

B. "Industrial unit defined." As used in this Chapter industrial unit shall mean any space in a building or structure designed or intended for manufacturing, processing, research, warehousing and similar uses.

C. "Person defined." Includes every person, firm or corporation constructing a commercial or industrial unit itself, or through the services of an employee, agent or independent contractor.

3.26.040 TAX IMPOSED. An excise tax is hereby imposed upon the construction and occupancy of each commercial or industrial unit in the City of San Rafael.

3.26.050 RATES OF TAX. Commencing on the effective date of this Ordinance, the rates of the excise tax hereby imposed are as follows:

A. Commercial. For each commercial building or commercial unit in a building the amount of $.10 per square foot of gross floor area, including any area in a building designed for the parking of vehicles.

B. Industrial. For each industrial building or industrial unit in a building the amount of $ .05 per square foot of gross floor area, including any area in a building designed for the parking of vehicles.

3.26.060 PERSONS LIABLE FOR TAX. The taxes imposed by this Chapter are due from the person by or on behalf of whom a commercial or industrial unit or building is constructed, or a building or part thereof occupied for commercial or industrial use, whether such person is the owner or a lessee of the land upon which the construction is to occur. The City Treasurer shall collect the tax and any penalty or interest due hereunder. The full amount due under this Chapter shall constitute a debt to the City. An action for the collection thereof may be commenced in the name of the City in any Court having jurisdiction of the cause.

3.26.070 CONSTRUCTION WITHOUT PAYING TAX. No person shall begin the construction of any commercial or industrial unit or building in the City of San Rafael without first having paid the tax and any penalty and interest due the City under this chapter.

3.26.080 DUE DATE. The amount of the tax due hereunder shall be determined at the time a building permit is sought for the construction or use of commercial or industrial units or buildings, and the full amount of said tax shall be due and payable concurrently with the application for such permit. If such tax is not fully paid, no building permit shall be issued therefor.

3.26.090 DELINQUENCY, PENALTY AND INTEREST. There shall be added to the tax for any unit or for so much of said tax as becomes delinquent, a penalty of 25% which shall thereupon become payable in the same manner as the tax. The tax and penalty shall bear interest at the rate of fifty-eight one-hundredths of one per cent (.58 of 1%) per month until paid.

3.26.100 EXCEPTIONS. There is excepted from the tax imposed by this chapter the construction of a commercial or industrial unit or building which is a replacement for a unit or building being removed from the same lot or parcel of land. The exemption shall equal but not exceed the tax which would be payable thereunder if the unit being replaced were being newly constructed.

3.26.110 EXCLUSIONS. There is excluded from the tax imposed by this chapter the following:

A. The construction of any building or unit by any bank, including national banking associations.

B. The construction of any building by a non-profit corporation exclusively for religious, educational, hospital or charitable purposes.

C. The construction of any building by the United States or any department or agency thereof or by the State of California or any department, agency, or political subdivision thereof.

3.26.120 REFUNDS. Any tax, penalty, or interest paid to the City under this chapter for any building or unit of a building which is not constructed shall be refunded upon application of the taxpayer and a showing to the satisfaction of the City Treasurer that said building or unit has not been constructed or construction commenced and that the building permit issued for said building or unit has been cancelled or surrendered or otherwise does not authorize the construction of said building or unit.

3.26.130 DISPOSITION OF PROCEEDS. All proceeds from the tax, penalty and interest collected under this chapter shall be paid into the Parks and Recreation Facilities Fund heretofore established pursuant to Ordinance 1029. Said proceeds shall be used solely for the acquisition, improvement and expansion and maintenance of public parks, playground and/or recreational purposes.

DIVISION 2. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance. The Council hearby declares that it would have adopted the Ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared invalid.

DIVISION 3. This Ordinance shall be published once in full before its final passage, in the Independent-Journal, a newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in the City of San Rafael and shall be in full force and effect thirty (30) days after its final passage.

Public Notice

3.26.020 PURPOSE. The City Council of the City of San Rafael hereby declares that these taxes are imposed pursuant to the taxing power of the City of San Rafael and solely for the purpose of producing revenue. The increased development of land in the City of San Rafael has created a need for the acquisition of public property and for public improvements and facilities which cannot be met by the ordinary revenues of the City and has created an urgent need for the planning, acquisition, improvement and expansion and maintenance of public parks, playground and recreational facilities to serve the increasing population of the City and the means for providing additional revenues with which to finance such public facilities and the most practical and equitable method of collecting the funds necessary for such purposes is to impose an excise tax upon the construction and occupancy of commerical and industrial development within the City.

3.26.030 DEFINITIONS. For the purpose of this Chapter, the words defined in this Section shall have the meaning assigned to them unless from the context it appears that a different meaning is intended.

A. "Commercial unit defined." As used in this Chapter, commercial unit shall mean any space in a building or structure designed or intended to be occupied or used for business or commercial purposes, including sleeping rooms in hotels and motels without kitchens or kitchen facilities.

B. "Industrial unit defined." As used in this Chapter industrial unit shall mean any space in a building or structure designed or intended for manufacturing, processing, research, warehousing and similar uses.

C. "Person defined." Includes every person, firm or corporation constructing a commercial or industrial unit itself, or through the services of an employee, agent or independent contractor.

3.26.040 TAX IMPOSED. An excise tax is hereby imposed upon the construction and occupancy of each commercial or industrial unit in the City of San Rafael.

3.26.050 RATES OF TAX. Commencing on the effective date of this Ordinance, the rates of the excise tax hereby imposed are as follows:

A. Commercial. For each commercial building or commercial unit in a building the amount of $.10 per square foot of gross floor area, including any area in a building designed for the parking of vehicles.

B. Industrial. For each industrial building or industrial unit in a building the amount of $ .05 per square foot of gross floor area, including any area in a building designed for the parking of vehicles.

3.26.060 PERSONS LIABLE FOR TAX. The taxes imposed by this Chapter are due from the person by or on behalf of whom a commercial or industrial unit or building is constructed, or a building or part thereof occupied for commercial or industrial use, whether such person is the owner or a lessee of the land upon which the construction is to occur. The City Treasurer shall collect the tax and any penalty or interest due hereunder. The full amount due under this Chapter shall constitute a debt to the City. An action for the collection thereof may be commenced in the name of the City in any Court having jurisdiction of the cause.

3.26.070 CONSTRUCTION WITHOUT PAYING TAX. No person shall begin the construction of any commercial or industrial unit or building in the City of San Rafael without first having paid the tax and any penalty and interest due the City under this chapter.

3.26.080 DUE DATE. The amount of the tax due hereunder shall be determined at the time a building permit is sought for the construction or use of commercial or industrial units or buildings, and the full amount of said tax shall be due and payable concurrently with the application for such permit. If such tax is not fully paid, no building permit shall be issued therefor.

3.26.090 DELINQUENCY, PENALTY AND INTEREST. There shall be added to the tax for any unit or for so much of said tax as becomes delinquent, a penalty of 25% which shall thereupon become payable in the same manner as the tax. The tax and penalty shall bear interest at the rate of fifty-eight one-hundredths of one per cent (.58 of 1%) per month until paid.

3.26.100 EXCEPTIONS. There is excepted from the tax imposed by this chapter the construction of a commercial or industrial unit or building which is a replacement for a unit or building being removed from the same lot or parcel of land. The exemption shall equal but not exceed the tax which would be payable thereunder if the unit being replaced were being newly constructed.

3.26.110 EXCLUSIONS. There is excluded from the tax imposed by this chapter the following:

A. The construction of any building or unit by any bank, including national banking associations.

B. The construction of any building by a non-profit corporation exclusively for religious, educational, hospital or charitable purposes.

C. The construction of any building by the United States or any department or agency thereof or by the State of California or any department, agency, or political subdivision thereof.

3.26.120 REFUNDS. Any tax, penalty, or interest paid to the City under this chapter for any building or unit of a building which is not constructed shall be refunded upon application of the taxpayer and a showing to the satisfaction of the City Treasurer that said building or unit has not been constructed or construction commenced and that the building permit issued for said building or unit has been cancelled or surrendered or otherwise does not authorize the construction of said building or unit.

3.26.130 DISPOSITION OF PROCEEDS. All proceeds from the tax, penalty and interest collected under this chapter shall be paid into the Parks and Recreation Facilities Fund heretofore established pursuant to Ordinance 1029. Said proceeds shall be used solely for the acquisition, improvement and expansion and maintenance of public parks, playground and/or recreational purposes.

DIVISION 2. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance. The Council hearby declares that it would have adopted the Ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared invalid.

DIVISION 3. This Ordinance shall be published once in full before its final passage, in the Independent-Journal, a newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in the City of San Rafael and shall be in full force and effect thirty (30) days after its final passage.

Ervin Is Rankled By Ehrlichman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman's first day before the Senate Watergate Committee can be summed up in 2 ½ words—when he called the chief counsel "professor" and when he slipped and addressed Chairman Sam Ervin as "Mr. Preside..." (See another story, page 1.)

Ehrlichman, once one of President Nixon's top two aides, nodded his head, arched his eyebrows and flicked the pages of his 30-page statement with exaggerated motion yesterday as he professed complete innocence of wrongdoing in the Watergate scandal.

Sometimes he slapped his palms on the arms of his chair to emphasize a point; sometimes he held out his index fingers as if he were measuring a fish and tapped them on top of the brown-felt witness table.

He ran into Dash's toughest questioning of the nine weeks of Senate hearings, and by the time Ervin's questions tumbled out in an afternoon torrent of anger and frustration there were tiny beads of sweat on Ehrlichman's broad forehead.

For all that, Ehrlichman remained unmoved in his testimony. He testified that he:

Had relied on John W. Dean III in the months following the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic offices "on the assumption that he was giving us complete and accurate information." Dean was fired as White House counsel by Nixon on April 30, the same day Ehrlichman resigned with fulsome praise from the President.

Considered the attempt to break into a psychiatrist's office in order to get information about Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg "to be well within the President's inherent constitutional powers."

Believed he was undertaking "a legitimate undertaking" in asking Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer, to raise funds on behalf of the original Watergate defendants.

Ehrlichman returned today for testimony that is expected to last at least through tomorrow. Former White House Chief of Staff H.R. (Bob) Haldeman will follow Ehrlichman to the stand.

The committee is expected to continue its hearings into the second week of August in an effort to complete the Watergate phase of its investigation into 1972 presidential campaign activities. A desire to press on past the scheduled congressional recess date of Aug. 3 was expressed yesterday by Sens. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., and Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., as well as Dash.

Ehrlichman seemed to arouse the strongest feelings of those sitting at the green-felt table opposite him of any of the parade of witnesses so far.

An aide to Ervin said he had never seen the 76-year-old constitutional expert and former North Carolina Supreme Court justice so agitated. Dash said he was more tempted to characterize Ehrlichman's testimony than that of any other witness, but he smiled and refused to do so.

During Dash's questioning of Ehrlichman about the establishment of the White House special unit, know as the "plumbers group," in 1970 to help control news leaks, this exchange took place:

Dash—So there came a time when you were administering an investigative unit?

Ehrlichman — In a literal sense, that's true.

Dash—A literal sense?

Ehrlichman—Yes, sir.

Dash—But not an actual sense?

Dash (who is on leave as professor at Georgetown University)—I'm not dueling with you. I'm just trying to get a....

Later Dash asked Ehrlichman if the knowledge that former White House staffers working under his direction had broken into a psychiatrist's office might have been more embarrasing to the Nixon campaign than Watergate.

"I would not think so, Mr. Dash, for several reasons. No. 1, that episode was part of a very intensive national security investigation which had been impressed with a very high security classification. The likelihood of that being disclosed was very slight.

"No. 2, those people were operating under ... a national security situation, under a situation of considerable moment to the nation in the theft of top secret documents, and their apparent delivery to the Soviet embassy ..."

During the afternoon, Ervin, his words racing ahead of his ability to get them out, taking his glasses on and off, pointing with a pencil, said:

"You said something about the burglarizing of the office of the psychiatrist of Ellsberg was justified by the President's inherent power under the Constitution, didn't you?

Ehrlichman—Yes, sir.

Ervin—And you referred to certain statutes.

Ehrlichman—I referred to a statute in which Congress in 1968 maderecognition of that inherent power.

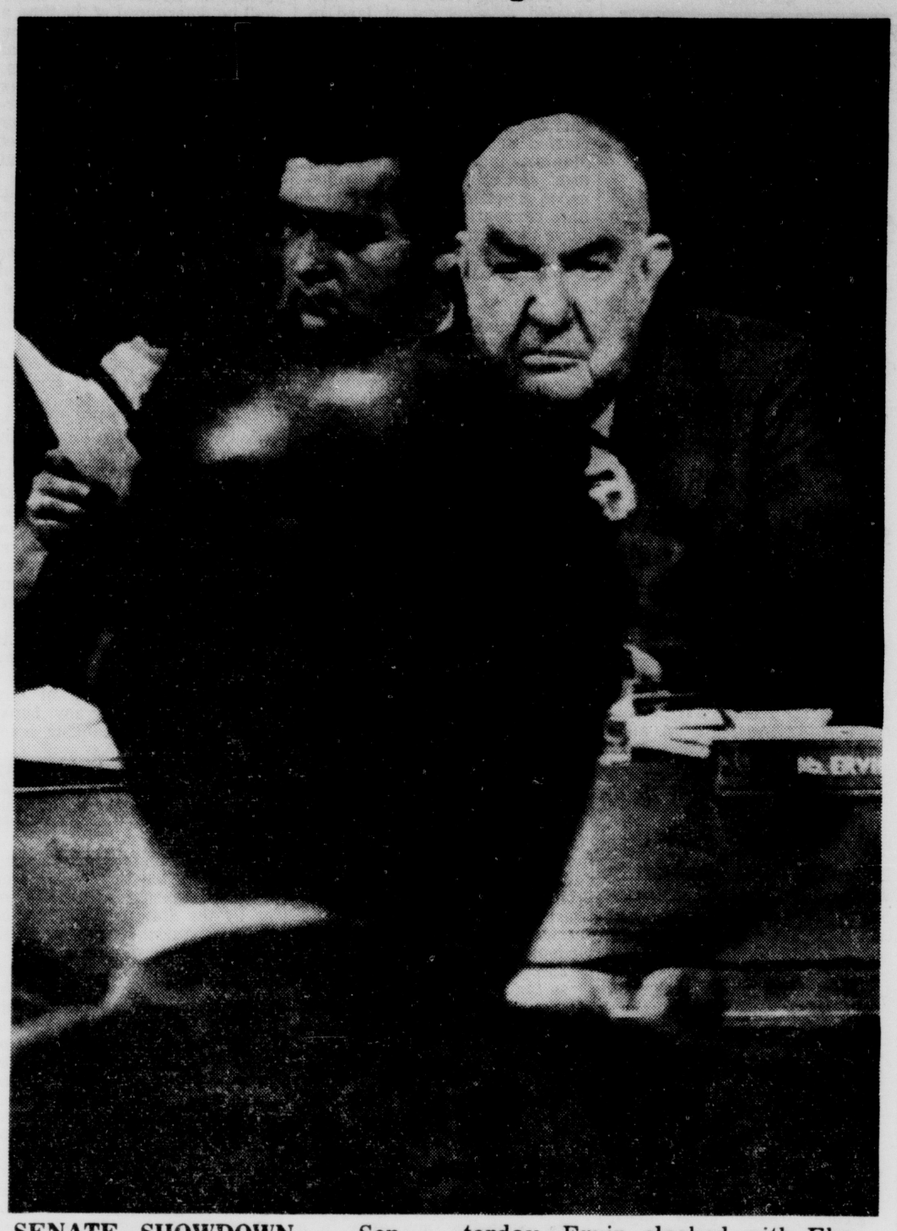
Ervin—Is that section 18 U.S. Code 2511?

Ehrlichman—Yes, sir.

Ervin -Will you please tell me —now this statute has nothing to do with burgalry. It only has to do...

Ehrlichman—It has to do with the U.S. Constitution, Mr. Preside... Mr. Chairman.

Ervin—No, sir. Not the purpose of the statute. The Constitution takes care of itself even though the statute sets it out. This statute has only to do with the interception or disclosure of wire or oral communications prohibited.



SENATE SHOWDOWN — Sen. Sam Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, faced former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman during the latter's appearance before the group yesterday. Ervin clashed with Ehrlichman over whether Nixon has the right to suspend the Fourth Amendment of the Constitution in burglarizing the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. (UPI Telephoto)

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

More Lung Caner Than Ever; Diagnosis Is Usually Too Late

Lung cancer now is the most common malignancy in males in this country. According to Doctors Heine H. Hansen and Oleg S. Selawry of the National Cancer Institute, it has increased more than five-fold during the past 3 decades and will take 65,000 lives this year. It is unlikely that the mortality rate will drop, despite our knowledge about the relationship between smoking and this form of cancer.

The outcome is poor, because the diagnosis usually is made too late. When X-ray and other studies detect an early lesion, less than one of four victims has a chance. However, even in this group, the 5-year survival rate varies between 20 and 30 per cent. Overall mortality from lung cancer — both early and late, with and without surgery — is 90 per cent.

WHY IS lung cancer in its early stages so difficult to diagnose? Cough, one of the earliest manifestations, also is a common symptom of heavy smoking. In other words, the victim believes he has smoker's cough as a result of bronchitis. He is unaware of the subtle changes that occurred when the irritation from his cancer was added to that of his smoking. Suspicion is aroused when he begins to cough up blood or develops chest pain. But by this time, it is too late.

Semiannual X-ray screening of middle-aged men for lung cancer does little to improve the outlook. This was the conclusion reached by a team of Philadelphia physicians. More than 6,000 men had chest X-rays twice a year for 10 years. During this time 121 new cases were found. Eight per cent survived after the cancer was detected in this way. Bronchigenic lesions may exist for several months before they are large enough to detect on the film.

THIS IS WHY the medical profession stresses prevention by discouraging cigaret smoking. When a teen-ager begins to smoke, it is difficult for him to look ahead 20 to 35 years.

BLOOD PRESSURE

J. B. writes: Is it normal for the blood pressure to rise during periods of tension and worry?

REPLY

Yes, and over-reactors develop higher readings than do persons who are more placid and know how to roll with the punches.

UNDULANT FEVER

F. T. writes: Do many people get undulant fever from eating rare beef?

REPLY

No. Brucellosis usually is contracted by handling infected meats or the secretions of infected animals, especially if there are open cuts or abrasions on the hands.

TALKED TO SLEEP

K. B. W. writes: What is the name of the disease where you fall asleep at meetings or lectures?

REPLY

This is no disease — it's doing what comes naturally. I assume you are not referring to narcolepsy, a condition in which the individual falls asleep at almost any time.

Many people sleep better when the air in the room is fresh but this is not absolutely necessary. Homes are not airtight and enough oxygen seeps in to supply the body's needs.

GOP Chief Says Nixon Was Bugged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican National Chairman George Bush has charged that the chief investigator for the Senate Watergate Committee was involved in wiretapping Richard Nixon during the 1960 Presidential campaign.

Brush said yesterday he had affidavits which state the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy coordinated spying on the Nixon camp in 1960. Carmine Bellino, the committee investigator, was a Kennedy aide in 1960 and received spying reports, Bush said.

Bellino said the charges were "absolutely false" and said he never "ordered, requested directed or participated in any electronic surveillance whatsoever in connection with any political campaign."

The Watergate Committee's deputy counsel, Rufus Edmisten, said Bellino was the "best investigator on Capitol Hill...-(but) I'm sure Carmine couldn't even wire the most elementary household lamp in America."

Bush said at a news conference he was not making formal accusations but would like to have his charges looked into.

The affidavits included one from the late John Leon, a private investigator, alleging that Leon gave the spy reports to Bellino.

Leon's signed statement said that he never participated in the electronic surveillance of Nixon but learned of the bugging after one of the crucial Kennedy-Nixon television debates. He said he was "confidant" Nixon was bugged because of the way Kennedy was prepared for all of Nixon's arguments.

"If these charges are true, a taint would most certainly be attached to some of the committee's work," Bush said.

Responding to the charges, Bellino said he never engaged in any type of intelligence work for the Kennedy campaign except in one instance. That was trying to track the source of anti-Catholic campaign material used against Kennedy, he said.

Senate GOP Leader Sure Nixon Would Heed Court Tape Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott expressed confidence today that President Nixon would comply with any Supreme Court ruling on disclosure of his secretly recorded conversations on Watergate.

Scott said neither the scandal nor the Senate Watergate Committee's demand for the tape recordings was discussed at a meeting of GOP congressional leaders with Nixon this morning, but in response to reporters' questions, the Pennsylvania senator said:

"I can't imagine the President not enforcing the laws of the land," should the high court order Nixon to release the tapes, Scott said. "I do not believe the President would defy the law."

Both Scott and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said they felt the Supreme Court would uphold Nixon's contention that he has the right to withhold the tape recordings as well as other presidential documents under the doctrine of separation of powers in government.

Nixon's lawyers also predicted victory in the constitutional battle.

"We're going to win this," Charles Allan Wright said yester-day. He is the Austin, Tex., constitutional law authority hired as a consultant on Watergate by the White House.

Nixon announced his decision Monday not to turn over the tapes and other presidential documents to the Senate Watergate Committee and Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox. They responded by serving subpoenas on the President— the first such action since the administration of Thomas Jefferson.

Nixon's lawyers, including Wright, will respond to the subpoenas at 10 a.m. tomorrow in U.S. District Court in Washington.

There also were these developments in the controversy:

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson said he believed Cox was "acting in full accord with the requirements of his job" in seeking access to the tapes and documents. Richardson said he hoped that "in the interests of justice...some practical means of reconciling the competing interests at stake" could be worked out.

Richardson also said, however, he believed the President's refusal to furnish the material to the Senate Committee "rests...on substantial legal and constitutional foundations."

Criticism of Nixon's decision continued in Congress. Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said that if the President did not eventually release the tapes "the American public can conclude only one thing—that he's guilty." Sen. Richard S. Schweicker, R-Pa., said he doubted the Senate committee's probe could be concluded without the tapes.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, however, said he could understand why Nixon would not want to release the tapes at this time because it might be better for him to wait until "all the facts are laid out" rather than answer each witness and each allegation. He said he hoped some accommodation would be reached between the President and Congress.

Three Actions Possible If Tapes Aren't Given

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If President Nixon fails to respond to the Senate Watergate committee's subpoena of White House tapes, the committee has three legal options.

The White House has until tomorrow morning to respond to the subpoenas. If Nixon does not respond, or answers negatively, the committee will hold an executive session, probably Friday, to decide its next legal step.

Lawyers for the committee said there were these three legal options:

Contempt—The Senate is unlikely to hold the President of the United States in contempt but it is an option. Contempt would first have to be voted by the committee, then sent to the floor for a decision by the entire Senate.

Suit—If Nixon makes no response, the committee can file suit. They would seek a "declaratory judgment" —a court ruling saying the committee has the constitutional authority to subpoena the tapes, accompanied by an injunction ordering the White House to turn them over.

Motion — Most likely the President will file a motion in court to quash the subpoenas on constitutional grounds. He has argued that the doctrine of separation of powers prevent him from turning Presidential documents over to a Congressional committee.

If the President files such a motion, the committee will respond in court with its side of the legal arguments, and the court will rule on the constitutional issue.

$1 Million In Art Is Stolen

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Art thieves stole three paintings, including two by Rembrandt, from a museum in the northern resort town of Safad during the night, police said today. The national radio said the works were worth more than $1 million.

The missing pieces were identified as Rembrandt's "Jacob in White" and "Daniel in the Lion's Den," plus a third by the French painter Corot.

Police said the paintings were gone when the Glichtenstein Museum opened. Bars on one of the windows had been bent. The museum has no overnight guard.

Libya Plans Trial Of Hijackers

CAIRO (UPI) — Libya announced today that it will try the hijackers of a Japan Air Lines (JAL) jumbo jet blown up yesterday in eastern Libya minutes after they gave the 150 passengers and crew members five minutes to escape.

The Libyan government radio said it would ask passengers and crew members to supply affidavits for evidence at the trail, but gave no other details.

The Libyan radio, the Radio of the Popular Revolution, quoted Maj. El-Khweldi El-Hamidi, the interior minister and member of the ruling Revolution Command Council, as telling passengers to submit reports on the hijacking "to be used in the procedures of investigation and trial."

That remark, the only mention of a trial in the broadcast, marked the first time Libyan authorities have publicly raised the possibility of some kind of trial for the hijackers.

All the passengers and crew members were reported in good condition in the eastern city of Benghazi, where they rested at a hotel as the guests of the Libyan government, waiting to be picked up by Japan Air Lines relief planes.

The four hijackers were arrested after the plane exploded. They were reported undergoing interrogation. A fifth hijacker, a woman, died in a hand grenade blast during the hijacking five days ago over the Netherlands.

The hijackers were identified by Libyan authorities as Japanese, Palestinian and Ecuadorian.

Earlier, Arab guerrilla organizations in Beirut denounced the hijacking and denied any responsibilty for it. The Palestinian news agency WAFA said guerrilla leaders considered the hijacking inhuman and thought it would hurt the cause of the Palestinian movement.

The burned-out hulk of the Japanese Boeing 747, blown up by the hijackers on the Benina airstrip minutes after the passengers fled, was cleared to one side of the runway late Tuesday and the airport was ordered opened for the relief planes.

Cummins Elected Marinite Head

The association represents 170 families in the Northbridge area, Cummins said.

State Profiting On Investments

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State government profited a record $140 million in fiscal year 1972-73 from the investment of $2.5 billion in surplus and unspent funds, Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest reported Monday.

The earnings compared to a previous high of $100 million during fiscal 1969-70.

The increase was due to the availability of more state money to invest, broadening of the investment program and a greater demand by borrowers for state funds at higher interest rates, Mrs. Priest said.

Ervin Is Rankled By Ehrlichman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman's first day before the Senate Watergate Committee can be summed up in 2 ½ words—when he called the chief counsel "professor" and when he slipped and addressed Chairman Sam Ervin as "Mr. Preside. . . " (See another story, page 1.)

Ehrlichman, once one of President Nixon's top two aides, nodded his head, arched his eyebrows and flicked the pages of his 30-page statement with exaggerated motion yesterday as he professed complete innocence of wrongdoing in the Watergate scandal.

Sometimes he slapped his palms on the arms of his chair to emphasize a point; sometimes he held out his index fingers as if he were measuring a fish and tapped them on top of the brown-felt witness table.

He ran into Dash's toughest questioning of the nine weeks of Senate hearings, and by the time Ervin's questions tumbled out in an afternoon torrent of anger and frustration there were tiny beads of sweat on Ehrlichman's broad forehead.

For all that, Ehrlichman remained unmoved in his testimony. He testified that he:

Had relied on John W. Dean III in the months following the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic offices "on the assumption that he was giving us complete and accurate information." Dean was fired as White House counsel by Nixon on April 30, the same day Ehrlichman resigned with fulsome praise from the President.

Considered the attempt to break into a psychiatrist's office in order to get information about Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg "to be well within the President's inherent constitutional powers."

Believed he was undertaking "a legitimate undertaking" in asking Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer, to raise funds on behalf of the original Watergate defendants.

Ehrlichman returned today for testimony that is expected to last at least through tomorrow. Former White House Chief of Staff H.R. (Bob) Haldeman will follow Ehrlichman to the stand.

The committee is expected to continue its hearings into the second week of August in an effort to complete the Watergate phase of its investigation into 1972 presidential campaign activities. A desire to press on past the scheduled congressional recess date of Aug. 3 was expressed yesterday by Sens. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., and Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., as well as Dash.

Ehrlichman seemed to arouse the strongest feelings of those sitting at the green-felt table opposite him of any of the parade of witnesses so far.

An aide to Ervin said he had never seen the 76-year-old constitutional expert and former North Carolina Supreme Court justice so agitated. Dash said he was more tempted to characterize Ehrlichman's testimony than that of any other witness, but he smiled and refused to do so.

During Dash's questioning of Ehrlichman about the establishment of the White House special unit, know as the "plumbers group," in 1970 to help control news leaks, this exchange took place:

Dash—So there came a time when you were administering an investigative unit?

Ehrlichman — In a literal sense, that's true.

Dash—A literal sense?

Ehrlichman—Yes, sir.

Dash—But not an actual sense?

Dash (who is on leave as professor at Georgetown University)—I'm not dueling with you. I'm just trying to get a....

Later Dash asked Ehrlichman if the knowledge that former White House staffers working under his direction had broken into a psychiatrist's office might have been more embarrasing to the Nixon campaign than Watergate.

"I would not think so, Mr. Dash, for several reasons. No. 1, that episode was part of a very intensive national security investigation which had been impressed with a very high security classification. The likelihood of that being disclosed was very slight.

"No. 2, those people were operating under ... a national security situation, under a situation of considerable moment to the nation in the theft of top secret documents, and their apparent delivery to the Soviet embassy ..."

During the afternoon, Ervin, his words racing ahead of his ability to get them out, taking his glasses on and off, pointing with a pencil, said:

"You said something about the burglarizing of the office of the psychiatrist of Ellsberg was justified by the President's inherent power under the Constitution, didn't you?

Ehrlichman—Yes, sir.

Ervin—And you referred to certain statutes.

Ehrlichman—I referred to a statute in which Congress in 1968 maderecognition of that inherent power.

Ervin—Is that section 18 U.S. Code 2511?

Ehrlichman—Yes, sir.

Ervin -Will you please tell me —now this statute has nothing to do with burgalry. It only has to do...

Ehrlichman—It has to do with the U.S. Constitution, Mr. Preside... Mr. Chairman.

Ervin—No, sir. Not the purpose of the statute. The Constitution takes care of itself even though the statute sets it out. This statute has only to do with the interception or disclosure of wire or oral communications prohibited.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

More Lung Caner Than Ever; Diagnosis Is Usually Too Late

Lung cancer now is the most common malignancy in males in this country. According to Doctors Heine H. Hansen and Oleg S. Selawry of the National Cancer Institute, it has increased more than five-fold during the past 3 decades and will take 65,000 lives this year. It is unlikely that the mortality rate will drop, despite our knowledge about the relationship between smoking and this form of cancer.

The outcome is poor, because the diagnosis usually is made too late. When X-ray and other studies detect an early lesion, less than one of four victims has a chance. However, even in this group, the 5-year survival rate varies between 20 and 30 per cent. Overall mortality from lung cancer — both early and late, with and without surgery — is 90 per cent.

WHY IS lung cancer in its early stages so difficult to diagnose? Cough, one of the earliest manifestations, also is a common symptom of heavy smoking. In other words, the victim believes he has smoker's cough as a result of bronchitis. He is unaware of the subtle changes that occurred when the irritation from his cancer was added to that of his smoking. Suspicion is aroused when he begins to cough up blood or develops chest pain. But by this time, it is too late.

Semiannual X-ray screening of middle-aged men for lung cancer does little to improve the outlook. This was the conclusion reached by a team of Philadelphia physicians. More than 6,000 men had chest X-rays twice a year for 10 years. During this time 121 new cases were found. Eight per cent survived after the cancer was detected in this way. Bronchigenic lesions may exist for several months before they are large enough to detect on the film.

THIS IS WHY the medical profession stresses prevention by discouraging cigaret smoking. When a teen-ager begins to smoke, it is difficult for him to look ahead 20 to 35 years.

GOP Chief Says Nixon Was Bugged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican National Chairman George Bush has charged that the chief investigator for the Senate Watergate Committee was involved in wiretapping Richard Nixon during the 1960 Presidential campaign.

Brush said yesterday he had affidavits which state the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy coordinated spying on the Nixon camp in 1960. Carmine Bellino, the committee investigator, was a Kennedy aide in 1960 and received spying reports, Bush said.

Bellino said the charges were "absolutely false" and said he never "ordered, requested directed or participated in any electronic surveillance whatsoever in connection with any political campaign."

The Watergate Committee's deputy counsel, Rufus Edmisten, said Bellino was the "best investigator on Capitol Hill...-(but) I'm sure Carmine couldn't even wire the most elementary household lamp in America."

Bush said at a news conference he was not making formal accusations but would like to have his charges looked into.

The affidavits included one from the late John Leon, a private investigator, alleging that Leon gave the spy reports to Bellino.

Leon's signed statement said that he never participated in the electronic surveillance of Nixon but learned of the bugging after one of the crucial Kennedy-Nixon television debates. He said he was "confidant" Nixon was bugged because of the way Kennedy was prepared for all of Nixon's arguments.

"If these charges are true, a taint would most certainly be attached to some of the committee's work," Bush said.

Responding to the charges, Bellino said he never engaged in any type of intelligence work for the Kennedy campaign except in one instance. That was trying to track the source of anti-Catholic campaign material used against Kennedy, he said.

Senate GOP Leader Sure Nixon Would Heed Court Tape Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott expressed confidence today that President Nixon would comply with any Supreme Court ruling on disclosure of his secretly recorded conversations on Watergate.

Scott said neither the scandal nor the Senate Watergate Committee's demand for the tape recordings was discussed at a meeting of GOP congressional leaders with Nixon this morning, but in response to reporters' questions, the Pennsylvania senator said:

"I can't imagine the President not enforcing the laws of the land," should the high court order Nixon to release the tapes, Scott said. "I do not believe the President would defy the law."

Both Scott and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said they felt the Supreme Court would uphold Nixon's contention that he has the right to withhold the tape recordings as well as other presidential documents under the doctrine of separation of powers in government.

Nixon's lawyers also predicted victory in the constitutional battle.

"We're going to win this," Charles Allan Wright said yester-day. He is the Austin, Tex., constitutional law authority hired as a consultant on Watergate by the White House.

Nixon announced his decision Monday not to turn over the tapes and other presidential documents to the Senate Watergate Committee and Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox. They responded by serving subpoenas on the President— the first such action since the administration of Thomas Jefferson.

Nixon's lawyers, including Wright, will respond to the subpoenas at 10 a.m. tomorrow in U.S. District Court in Washington.

There also were these developments in the controversy:

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson said he believed Cox was "acting in full accord with the requirements of his job" in seeking access to the tapes and documents. Richardson said he hoped that "in the interests of justice...some practical means of reconciling the competing interests at stake" could be worked out.

Richardson also said, however, he believed the President's refusal to furnish the material to the Senate Committee "rests...on substantial legal and constitutional foundations."

Criticism of Nixon's decision continued in Congress. Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said that if the President did not eventually release the tapes "the American public can conclude only one thing—that he's guilty." Sen. Richard S. Schweicker, R-Pa., said he doubted the Senate committee's probe could be concluded without the tapes.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, however, said he could understand why Nixon would not want to release the tapes at this time because it might be better for him to wait until "all the facts are laid out" rather than answer each witness and each allegation. He said he hoped some accommodation would be reached between the President and Congress.

Three Actions Possible If Tapes Aren't Given

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If President Nixon fails to respond to the Senate Watergate committee's subpoena of White House tapes, the committee has three legal options.

The White House has until tomorrow morning to respond to the subpoenas. If Nixon does not respond, or answers negatively, the committee will hold an executive session, probably Friday, to decide its next legal step.

Lawyers for the committee said there were these three legal options:

Contempt—The Senate is unlikely to hold the President of the United States in contempt but it is an option. Contempt would first have to be voted by the committee, then sent to the floor for a decision by the entire Senate.

Suit—If Nixon makes no response, the committee can file suit. They would seek a "declaratory judgment" —a court ruling saying the committee has the constitutional authority to subpoena the tapes, accompanied by an injunction ordering the White House to turn them over.

Motion — Most likely the President will file a motion in court to quash the subpoenas on constitutional grounds. He has argued that the doctrine of separation of powers prevent him from turning Presidential documents over to a Congressional committee.

If the President files such a motion, the committee will respond in court with its side of the legal arguments, and the court will rule on the constitutional issue.

$1 Million In Art Is Stolen

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Art thieves stole three paintings, including two by Rembrandt, from a museum in the northern resort town of Safad during the night, police said today. The national radio said the works were worth more than $1 million.

The missing pieces were identified as Rembrandt's "Jacob in White" and "Daniel in the Lion's Den," plus a third by the French painter Corot.

Police said the paintings were gone when the Glichtenstein Museum opened. Bars on one of the windows had been bent. The museum has no overnight guard.

Libya Plans Trial Of Hijackers

CAIRO (UPI) — Libya announced today that it will try the hijackers of a Japan Air Lines (JAL) jumbo jet blown up yesterday in eastern Libya minutes after they gave the 150 passengers and crew members five minutes to escape.

The Libyan government radio said it would ask passengers and crew members to supply affidavits for evidence at the trail, but gave no other details.

The Libyan radio, the Radio of the Popular Revolution, quoted Maj. El-Khweldi El-Hamidi, the interior minister and member of the ruling Revolution Command Council, as telling passengers to submit reports on the hijacking "to be used in the procedures of investigation and trial."

That remark, the only mention of a trial in the broadcast, marked the first time Libyan authorities have publicly raised the possibility of some kind of trial for the hijackers.

All the passengers and crew members were reported in good condition in the eastern city of Benghazi, where they rested at a hotel as the guests of the Libyan government, waiting to be picked up by Japan Air Lines relief planes.

The four hijackers were arrested after the plane exploded. They were reported undergoing interrogation. A fifth hijacker, a woman, died in a hand grenade blast during the hijacking five days ago over the Netherlands.

The hijackers were identified by Libyan authorities as Japanese, Palestinian and Ecuadorian.

Earlier, Arab guerrilla organizations in Beirut denounced the hijacking and denied any responsibilty for it. The Palestinian news agency WAFA said guerrilla leaders considered the hijacking inhuman and thought it would hurt the cause of the Palestinian movement.

The burned-out hulk of the Japanese Boeing 747, blown up by the hijackers on the Benina airstrip minutes after the passengers fled, was cleared to one side of the runway late Tuesday and the airport was ordered opened for the relief planes.

Cummins Elected Marinite Head

The association represents 170 families in the Northbridge area, Cummins said.

State Profiting On Investments

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State government profited a record $140 million in fiscal year 1972-73 from the investment of $2.5 billion in surplus and unspent funds, Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest reported Monday.

The earnings compared to a previous high of $100 million during fiscal 1969-70.

The increase was due to the availability of more state money to invest, broadening of the investment program and a greater demand by borrowers for state funds at higher interest rates, Mrs. Priest said.

Parking Law Challenge Is Failure

A San Anselmo tax consultant who can't fit both his cars inside his garage was found guilty yesterday of violating a city no-parking law 18 times and fined $270.

Dean C. Boyd argued that the San Anselmo law — which forbids parking on the street for more than 30 minutes from 2 to 6 a.m. — was applied unfairly to him while others who parked illegally weren't cited.

Not true, said Municipal Judge Gary W. Thomas in finding Boyd guilty in the trial without a jury: "I find no discrimination in the enforcement of the law."

Attorney James Quick argued the San Anselmo ordinance is unconstitutional because the city doesn't warn motorists of the parking restriction.

But Judge Thomas noted that Boyd acknowledged he learned of the law after he received his first citation in early 1970 when he moved to San Anselmo.

Boyd has estimated he has been cited 150 times for parking one of his two cars on the street because his garage isn't big enough for both.

Thomas also put Boyd on probation for one year and ordered him to attend traffic school.

Boyd said he fought the no-parking law because he wanted to bring it to the attention of San Anselmo citizens and to force a hearing on it before the city council.

Mushroom Jars Toxic, Search On

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government has launched a campaign to track down 336,000 glass jars of mushrooms which may contain harmful botulin bacteria.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said the massive recall campaign was started after Canadian authorities confirmed that a Montreal woman had been stricken with botulism poisoning after eating from a jar of mushrooms that had been contaminated by botulism toxin.

The FDA urged the public in the New England states, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and California to return unopened any of five brands of mushrooms—all in glass jars—produced and packaged by Wirth Food Products, Lawrence, Mass.

The brands were identified as Pastene, Purveyor, Carriage Trade, Marinated Mushrooms and Wirth.

Addict Gets Jail Term For Burglary

A heroin addict who pleaded guilty to burglarizing a San Rafael residence has been given a six-month jail term and placed on probation for two years.

Frank Joseph Grace, 26, was sentenced Monday by Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court for his part in the break-in at the Elizabeth A. Davis home in San Rafael March 27.

According to his probation report, Grace has an "extensive history of drug abuse" and is a heroin addict at present. Although the report termed the burglary "just another event in a long history of antisocial and illegal behavior," it also called Grace "intelligent, resourceful and ambitious" and said he "sincerely wants to change his life."

A codefendant, Christopher Wooten, was arrested with Grace but burglary charges later were dropped for lack of evidence.

Hearings Set On Offshore Drilling

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The state Lands Division will conduct the first of three hearings on whether to resume offshore oil drilling here Aug. 14.

E. N. Gladish, executive officer of the state Lands Commission, said information gathered at the hearings will form the basis for a recommendation to the commission on whether to lift a moratorium on drilling.

Jurisdiction over offshore waters within the three-mile limit resides with the commission.

Crippled Vet Is Hired As Guard; And Then Fired

NEW YORK (UPI) — When he returned from Vietnam with one leg an inch shorter than the other because of war wounds, George Kiortsis applied for work as a jail guard. To qualify, he passed a physical examination which included jumping over a six-foot wall.

On May 14, Kiortsis, 25, the father of three, was hired as a probationary corrections officer. On July 25, the recipient of a Bronze Star and the Army Commendation Medal for Valor was fired from his $11,200-ayear job because, the Corrections Department letter said, he did not "meet the medical standards required for a corrections officer."

Kiortsis gave that account at a news conference yesterday. Benjamin Malcolm, commissioner of the Corrections Department, said Kiortsis' case will be reviewed. A spokesman for Malcolm said Kiortsis will be re-examined "by outside specialists to determine if he can properly perform the duties of a corrections officer."

Parking Law Challenge Is Failure

A San Anselmo tax consultant who can't fit both his cars inside his garage was found guilty yesterday of violating a city no-parking law 18 times and fined $270.

Dean C. Boyd argued that the San Anselmo law — which forbids parking on the street for more than 30 minutes from 2 to 6 a.m. — was applied unfairly to him while others who parked illegally weren't cited.

Not true, said Municipal Judge Gary W. Thomas in finding Boyd guilty in the trial without a jury: "I find no discrimination in the enforcement of the law."

Attorney James Quick argued the San Anselmo ordinance is unconstitutional because the city doesn't warn motorists of the parking restriction.

But Judge Thomas noted that Boyd acknowledged he learned of the law after he received his first citation in early 1970 when he moved to San Anselmo.

Boyd has estimated he has been cited 150 times for parking one of his two cars on the street because his garage isn't big enough for both.

Thomas also put Boyd on probation for one year and ordered him to attend traffic school.

Boyd said he fought the no-parking law because he wanted to bring it to the attention of San Anselmo citizens and to force a hearing on it before the city council.

Mushroom Jars Toxic, Search On

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government has launched a campaign to track down 336,000 glass jars of mushrooms which may contain harmful botulin bacteria.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said the massive recall campaign was started after Canadian authorities confirmed that a Montreal woman had been stricken with botulism poisoning after eating from a jar of mushrooms that had been contaminated by botulism toxin.

The FDA urged the public in the New England states, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and California to return unopened any of five brands of mushrooms—all in glass jars—produced and packaged by Wirth Food Products, Lawrence, Mass.

The brands were identified as Pastene, Purveyor, Carriage Trade, Marinated Mushrooms and Wirth.

Crippled Vet Is Hired As Guard; And Then Fired

NEW YORK (UPI) — When he returned from Vietnam with one leg an inch shorter than the other because of war wounds, George Kiortsis applied for work as a jail guard. To qualify, he passed a physical examination which included jumping over a six-foot wall.

On May 14, Kiortsis, 25, the father of three, was hired as a probationary corrections officer. On July 25, the recipient of a Bronze Star and the Army Commendation Medal for Valor was fired from his $11,200-ayear job because, the Corrections Department letter said, he did not "meet the medical standards required for a corrections officer."

Kiortsis gave that account at a news conference yesterday. Benjamin Malcolm, com issioner of the Corrections Department, said Kiortsis' case will be reviewed. A spokesman for Malcolm said Kiortsis will be re-examined "by outside specialists to determine if he can properly perform the duties of a corrections officer."

Addict Gets Jail Term For Burglary

A heroin addict who pleaded guilty to burglarizing a San Rafael residence has been given a six-month jail term and placed on probation for two years.

Frank Joseph Grace, 26, was sentenced Monday by Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court for his part in the break-in at the Elizabeth A. Davis home in San Rafael March 27.

According to his probation report, Grace has an "extensive history of drug abuse" and is a heroin addict at present. Although the report termed the burglary "just another event in a long history of antisocial and illegal behavior," it also called Grace "intelligent, resourceful and ambitious" and said he "sincerely wants to change his life."

A codefendant, Christopher Wooten, was arrested with Grace but burglary charges later were dropped for lack of evidence.

Hearings Set On Offshore Drilling

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The state Lands Division will conduct the first of three hearings on whether to resume offshore oil drilling here Aug. 14.

E. N. Gladish, executive officer of the state Lands Commission, said information gathered at the hearings will form the basis for a recommendation to the commission on whether to lift a moratorium on drilling.

Jurisdiction over offshore waters within the three-mile limit resides with the commission.

JOHN JOHNSTON
Eagle scout

Eagle Rite Scheduled In Novato

John Johnston, 18-year-old Novato scout, will receive the Eagle award in a court of honor Sunday at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Novato.

Johnston, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Johnston, of 710 Arlington Circle, began his scouting career with Pack 73 in Novato.

Upon graduating from Webolos in 1965, he joined Troop 73, where he has served as assistant patrol leader, patrol leader and senior patrol leader. He is currently junior assistant scoutmaster.

Johnston had completed the mile swim and has been initiated into the Order of the Arrow.

For his Eagle project, he recategorized and took inventory of several Indian collections for the Novato Museum of prehistory.

He enjoys skiing, hunting and other sports.

A graduate of Novato High School, Johnston attended Michigan State University this year but plans to attend Indian Valley Colleges in Novato this fall.

Purse Theft Attempt Ends In Jail

A man who pushed an elderly woman to the ground in an attempt to steal her purse has been sentenced to eight months in jail and placed on probation for two years.

David Searls True, 28, of no known address, pleaded guilty last month to attempted grand theft and was promised he would receive no more than a year in jail. Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court sentenced True Monday.

Bambina Bottarini, 78, of San Rafael, suffered bruises in June when she scuffled with True, who tried to grab her purse as she walked to church.

True was arrested after witnessed supplied to police the license number of the car he was driving.

True's probation report says he has used heroin in the past and recommended a jail term to "strengthen. . . his initiative and ability to work."

Guilty Plea In Night Club Fight

A San Rafael man arrested after a scuffle at a San Anselmo night club has pleaded guilty to misdemeanor counts of disturbing the peace and battery.

Michael Lino Paredes, 33, originally had been arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon — a cast on his hand — but only the misdemeanor charges were filed by the district attorney's office, and he admitted to them Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Gary W. Thomas set sentencing for Aug. 3. The altercation, which involved admittance fees at the Lion's Share night club, involved Paredes and floor manager Mark Melanson.

JOHN JOHNSTON
Eagle scout

Eagle Rite Scheduled In Novato

John Johnston, 18-year-old Novato scout, will receive the Eagle award in a court of honor Sunday at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Novato.

Johnston, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Johnston, of 710 Arlington Circle, began his scouting career with Pack 73 in Novato.

Upon graduating from Webolos in 1965, he joined Troop 73, where he has served as assistant patrol leader, patrol leader and senior patrol leader. He is currently junior assistant scoutmaster.

Johnston had completed the mile swim and has been initiated into the Order of the Arrow.

For his Eagle project, he recategorized and took inventory of several Indian collections for the Novato Museum of prehistory.

He enjoys skiing, hunting and other sports.

A graduate of Novato High School, Johnston attended Michigan State University this year but plans to attend Indian Valley Colleges in Novato this fall.

Purse Theft Attempt Ends In Jail

A man who pushed an elderly woman to the ground in an attempt to steal her purse has been sentenced to eight months in jail and placed on probation for two years.

David Searls True, 28, of no known address, pleaded guilty last month to attempted grand theft and was promised he would receive no more than a year in jail. Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court sentenced True Monday.

Bambina Bottarini, 78, of San Rafael, suffered bruises in June when she scuffled with True, who tried to grab her purse as she walked to church.

True was arrested after witnessed supplied to police the license number of the car he was driving.

True's probation report says he has used heroin in the past and recommended a jail term to "strengthen. . . his initiative and ability to work."

Guilty Plea In Night Club Fight

A San Rafael man arrested after a scuffle at a San Anselmo night club has pleaded guilty to misdemeanor counts of disturbing the peace and battery.

Michael Lino Paredes, 33, originally had been arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon — a cast on his hand — but only the misdemeanor charges were filed by the district attorney's office, and he admitted to them Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Gary W. Thomas set sentencing for Aug. 3. The altercation, which involved admittance fees at the Lion's Share night club, involved Paredes and floor manager Mark Melanson.

Mismatch Best Word To Describe N.L. All-Star Win

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The story of the 44th All-Star baseball spectacle can be condensed into one word— mismatch.

And if you wish to add two more—Bobby Bonds.

Their three homers jolted the pro-American League crowd of 40,849 and a national television audience estimated at 50 million Tuesday night. The result was a 7-1 National League romp.

"They embarrassed us," Reggie Jackson said in the shamefaced American League clubhouse. "Did you get a load of that Bonds? He's fantastic, absolutely fantastic."

The San Francisco centerfielder, who was not voted to the starting team despite 25 homers, 28 stolen bases, 64 runs batted in and .306 batting average, pulverized the American League with his bat and his speed.

His two-run homer in the fifth was a blast that carried over the 385-foot sign in left centerfield in sparkling Royals Stadium and built a 5-1 lead. And his routine single to center that he stretched into a stand-up double in the seventh left the host team dazzled.

Lauded by National League Manager Sparky Anderson as "the finest player in either league," Bonds said he bore no grudges at not being elected to the starting team.

"The fans have the right to pick the team they think will win the game," said Bonds. "They're all great outfielders. I'm not disappointed at backing up those kind of guys."

National League thunder struck in consecutive innings, turning a 2-1 lead at the end of three innings into an insurmountable 7-1 margin after six.

Bench opened the scoring parade with a leadoff homer in the fourth. That was the Cincinnati catcher's third All-Star homer, making him one of five players with that many. Only Stan Musial with six and Ted Williams with four have more. And Bench is only 25.

Bonds was inserted into the lineup when the National League took the field in the fourth for Billy Williams. "I got him in as soon as I could," said Sparky Anderson, who finally beat the American League after one All-Star and two World Series' losses.

Joe Morgan led off the fifth with a double before Bill Singer retired Cesar Cedeno and Joe Torre. That brought up Bonds and his towering shot, for all practical purposes, ended the game.

"I forgot mine," said Davis, the Los Angeles centerfielder. "I'm going to steal the helmet for a souvenir. I don't think Henry will mind."

Rick Wise, who gave up the American League's only run in the second on a run-scoring single by Amos Otis, was the winning pitcher. Bert Blyleven, who was tagged for two runs — but no homers — in the third was the loser.

Those runs were produced by a pair of walks and consecutive singles by Cedeno and Aaron.

The AL got just five hits off seven NL pitchers.

The mid-summer classic was in doubt most of Tuesday when heavy rains fell. But the sun broke through three hours before game time and the Kansas City Royals' machines swept the standing water off the artificial turf.

Batting practice was canceled, disappointing many of the early arrivals who wanted to see the likes of Aaron boom a few out of the park. The Atlanta slugger, who only last Saturday slammed his 700th career homer, was given a standing ovation when the teams were introduced. He played just three innings.

And there was a touch of irony, too. Willie Mays was sent up as a pinch-hitter in the eighth, long after the verdict was decided. It was his 24th All-Star appearance, tying him with Musial for the record. But the 42-year-old New York Met was struck out by another New Yorker, Yankee Sparky Lyle.

Even though the game bordered on being dull, especially in the late innings, Anderson called it "the biggest thrill I've ever had in baseball. Even more than being in a World Series."

The National League now has won 10 of the last 11 All-Star games and leads the series 25-18-1.

Giant Boosters Heading For L.A.

The airplane will be bulging when 115 members of the Northern California Giants Boosters Club fly to Los Angeles Saturday to see the key series between the Dodgers and Giants.

The boosters' trip is a sellout, reports the group's president, Allan B. Murray of Kentfield. The trip to Southern California will include three Dodger games and a pair with the San Diego Padres before the group returns back to San Francisco International Airport.

The same is not true for the boosters' eastern swing which is coming up Aug. 16. There are still reservations to be filled for that trip with stops at Pittsburgh, Montreal and New York, the Giants playing three games at each stop.

Murray is arranging for a cocktail party to honor Marin's John Boccabella during the boosters' stop in Montreal. "A lot of our members want to meet John, and he's having such a good year it's only right we get together after one of the games, said Murray.

Other trip highlights, according to Murray, are "a buffet dinner at the Stadium Club in Pittsburgh, a tour of the Laurentian Mountains in Quebec and what may be the last chance to see Willie Mays suited up against the Giants at New York's Shea Stadium." I've never been in Pittsburgh, but from what I've heard, there's not too much to see; I guess that's why Murray decided to keep the boosters at the ballpark's Stadium Club.

Murray, Mr. Organization man, is even making arrangements to transport some of the boosters from Marin to S.F. Airport.

And Al, by the way, has been laid up with a slipped disc in his back and is facing an operation. "That will have to wait until after baseball season," says Al.

BILL TRUMBO, athletic director and head basketball coach at Sonoma State College, is already thinking basketball. After winning Sonoma State's first Far Western Conference championship last season, he wants to do it again.

He announced this week that a pair of North Bay area hot-shots are going to enroll at the Rohnert Park campus this fall, Dave Long, former Healdsburg High and Santa Rosa Junior College player, and Venson Washington, an all-leaguer from Vallejo High.

Long, 6-foot-7 and 210 pounds, was the Bear Cubs' leading rebounder last year as a center, while Washington, 6-5, was a star forward for the North Bay League champion Vallejo team and won most valuable player honors when Vallejo won the Top of the Bay Classic.

TRICK RIDER Paul Stewart, 24, of Mill Valley, will be performing his specialty Aug. 4 and 5 with Antonio Aquilar's Mexican Fiesta Rodeo at the Cow Palace. His horseback riding will be featured at 8:30 p.m. Aug. 4 and at 4:30 p.m. Aug. 5.

AN EARLY START IN GOLF

Surprise Winner In Tennis

Unseeded Jill Scheiderman of San Rafael scored a major upset in the 20th annual Independent-Journal, San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department tennis tournament with a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Girls 18 third-seed Lisa Sockolov of San Rafael.

Tourney action will run through Saturday at four sites in San Rafael — Albert Park, Gerstle Park, Boyd Park and San Rafael High School.

The top seeds in Boys 14 continued to dominate their brackets yesterday with easy wins. Top-seeded Frank Casella of Tiburon downed Dave Dollihite of Fairfax, 6-1, 6-1, and second-seeded Bobby Greene took a 6-0, 6-2 match from Josh McIntyre.

Tomorrow's feature match pits Grant Grinnell of the powerful Redwood High School tennis squad against Boys 18 fourth-seed Mark Wagner. Grinnell, competing in both the boys 16 and 18 singles division, has lost just one game in four one-sided matches so far. Wagner is the son of Hal Wagner,

Slugfest And A No-Hitter In Little League Openers

It was a time for contrast in the opening round of Marin County Little League All-Star Tournament play last night when Hamilton-Loma Verde pounded out 18 hits for a 22-2 victory over Gallinas Valley at Hamilton, and Novato National's Mike Stevenson pitched a no-hitter to lead his teammates to a 14-0 victory over San Geronimo at Hamann Field in Novato.

In other games last night Twin Cities beat Tiburon, 8-1, at Joe Wagner Field, Larkspur; Marinwood-Lucas Valley scored a 7-3 win over San Anselmo at Mary E. Silveira School, Marinwood; Mill Valley American took a 7-4 game from Sausalito at Boyle Park, Mill Valley; Novato American defeated Mill Valley National, 6-0, at Rancho Field, Novato; San Rafael American blasted Strawberry in five innings, 29-0, at Strawberry Park, and Kentfield-Greenbrae took a 7-1 victory from San Rafael National at San Quentin Field.

In tonight's quarter-final games at 6 p.m.:

Marinwood-Lucas Valley faces Novato National at Memorial Park, San Anselmo; Kentfield-Greenbrae challenges San Rafael American at San Quentin; Twin Cities takes on Mill Valley American at Boyle Park, Mill Valley and Novato American faces Hamilton-Loma Verde at Hamilton Field.

Wally Murray and Bill Deller hit home runs to pace the Hamilton-Loma Verde attack; Mike Laden pitched a one-hitter for Twin Cities; Marinwood-Lucas Valley pitcher Tim Young was backed by a George Morgan two-run homer; Sean McCaffree hit a home run for Mill Valley American to aid his own mound cause; Mill Valley pitcher Pete Kraszulyak fanned 12 batters in a losing cause; George Hasler's two-hitter was backed up by Craig Stair's home run in a five for six plate performance, and Cam Garrett belted two home runs for Kentfield-Greenbrae.

HURT AGAIN

Beasley Out Of Action

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) — San Francisco 49er wide receiver Terry Beasley, whose rookie year in 1972 was wrecked by injuries, was on the sideline with an injury again today.

He suffered a strained Achilles tendon Tuesday during passing drills at the club's training camp and was to undergo examination on the injury today.

Beasley was the team's No. 1 draft choice in 1972 and had looked good in drills this year. Proof that he is expected to play a big part in the team's 1973 plans was seen in the fact that the team traded last year's starter, Preston Riley, to New Orleans.

The 49ers also cut six players Tuesday, including punters Bill Dement, Dennis Ward and John O'Hagen. Ends Don Burchfield and Tony Smith also were handed their walking papers as was running back Tom Dahlberg of Gustavus Adolphus, the team's 11th round draft pick.

It was also announced that No. 3 quarterback Joe Reed would play most of the way against New England in the Hall of Fame Game at Canton, Ohio, Saturday.

Reed has looked effective on the few occasions when he has played, especially in a 33-17 win over Denver in an pre-season game last year. But it's hard for a young quarterback to see much action on a team that has John Brodie and Steve Spurrier at quarterback.

Rentzel Draws NFL Suspension

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Lance Rentzel has had his troubles but, said Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom Tuesday, he "has taken his medicine like a man."

The latest "medicine" was a one-year suspension for the Rams wide receiver by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle for "conduct detrimental to the National Football League.

The "conduct" was a possession of marijuana conviction last May which carried a $2,000 fine and a 90-day jail sentence. Rentzel is appealing the jail term.

Rentzel was notified of the suspension Tuesday in a letter from Rozelle.

In a statement released through the Rams, Rentzel said, "I feel the best thing I can do, for all concerned, is to accept the commissioner's decision in a positive manner. I understand his position and continue to have the highest respect for him in every way."

Rentzel had been placed on probation by Rozelle in 1971 for a conviction of indecent exposure to a 10 year-old girl in Dallas while he was playing for the Cowboys.

Rozelle reached his decision on this season's suspension after reviewing the records of a hearing in the NFL office June 20 on Rentzel's 1971 probation.

"Everyone has his share of problems in life," Rentzel said. "I have learned that it's not what happens to you, but how you react to what happens to you that counts."

The 29-year-old Rentzel, who was traded to the Rams in 1971, said he plans "to do everything possible to be ready to play next year."

Rozelle said Rentzel could apply for reinstatement at the end of the season when his case is reviewed. Rentzel, recovering from a sore knee last year, said earlier that he had never been in better shape and was going to dedicate the season to owner Carroll Rosenbloom, who had supported him during his marijuana charges.

Rentzel said he could not comment on the conviction because it is under appeal.

He said now he plans to finish a novel he has been working on and work "in various programs for people less fortunate than I."

Weiskopf Is Among Canadian Favorites

MONTREAL (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, the recently-crowned British Open champ, returns to action this week as one of the leading contenders for still another national title in the $175,000 Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

The 72-hole event begins tomorrow on the 6,905-yard, par-72 Richelieu Valley Golf Club Course with a stng international Course with a strong international $35,000 first prize in this, the national championships of Canada.

For several years the Canadian has been something of a stepchild on the Amaerican tour and has been stuck with dates just prior to the British Open. It often was bypassed by many of the top American stars.

Now, blessed with good dates and an increased purse, the tournament has drawn an excellent field and sponsors hope to advance its prestige a level just below the game's big four tournaments — the British and American opens, the Masters and PGA.

Jack Nicklaus is the only outstanding star among the missing. He'd planned to play but his wife, Barbara gave birth to a seven-pound, four-ounce boy yesterday, so he changed his plans.

All the Big four title-holders — Johnny Miller (U.S. Open), Weiskopf (British Open). Tommy Aaron (Masters) and Gary Player (PGA) — are included in the 150-man field.

Weiskopf, Crampton and Trevino rank as the favorites.

The final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be telecast nationally in Canada by CBC-TV. It will not be televised in the United States.

Mustangs Triumph In Drake Basketball

Skip Starnes scored 24 points last night to lead the Mustangs to a 69-46 victory over the Hornets in Drake High School Summer Basketball League action.

In other games, Shaw's Ice Cream beat Red and Blue, 45-44, and the Crusaders crushed the Wildcats, 73-62.

CHAMPS GOLF SCHEDULED FOR AUG. 19

RUSSIAN TRACK VICTORY

Two Teen-Agers Star

MINSK, USSR (UPI) — Long after they forget the score, the Soviets who watched the annual Soviet-American track and field meet will remember two American teenagers, Mary Decker and Steve Williams. The two delighted the crowds in the two-day competition, which ended Tuesday with the Soviets winning the men's event 121-112 and the women's 95-51 for an overall 216-163 score.

Williams, 19, from San Diego, Calif., humiliated Valery Borzov, two-time Olympic gold medalist, in the 400-meter relay on opening day. Tuesday he won the 200 meters, which Borzov passed up because of nerve trouble in his leg.

It was only the third time the U.S. men have lost in 11 dual meets. The American women, traditonally weaker than their Soviet counterparts, have only won once.

Losing did not appear to bother many of the U.S. athletes and their coaches. The meet in the Byelorussian capital stadium ended with Soviet and American athletes trotting around the track hand in hand to the rhythmic clapping and cheers of about 30,000 fans.

The Soviet men, with virtually all their top athletes participating, came up with strong performances in the last three events to defeat a weak and tired U.S. side missing several of its top athletes. The Americans are in the third week of a European tour that has already seen them defeat West Germany and Italy.

Jones, Ferguson To Lead All-Stars

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins may have to beat the Southern California offense to win the annual All Star game Friday night, but they'll have to beat pro-style quarterbacks running the attack.

Bert Jones, from Louisiana State, and Joe Ferguson, from Arkansas, have similar talents, and it's likely both will get into action to see how well they can do against the National Football League champions.

Jones, the No. 1 pick in the draft by Baltimore last winter, was regarded as the most likely starter, although Coach John McKay of the Trojans hasn't specified that he'll get the job. Regardless, McKay believes in using all his personnel, so Ferguson will get a chance, too.

It's rather strange that both Jones and Ferguson probably will share the signal calling for the collegians, since their careers have been parallel. Both are from Louisiana and played three times against each other in high school.

When they went to college, neither saw any point in both attending the same school to divide their playing time or waste their talents.

Mismatch Best Word To Describe N.L. All-Star Win

Their three homers jolted the pro-American League crowd of 40,849 and a national television audience estimated at 50 million Tuesday night. The result was a 7-1 National League romp.

"They embarrassed us," Reggie Jackson said in the shamefaced American League clubhouse. "Did you get a load of that Bonds? He's fantastic, absolutely fantastic."

The San Francisco centerfielder, who was not voted to the starting team despite 25 homers, 28 stolen bases, 64 runs batted in and .306 batting average, pulverized the American League with his bat and his speed.

His two-run homer in the fifth was a blast that carried over the 385-foot sign in left centerfield in sparkling Royals Stadium and built a 5-1 lead. And his routine single to center that he stretched into a stand-up double in the seventh left the host team dazzled.

Lauded by National League Manager Sparky Anderson as "the finest player in either league," Bonds said he bore no grudges at not being elected to the starting team.

"The fans have the right to pick the team they think will win the game," said Bonds. "They're all great outfielders. I'm not disappointed at backing up those kind of guys."

National League thunder struck in consecutive innings, turning a 2-1 lead at the end of three innings into an insurmountable 7-1 margin after six.

Bench opened the scoring parade with a leadoff homer in the fourth. That was the Cincinnati catcher's third All-Star homer, making him one of five players with that many. Only Stan Musial with six and Ted Williams with four have more. And Bench is only 25.

Bonds was inserted into the lineup when the National League took the field in the fourth for Billy Williams. "I got him in as soon as I could," said Sparky Anderson, who finally beat the American League after one All-Star and two World Series' losses.

Joe Morgan led off the fifth with a double before Bill Singer retired Cesar Cedeno and Joe Torre. That brought up Bonds and his towering shot, for all practical purposes, ended the game.

"I forgot mine," said Davis, the Los Angeles centerfielder. "I'm going to steal the helmet for a souvenir. I don't think Henry will mind."

Rick Wise, who gave up the American League's only run in the second on a run-scoring single by Amos Otis, was the winning pitcher. Bert Blyleven, who was tagged for two runs — but no homers — in the third was the loser.

The mid-summer classic was in doubt most of Tuesday when heavy rains fell. But the sun broke through three hours before game time and the Kansas City Royals' machines swept the standing water off the artificial turf.

Batting practice was canceled, disappointing many of the early arrivals who wanted to see the likes of Aaron boom a few out of the park. The Atlanta slugger, who only last Saturday slammed his 700th career homer, was given a standing ovation when the teams were introduced. He played just three innings.

And there was a touch of irony, too. Willie Mays was sent up as a pinch-hitter in the eighth, long after the verdict was decided. It was his 24th All-Star appearance, tying him with Musial for the record. But the 42-year-old New York Met was struck out by another New Yorker, Yankee Sparky Lyle.

Even though the game bordered on being dull, especially in the late innings, Anderson called it "the biggest thrill I've ever had in baseball. Even more than being in a World Series."

The National League now has won 10 of the last 11 All-Star games and leads the series 25-18-1.

Giant Boosters Heading For L.A.

The airplane will be bulging when 115 members of the Northern California Giants Boosters Club fly to Los Angeles Saturday to see the key series between the Dodgers and Giants.

The boosters' trip is a sellout, reports the group's president, Allan B. Murray of Kentfield. The trip to Southern California will include three Dodger games and a pair with the San Diego Padres before the group returns back to San Francisco International Airport.

The same is not true for the boosters' eastern swing which is coming up Aug. 16. There are still reservations to be filled for that trip with stops at Pittsburgh, Montreal and New York, the Giants playing three games at each stop.

Murray is arranging for a cocktail party to honor Marin's John Boccabella during the boosters' stop in Montreal. "A lot of our members want to meet John, and he's having such a good year it's only right we get together after one of the games, said Murray.

Other trip highlights, according to Murray, are "a buffet dinner at the Stadium Club in Pittsburgh, a tour of the Laurentian Mountains in Quebec and what may be the last chance to see Willie Mays suited up against the Giants at New York's Shea Stadium." I've never been in Pittsburgh, but from what I've heard, there's not too much to see; I guess that's why Murray decided to keep the boosters at the ballpark's Stadium Club.

Murray, Mr. Organization man, is even making arrangements to transport some of the boosters from Marin to S.F. Airport.

And Al, by the way, has been laid up with a slipped disc in his back and is facing an operation. "That will have to wait until after baseball season," says Al.

BILL TRUMBO, athletic director and head basketball coach at Sonoma State College, is already thinking basketball. After winning Sonoma State's first Far Western Conference championship last season, he wants to do it again.

He announced this week that a pair of North Bay area hot-shots are going to enroll at the Rohnert Park campus this fall, Dave Long, former Healdsburg High and Santa Rosa Junior College player, and Venson Washington, an all-leaguer from Vallejo High.

Long, 6-foot-7 and 210 pounds, was the Bear Cubs' leading rebounder last year as a center, while Washington, 6-5, was a star forward for the North Bay League champion Vallejo team and won most valuable player honors when Vallejo won the Top of the Bay Classic.

TRICK RIDER Paul Stewart, 24, of Mill Valley, will be performing his specialty Aug. 4 and 5 with Antonio Aquilar's Mexican Fiesta Rodeo at the Cow Palace. His horseback riding will be featured at 8:30 p.m. Aug. 4 and at 4:30 p.m. Aug. 5.

HURT AGAIN

Beasley Out Of Action

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) — San Francisco 49er wide receiver Terry Beasley, whose rookie year in 1972 was wrecked by injuries, was on the sideline with an injury again today.

He suffered a strained Achilles tendon Tuesday during passing drills at the club's training camp and was to undergo examination on the injury today.

Beasley was the team's No. 1 draft choice in 1972 and had looked good in drills this year. Proof that he is expected to play a big part in the team's 1973 plans was seen in the fact that the team traded last year's starter, Preston Riley, to New Orleans.

The 49ers also cut six players Tuesday, including punters Bill Dement, Dennis Ward and John O'Hagen. Ends Don Burchfield and Tony Smith also were handed their walking papers as was running back Tom Dahlberg of Gustavus Adolphus, the team's 11th round draft pick.

It was also announced that No. 3 quarterback Joe Reed would play most of the way against New England in the Hall of Fame Game at Canton, Ohio, Saturday.

Reed has looked effective on the few occasions when he has played, especially in a 33-17 win over Denver in an pre-season game last year. But it's hard for a young quarterback to see much action on a team that has John Brodie and Steve Spurrier at quarterback.

Rentzel Draws NFL Suspension

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Lance Rentzel has had his troubles but, said Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom Tuesday, he "has taken his medicine like a man."

The latest "medicine" was a one-year suspension for the Rams wide receiver by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle for "conduct detrimental to the National Football League.

The "conduct" was a possession of marijuana conviction last May which carried a $2,000 fine and a 90-day jail sentence. Rentzel is appealing the jail term.

Rentzel was notified of the suspension Tuesday in a letter from Rozelle.

In a statement released through the Rams, Rentzel said, "I feel the best thing I can do, for all concerned, is to accept the commissioner's decision in a positive manner. I understand his position and continue to have the highest respect for him in every way."

Rentzel had been placed on probation by Rozelle in 1971 for a conviction of indecent exposure to a 10 year-old girl in Dallas while he was playing for the Cowboys.

Rozelle reached his decision on this season's suspension after reviewing the records of a hearing in the NFL office June 20 on Rentzel's 1971 probation.

"Everyone has his share of problems in life," Rentzel said. "I have learned that it's not what happens to you, but how you react to what happens to you that counts."

The 29-year-old Rentzel, who was traded to the Rams in 1971, said he plans "to do everything possible to be ready to play next year."

Rozelle said Rentzel could apply for reinstatement at the end of the season when his case is reviewed. Rentzel, recovering from a sore knee last year, said earlier that he had never been in better shape and was going to dedicate the season to owner Carroll Rosenbloom, who had supported him during his marijuana charges.

Rentzel said he could not comment on the conviction because it is under appeal.

Surprise Winner In Tennis

Unseeded Jill Scheiderman of San Rafael scored a major upset in the 20th annual Independent-Journal, San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department tennis tournament with a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Girls 18 third-seed Lisa Sockolov of San Rafael.

Tourney action will run through Saturday at four sites in San Rafael — Albert Park, Gerstle Park, Boyd Park and San Rafael High School.

The top seeds in Boys 14 continued to dominate their brackets yesterday with easy wins. Top-seeded Frank Casella of Tiburon downed Dave Dollihite of Fairfax, 6-1, 6-1, and second-seeded Bobby Greene took a 6-0, 6-2 match from Josh McIntyre.

Tomorrow's feature match pits Grant Grinnell of the powerful Redwood High School tennis squad against Boys 18 fourth-seed Mark Wagner. Grinnell, competing in both the boys 16 and 18 singles division, has lost just one game in four one-sided matches so far. Wagner is the son of Hal Wagner,

Slugfest And A No-Hitter In Little League Openers

It was a time for contrast in the opening round of Marin County Little League All-Star Tournament play last night when Hamilton-Loma Verde pounded out 18 hits for a 22-2 victory over Gallinas Valley at Hamilton, and Novato National's Mike Stevenson pitched a no-hitter to lead his teammates to a 14-0 victory over San Geronimo at Hamann Field in Novato.

In other games last night Twin Cities beat Tiburon, 8-1, at Joe Wagner Field, Larkspur; Marinwood-Lucas Valley scored a 7-3 win over San Anselmo at Mary E. Silveira School, Marinwood; Mill Valley American took a 7-4 game from Sausalito at Boyle Park, Mill Valley; Novato American defeated Mill Valley National, 6-0, at Rancho Field, Novato; San Rafael American blasted Strawberry in five innings, 29-0, at Strawberry Park, and Kentfield-Greenbrae took a 7-1 victory from San Rafael National at San Quentin Field.

In tonight's quarter-final games at 6 p.m.:

Marinwood-Lucas Valley faces Novato National at Memorial Park, San Anselmo; Kentfield-Greenbrae challenges San Rafael American at San Quentin; Twin Cities takes on Mill Valley American at Boyle Park, Mill Valley and Novato American faces Hamilton-Loma Verde at Hamilton Field.

Wally Murray and Bill Deller hit home runs to pace the Hamilton-Loma Verde attack; Mike Laden pitched a one-hitter for Twin Cities; Marinwood-Lucas Valley pitcher Tim Young was backed by a George Morgan two-run homer; Sean McCaffree hit a home run for Mill Valley American to aid his own mound cause; Mill Valley pitcher Pete Kraszulyak fanned 12 batters in a losing cause; George Hasler's two-hitter was backed up by Craig Stair's home run in a five for six plate performance, and Cam Garrett belted two home runs for Kentfield-Greenbrae.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Automobiles, Boats— Quite A Difference

Anyone who wants to become a truly safe and expert boat operator must, either by constant practice or by sheer will power, discard some of the reflexes we all build up driving an automobile.

Here are a few obvious but important reasons: A car can usually be stopped very abruptly, but a boat has no brakes. A car will not go sideways unless it is out of control, but a boat moves sideways very easily. Probably the most important difference is that an automobile turns by pivoting around a point at the rear; the front wheels point in a new direction and pull the rear end around. A boat pivots around a point at the bow. It turns by swinging the stern to point the bow in the new direction desired.

It's obvious that the reflexes which make a good car driver could make a very bad boat driver, particularly if a little panic is thrown in.

So this is to urge all skippers to school themselves in the techniques required to become a good boat handler. Here are a few things to do to avoid trouble.

BECAUSE THERE is no brake, keep your boat under firm control at all times, eliminating the need for sudden stops. Because your boat is able to "skid," or drift sideways, allow plenty of room for maneuvering in close quarters. And because a boat turns by swinging its stern, be very careful when pulling away from a dock, pier or wharf.

Driving forward from a position alongside a pier may cause the stern to swing and hit the wall. Backing out of a berth may be the best and safest way.

There are an infinite number of questions on boat handling techniques and I get asked quite a few:

Q. Why is an inboard boat so much less maneuverable than an outboard?

A. In an inboard boat the rudder reacts only to a part of the flow of the discharge current from the propeller, but in an outboard the entire motor swings and you get the whole thrust of the propeller to swing the stern.

Q. I can't handle my boat half as well since I bought a bigger, more powerful outboard motor. It digs in and doesn't steer easily. Why?

A. The problem could be that the new motor is not at the proper angle. If the lower unit is tilted too far forward, the symptoms you describe occur. Check the "angle of dangle," it's very important in outboard motors.

A. Generally speaking, no. This is another area in which boating practice differs from highway practice. You may pass on either side, but you are obliged by law to stay clear of the overtaken boat. Some state boating laws prefer that you pass on the left under certain circumstances which are spelled out. Read your state boating law.

Q. After 10 years of boating, I still can't dock very smoothly. Is there a secret?

A. If there is I don't know anyone who knows it. Try this: Bring your boat in against the wind or current, whichever is stronger. Your control will be better.

A. Use a long rope, nylon if possible. This provides great elasticity. If the deck hardware is fragile — and most is — run the tow line around the hull just below the gunwale, supporting it at intervals with short lengths of line.

Q. I'm giving my wife a new fast boat for water skiing. Any advice I should give along with it?

A. Above all else, get her to take the boat out and give it a work-out. Try it in tight turns. Get her to learn its stopping distance. Demonstrate how well (or badly) it answers the helm. Get her to know its idiosyncrasies. A new boat is like a new boot. It needs breaking in.

BOSTON (UPI) — Jimmy Connors, 20, youngest champion in the 46-year-history of the U.S. Professional Tennis Championships, vaulted from 20th place to eighth in the 1973 commercial Union Grand Prix weekly point standings, it was reported Tuesday.

Connors, a former NCAA champion from Belleville, Ill., outfought second-seeded Arthur Ashe, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2 in a three hour and ten minute final Monday to capture the $12,000 first prize at the Longwood Cricket Club in Chestnut Hill, Mass.

Connors, as well as earning the money, picked up 40 Grand Prix points to make the jump in the standings, with a total of 88 points. An independant who turned pro in January, Connors came into the tournament unseeded and promptly knocked off top-seeded Stan Smith in the opening round and followed by beating Ray Moore of South Africa and fellow Americans Dick Stockton and Cliff Richey before his triumph Monday night.

In other Commercial Union Grand Prix action last week, the finals of the Head Cup matches at Kitzbuhel, were rained out, leaving finalists Raul Ramirez of Mexico and Manuel Orantes of Spain to split 34 Grand Prix points.

STAR OF STARS — Muscular Bobby Bonds of the Giants smiled after the All-Star game last night. He had hit a two-run homer and a double to help the National League to a 7-1 victory over the A.L. (UPI Telephoto)

ALL-STAR MVP

Bonds Is Best, Says Sparky

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

He calls 'em as he sees 'em.

He doesn't wish to hurt anybody's feelings by what he says, but if he does somehow by telling the truth, well, that's tough.

LIKE SON

Sparky Anderson talks about Johnny Bench as if he's his own son. Johnny Bench has won the National League's MVP award two of the last three years and when he polled 1.7 million votes in this latest All-Star balloting, more than anyone else in either league, nobody was happier than Sparky Anderson.

He banged a homer off Bill Singer in the fourth inning giving him six hits in 14 times up in All-Star competition and he would've had himself a seventh hit had not shortstop Bert Campaneris gone deep into the hole to collar his smash and throw him out.

PRAISE But it wasn't Johnny Bench who dominated the All-Star contest; it was San Francisco's spindle-shanked Bobby Bonds who did, and who do you think was the first one to say so?

"As of today, July 24th, he's the best player in America," said the manager of the National League All-Stars when somebody asked him for his considered evaluation of Bobby Bonds.

Naturally, someone relayed the statement back to Johnny Bench.

"Sparky says Bonds is the best player in America right now," the courier said to the husky Reds' receiver.

The way Bobby Bonds is going now he could easily wind up the MVP of the Year as well as the MVP of Tuesday night's ball game."

STATISTICS

Statistics generally are as dry as week-old bread crumbs but have a quick look at these: 64 rbis, 25 homers, 28 stolen bases and a .306 batting average.

What makes it so amazing is he's doing all this for the Giants batting leadoff.

"I'd have to say he was the best all-around ballplayer on the field tonight," said Sal Bando, the Oakland third baseman after the National Leaguers victory. "He's no stranger to me. I've played against him in spring training. I know what he can do. He's the most dynamic hitter I've seen. He stands up there and literally attacks the ball. He scares me when he's up at the plate. And everybody knows how he can run."

Ironically, Bonds was not voted into the All-Star game by the fans. Their first three outfield choices were Pete Rose, Billy Williams and Cesar Cedeno.

PICKED

But when the players themselves voted privately, the picked Bonds and Willie Stargell in place of Rose and Cedeno.

Anderson was the one who actually named Bonds to the All-Star squad.

The 27-year-old Giants' outfielder was somewhat overwhelmed when he was notified he had been designated the All-Star MVP.

"I never had the slightest thought of being the MVP," he said. "Sparky told me he'd get me in the game as soon as he could, and when he did, I was a little nervous. When I went up to hit in the fifth I said to myself 'don't strike out — just hit the ball.'"

He hit it all right, over the 385 foot sign in left center at spanking new Royals' Stadium where the spectacular water fountains beyond the outfield fence shoot high into the air to celebrate each home run.

IMPRESSED

"What about Sparky Anderson calling you the best ballplayer in America?" Bonds was asked while trying to get his gear together so he could catch a plane out of here and rejoin the Giants.

"Did he say that?" said Bobby Bonds, somewhat incredulously. "I dunno. There are a lotta great players right here in this clubhouse. One of them," he said, looking over at Hank Aaron, "played first base."

Williams Shrugs Off Boos

What did bother the American League manager was the thumb injury Oakland A's pitcher Jim Hunter received in the second inning of the All-Star game on a one-hopper off the bat of Chicago's Billy Williams.

"Of course I'm concerned about it," the Oakland manager said. "We just hope it isn't serious."

Hunter had been scheduled to start Friday for the A's, who are leading the Western Division. Preliminary X-rays were scheduled today.

The mustachioed manager didn't look like a man who had come out of a hospital bed after an appendectomy only four days earlier. Williams showed a healthy gleam in his eyes as he answered questions after his team's 7-1 embarrassment.

"I'm feeling all right," he insisted. "I feel fine."

He said he considered the trip "certainly worth it, I saw some fine ball players ... was in another All-Star game. I feel very honored and proud."

The All-Star game means a lot to Williams because he never appeared in one as a player. And this was the second time he'd managed in one.

Williams, who spent much of his career as a benchwarmer (he was on the Brooklyn bench in 1951 when Bobby Thomson hit the homer), became famous for his trips to the mound in last year's World Series.

But he spent this game in the dugout. And when he was introduced, he was greeted by resounding boos—as were the other Oakland representatives.

It's unusual for an American League crowd to boo American Leaguers—but this isn't a usual sitiation. The Kansas City fans haven't forgiven Charley Finley for moving his A's from here to Oakland and they like to take out their feelings about Finley on the Oakland players.

Williams, who wasn't managing the A's when they were in Kansas City, has no hard feelings about KC.

It will run 11 days and over $12,000 in prize money will be up for grabs in six categories.

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Eastern Washington State College will host the national Wheelchair Olympics here next June 14-16.

Sponsors said Monday they expect some 350 wheelchair athletes to attend the meet, which will feature all track and field events, as well as such sports as ping pong. A full slate of swimming events are also on tap.

A Sizzling Week In The Minors

All five Marin County batsmen swinging in baseball's minor leagues sizzled in the summer sun last week.

According to Player Periscope statistics compiled in Novato, Marin City's Clifford Hall had the biggest week — percentage-wise. The outfielder with the Chicago Cubs' Quincy, Ill. club in the Midwest D League had four hits in 10 at-bats for a .400 average. After an early season slump, Hall has improved his overall average to .260.

Novato outfielders Tom Thomas and John Dolinsek hit .316 and .313, respectively during the last seven-day period. Thomas, performing for the Pittsburgh Pirates' Salem, Va. Carolina-A League affiliate, socked 12 hits in 38 plate appearances. Dolinsek, toiling for the Houston Astros' American Association triple A team in Denver, lofted 10 safeties in 32 tries.

Catcher Tom Olson of Kentfield hit .304 (seven for 23) for the New York Mets' Marion, Va. Appalachia rookie league farm club. He smashed one home run.

Light-hitting Mike Parnow of Fairfax went five for 19 last week, a .263 effort to hike his modest overall average to .221. The infielder with the Los Angeles Dodgers' Pioneer-rookie league team at Ogden, Utah fattened his season's mark by 14 points last week.

While Marinites were making loud noises with their bats, the pitchers were subdued and quiet. Novato's Russ Dillon, playing for the Atlanta Braves' Savannah team in the Southern double A League lost in his only appearance.

Dillon pitched eight innings, giving up six hits and five walks while striking out five. His record fell to 3-5.

San Rafael's Dewey Forry was inactive last week with the Los Angeles Dodgers' Bakersfield team in the California A League.

CARLISLE, Pa. — All pro running back Larry Brown, who has held out for 11 days while demanding a long term contract, was to report to the Washington Redskins' training camp today, the Washington Post reported.

Brown's attorney, John Perazich, said his client would arrive at the team's Carlisle, Pa., training camp about mid-day and join afternoon workouts.

Brown, the NFL's most valuable player in 1972, has been seeking a multi-year contract that would begin in 1974. He is currently on the final year of a three-year pact.

During Brown's absence from camp, he has been fined $300 daily.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Automobiles, Boats— Quite A Difference

Anyone who wants to become a truly safe and expert boat operator must, either by constant practice or by sheer will power, discard some of the reflexes we all build up driving an automobile.

Here are a few obvious but important reasons: A car can usually be stopped very abruptly, but a boat has no brakes. A car will not go sideways unless it is out of control, but a boat moves sideways very easily. Probably the most important difference is that an automobile turns by pivoting around a point at the rear; the front wheels point in a new direction and pull the rear end around. A boat pivots around a point at the bow. It turns by swinging the stern to point the bow in the new direction desired.

It's obvious that the reflexes which make a good car driver could make a very bad boat driver, particularly if a little panic is thrown in.

So this is to urge all skippers to school themselves in the techniques required to become a good boat handler. Here are a few things to do to avoid trouble.

BECAUSE THERE is no brake, keep your boat under firm control at all times, eliminating the need for sudden stops. Because your boat is able to "skid," or drift sideways, allow plenty of room for maneuvering in close quarters. And because a boat turns by swinging its stern, be very careful when pulling away from a dock, pier or wharf.

Driving forward from a position alongside a pier may cause the stern to swing and hit the wall. Backing out of a berth may be the best and safest way.

There are an infinite number of questions on boat handling techniques and I get asked quite a few:

Q. Why is an inboard boat so much less maneuverable than an outboard?

A. In an inboard boat the rudder reacts only to a part of the flow of the discharge current from the propeller, but in an outboard the entire motor swings and you get the whole thrust of the propeller to swing the stern.

Q. I can't handle my boat half as well since I bought a bigger, more powerful outboard motor. It digs in and doesn't steer easily. Why?

A. The problem could be that the new motor is not at the proper angle. If the lower unit is tilted too far forward, the symptoms you describe occur. Check the "angle of dangle," it's very important in outboard motors.

A. Generally speaking, no. This is another area in which boating practice differs from highway practice. You may pass on either side, but you are obliged by law to stay clear of the overtaken boat. Some state boating laws prefer that you pass on the left under certain circumstances which are spelled out. Read your state boating law.

Q. After 10 years of boating, I still can't dock very smoothly. Is there a secret?

A. If there is I don't know anyone who knows it. Try this: Bring your boat in against the wind or current, whichever is stronger. Your control will be better.

Q. In towing a friend's boat, we pulled several cleats off his deck. Is there a proper way to tow another boat?

A. Use a long rope, nylon if possible. This provides great elasticity. If the deck hardware is fragile — and most is — run the tow line around the hull just below the gunwale, supporting it at intervals with short lengths of line.

Q. I'm giving my wife a new fast boat for water skiing. Any advice I should give along with it?

A. Above all else, get her to take the boat out and give it a work-out. Try it in tight turns. Get her to learn its stopping distance. Demonstrate how well (or badly) it answers the helm. Get her to know its idiosyncrasies. A new boat is like a new boot. It needs breaking in.

Connors Vaults In Standings

BOSTON (UPI) — Jimmy Connors, 20, youngest champion in the 46-year-history of the U.S. Professional Tennis Championships, vaulted from 20th place to eighth in the 1973 commercial Union Grand Prix weekly point standings, it was reported Tuesday.

Connors, a former NCAA champion from Belleville, Ill., outfought second-seeded Arthur Ashe, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2 in a three hour and ten minute final Monday to capture the $12,000 first prize at the Longwood Cricket Club in Chestnut Hill, Mass.

Connors, as well as earning the money, picked up 40 Grand Prix points to make the jump in the standings, with a total of 88 points. An independant who turned pro in January, Connors came into the tournament unseeded and promptly knocked off top-seeded Stan Smith in the opening round and followed by beating Ray Moore of South Africa and fellow Americans Dick Stockton and Cliff Richey before his triumph Monday night.

In other Commercial Union Grand Prix action last week, the finals of the Head Cup matches at Kitzbuhel, were rained out, leaving finalists Raul Ramirez of Mexico and Manuel Orantes of Spain to split 34 Grand Prix points.

STAR OF STARS — Muscular Bobby Bonds of the Giants smiled after the All-Star game last night. He had hit a two-run homer and a double to help the National League to a 7-1 victory over the A.L. (UPI Telephoto)

ALL-STAR MVP

Bonds Is Best, Says Sparky

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

He calls 'em as he sees 'em.

He doesn't wish to hurt anybody's feelings by what he says, but if he does somehow by telling the truth, well, that's tough.

LIKE SON

Sparky Anderson talks about Johnny Bench as if he's his own son. Johnny Bench has won the National League's MVP award two of the last three years and when he polled 1.7 million votes in this latest All-Star balloting, more than anyone else in either league, nobody was happier than Sparky Anderson.

He banged a homer off Bill Singer in the fourth inning giving him six hits in 14 times up in All-Star competition and he would've had himself a seventh hit had not shortstop Bert Campaneris gone deep into the hole to collar his smash and throw him out.

PRAISE

But it wasn't Johnny Bench who dominated the All-Star contest; it was San Francisco's spindle-shanked Bobby Bonds who did, and who do you think was the first one to say so?

You're absolutely right. Sparky Anderson.

"As of today, July 24th, he's the best player in America," said the manager of the National League All-Stars when somebody asked him for his considered evaluation of Bobby Bonds.

Naturally, someone relayed the statement back to Johnny Bench.

"Sparky says Bonds is the best player in America right now," the courier said to the husky Reds' receiver.

"He is," corroborated Johnny Bench, and the way he said it left no doubt whatsoever he meant it genuinely.

The way Bobby Bonds is going now he could easily wind up the MVP of the Year as well as the MVP of Tuesday night's ball game."

STATISTICS

Statistics generally are as dry as week-old bread crumbs but have a quick look at these: 64 rbis, 25 homers, 28 stolen bases and a .306 batting average.

What makes it so amazing is he's doing all this for the Giants batting leadoff.

"I'd have to say he was the best all-around ballplayer on the field tonight," said Sal Bando, the Oakland third baseman after the National Leaguers victory. "He's no stranger to me. I've played against him in spring training. I know what he can do. He's the most dynamic hitter I've seen. He stands up there and literally attacks the ball. He scares me when he's up at the plate. And everybody knows how he can run."

Ironically, Bonds was not voted into the All-Star game by the fans. Their first three outfield choices were Pete Rose, Billy Williams and Cesar Cedeno.

PICKED

But when the players themselves voted privately, the picked Bonds and Willie Stargell in place of Rose and Cedeno.

Anderson was the one who actually named Bonds to the All-Star squad.

The 27-year-old Giants' outfielder was somewhat overwhelmed when he was notified he had been designated the All-Star MVP.

"I never had the slightest thought of being the MVP," he said. "Sparky told me he'd get me in the game as soon as he could, and when he did, I was a little nervous. When I went up to hit in the fifth I said to myself 'don't strike out — just hit the ball.'"

He hit it all right, over the 385 foot sign in left center at spanking new Royals' Stadium where the spectacular water fountains beyond the outfield fence shoot high into the air to celebrate each home run.

IMPRESSED

"What about Sparky Anderson calling you the best ballplayer in America?" Bonds was asked while trying to get his gear together so he could catch a plane out of here and rejoin the Giants.

"Did he say that?" said Bobby Bonds, somewhat incredulously. "I dunno. There are a lotta great players right here in this clubhouse. One of them," he said, looking over at Hank Aaron, "played first base."

True enough.

Lightweight Crown

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Monroe Brooks, 134 ½, Los Angeles, knocked out Juan Collado, 134 ½, Mexico City, in the first round Tuesday night to capture the California state lightweight crown.

Williams Shrugs Off Boos

What did bother the American League manager was the thumb injury Oakland A's pitcher Jim Hunter received in the second inning of the All-Star game on a one-hopper off the bat of Chicago's Billy Williams.

"Of course I'm concerned about it," the Oakland manager said. "We just hope it isn't serious."

Hunter had been scheduled to start Friday for the A's, who are leading the Western Division. Preliminary X-rays were scheduled today.

The mustachioed manager didn't look like a man who had come out of a hospital bed after an appendectomy only four days earlier. Williams showed a healthy gleam in his eyes as he answered questions after his team's 7-1 embarrassment.

"I'm feeling all right," he insisted. "I feel fine."

He said he considered the trip "certainly worth it. I saw some fine ball players ... was in another All-Star game. I feel very honored and proud."

The All-Star game means a lot to Williams because he never appeared in one as a player. And this was the second time he'd managed in one.

Williams, who spent much of his career as a benchwarmer (he was on the Brooklyn bench in 1951 when Bobby Thomson hit the homer), became famous for his trips to the mound in last year's World Series.

But he spent this game in the dugout. And when he was introduced, he was greeted by resounding boos—as were the other Oakland representatives.

It's unusual for an American League crowd to boo American Leaguers—but this isn't a usual situation. The Kansas City fans haven't forgiven Charley Finley for moving his A's from here to Oakland and they like to take out their feelings about Finley on the Oakland players.

Williams, who wasn't managing the A's when they were in Kansas City, has no hard feelings about KC.

Washington To Host Wheelchair Olympics

HOT BATS

A Sizzling Week In The Minors

All five Marin County batsmen swinging in baseball's minor leagues sizzled in the summer sun last week.

According to Player Periscope statistics compiled in Novato, Marin City's Clifford Hall had the biggest week — percentage-wise. The outfielder with the Chicago Cubs' Quincy, Ill. club in the Midwest D League had four hits in 10 at-bats for a .400 average. After an early season slump, Hall has improved his overall average to .260.

Novato outfielders Tom Thomas and John Dolinsek hit .316 and .313, respectively during the last seven-day period. Thomas, performing for the Pittsburgh Pirates' Salem, Va. Carolina-A League affiliate, socked 12 hits in 38 plate appearances. Dolinsek, toiling for the Houston Astros' American Association triple A team in Denver, lofted 10 safeties in 32 tries.

Catcher Tom Olson of Kentfield hit .304 (seven for 23) for the New York Mets' Marion, Va. Appalachia rookie league farm club. He smashed one home run.

Light-hitting Mike Parnow of Fairfax went five for 19 last week, a .263 effort to hike his modest overall average to .221. The infielder with the Los Angeles Dodgers' Pioneer-rookie league team at Ogden, Utah fattened his season's mark by 14 points last week.

While Marinites were making loud noises with their bats, the pitchers were subdued and quiet. Novato's Russ Dillon, playing for the Atlanta Braves' Savannah team in the Southern double A League lost in his only appearance.

Dillon pitched eight innings, giving up six hits and five walks while striking out five. His record fell to 3-5.

Kassulke In Serious Condition

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Minnesota Vikings defensive back Karl Kassulke, injured in a motorcycle-car accident Tuesday was in serious condition today following three and one-half hours of surgery on his spine.

Doctors at Methodist Hospital said more time is needed to determine the seriousness of the 32-year-old Kassulke's injuries.

The 10-year veteran received injuries to his back and shoulder, a broken leg, a dislocated wrist and minor head injuries when a motorcycle he was riding collided with an automobile in suburban Minnetonka.

The Minnesota Highway Patrol said the driver of the motorcycle was Monte Krizan, 29, Minneapolis, a friend of Kassulke. He was hospitalized with injuries to both hands and a wrist.

According to police, Kassulke was thrown about 60 feet by the impact of the collision. Krizan was found about 10 feet from the motorcycle.

More Work In Marin Than Out

Marin County, no longer just a bedroom community for San Francisco and the East Bay, is now able to absorb most of its work force within the county.

Figures compiled by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau on the basis of the 1970 census show that 40,131 Marinites or 48.7 per cent of the work force are employed within Marin, while 36,948 or 44.9 per cent work outside the county. The remaining 5,254 or 6.4 per cent did not report their places of work.

Marin County Chamber of Commerce reports that office space constructed or contracted for during 1970, 1971 and 1972 amounted to 875,773 square feet, which comes to more than 20 acres of floor space.

Among major structures built or in the process of construction are the Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies computer center at Highway 101 and Lucas Valley road, 285,000 square feet; Commerce Clearing House western headquarters building on Quail Hill, Terra Linda, 110,000 square feet; five buildings by Ronald F. Antonioli Inc. in Northgate Industrial Park, 88,645 square feet; three buildings by John Ribeiro Builder Inc. at Northgate Industrial Park, 85.260 square feet; Holiday Plaza building in Terra Linda, 52,000 square feet; two buildings by Dohemann & Company at Northgate Industrial Park, 46,380 square feet; and many others.

Marin County Chamber of Commerce reports more than 60 firms have relocated to or opened up new offices in Marin during the 1970 to 1972 period.

Among the larger firms moving into Marin County were Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies and Commerce Clearing House, mentioned previously; California Physicians Service record keeping operations, 12,000 square feet in San Anselmo; Leswing Press Inc. publishers, 8,000 square feet in Santa Venetia; Mailliard & Schmiedell food brokers, 10,000 square feet in Sausalito; and Putnam Financial Services Inc. and Western Travelers Life Insurance Co

SEAT BELT AND HARNESS

Model Beth Murray demonstrates American Motors' 1974 lap and shoulder harness restraint system. Only when the buckle is snapped shut will the car start. A red warning light in the instrument panel and a buzzer remind the driver and front seat passenger to fasten the restraint system if the ignition is turned on before belts have been connected.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Utilities Are Good; Rebound Potential Is Above Average

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am interested in income stocks. So far I have 200 shares each of American Electric Power (NYSE) and General Public Utilities (NYSE). My plan is to retire in 5 years. Are these safe investments and why are they down so much? — J.M.

A. For several reasons, including the fact that the entire stock market is down. Utility stocks appeal to the conservative investor seeking income and moderate growth. However, when bond yields rise sufficiently, income investors tend to move out of utilities into bonds. This has been particularly apparent in the last three years; consequently price-earnings ratios for utility stocks have moved from the 16-1 times level in the late 1960s to around 10 times net currently. Thus, at this point, downside risk is minimal while yields are high, ranging around 6.5 per cent to 7.5 per cent. Furthermore, rebound potential for the group is above average.

The two issues you hold provide a current return of 6.8 per cent for American Electric and 8.0 per cent for General Public. In each case the dividend appears secure. With payout below the 1968-72 base period and earnings expected to reach $2.75 a share, a boost in AEP's dividend rate seems likely. For GPU, which also is paying out less than the allowed ceiling, a dividend increase appears less probable — unless substantial rate relief is granted. The company has pending rate increase requests of over $115 million. Construction plans for both companies will require large amounts of capital to be raised through the sale of bonds, preferred and common stock. Common share earnings will reflect not only the added interest expenses but the larger number of common shares outstanding.

Three attractive utility stocks for your consideration are: Atlantic City Electric (NYSE), Carolina Power (NYSE) and Hawaiian Electric (NYSE). Yields on these three issues range from 5.7 per cent to 7 per cent and prospects are good for a boost in these rates. Currently trading 9 to 10 times estimated 1973 net, shares are rated buy.

Mean Marin Income Highest In California

The mean income of a Marin County family is $16,136, the highest in the state, according to a Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau study based on the 1970 census.

Of 51,912 families in Marin, 44.1 per cent have annual incomes of $15,000 or more. At the other end of the income scale are 2,359 Marin families, 4.5 per cent of the total, with incomes less than the poverty level. Their mean family income is $1,519 per year.

Corte Madera $15,561; Fairfax $11,822; Larkspur $18,338; Mill Valley $16,618; Novato $12,755; Ross $25,446; San Anselmo $13,899; San Rafael $16,046; Sausalito $18,866; and Tiburon $21,253.

The educational level of Marin's population was the highest in the state. Among Marin males, the median school years completed was 13.3, and the percentage of high school graduates, 77.3. Among females, the median school years completed was 12.9, and the percentage of high school graduates, 80.9.

Market Scores Eighth Gain In Heavy Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — A wave of buying that extended throughout much of the list carried stocks sharply higher in active trading today on the New York Stock Exchange.

Several analysts were optimistic some of the smaller investors had finally left the sidelines—if only temporarily—attracted by the wave of earnings and increased dividends that has flooded Wall Street for two weeks.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange gained in active trading.

Texas Gulf shot up more than 2 points during the day. The Canada Development Corp., wholly-owned by the Canadian government, announced a tender offer of $29 a share for up to 10,000,000 common shares of Texas Gulf. Texas Gulf secretary David H. Crawford said at first the company was "stunned."

Gold Price Aids Mining Company

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Fast-rising gold prices have helped the nation's biggest gold producer to more than double revenues to roughly $58 million in the first six months of this year.

The Homestake Mining Co. said yesterday its 1973 revenue figure compared to about $27 million for the comparable 1972 period and was "principally attributed to higher gold prices" although it said that increased lead and zinc sales and a $9.3 million uranium sale helped, too.

Chinese Restaurant To Open In San Rafael's West End

A new Chinese restaurant called Mandarin House will open next month at 1559 Fourth Street in the West End area of San Rafael at the old site of Forbidden City (formerly the Hsin Hsin).

Owner of Mandarin House is Peter C. Tien of San Francisco, who operated Chung King restaurant in San Francisco's Chinatown for the past year and was in the restaurant business in Taiwan for about 10 years before that. Tien's Chung King restaurant won plaudits in Jack Shelton's Private Guide to Restaurants in May of this year.

Tien sold the Chung King and plans to move with his family to San Rafael to devote full time to his new Mandarin House, which will specialize in Mandarin food and Shanghai and Szechwan dishes.

Tien is remodeling the interior of the old Forbidden City, putting in wall-to-wall carpeting and extending the seating area to accommodate 75 to 80 customers. The new restaurant will serve beer and wine. Tien hopes to open Mandarin House about Aug. 1.

More Work In Marin Than Out

Marin County, no longer just a bedroom community for San Francisco and the East Bay, is now able to absorb most of its work force within the county.

Figures compiled by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau on the basis of the 1970 census show that 40,131 Marinites or 48.7 per cent of the work force are employed within Marin, while 36,948 or 44.9 per cent work outside the county. The remaining 5,254 or 6.4 per cent did not report their places of work.

The growth of office buildings and light industrial structures within Marin has been impressive during the past three years.

Marin County Chamber of Commerce reports that office space constructed or contracted for during 1970, 1971 and 1972 amounted to 875,773 square feet, which comes to more than 20 acres of floor space.

Among major structures built or in the process of construction are the Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies computer center at Highway 101 and Lucas Valley road, 285,000 square feet; Commerce Clearing House western headquarters building on Quail Hill, Terra Linda, 110,000 square feet; five buildings by Ronald F. Antonioli Inc. in Northgate Industrial Park, 88,645 square feet; three buildings by John Ribeiro Builder Inc. at Northgate Industrial Park, 85,260 square feet; Holiday Plaza building in Terra Linda, 52,000 square feet; two buildings by Dohemann & Company at Northgate Industrial Park, 46,380 square feet; and many others.

Another indication of Marin's growing role as an employment center is the influx of major firms moving their offices from San Francisco to Marin.

Marin County Chamber of Commerce reports more than 60 firms have relocated to or opened up new offices in Marin during the 1970 to 1972 period.

Among the larger firms moving into Marin County were Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies and Commerce Clearing House, mentioned previously; California Physicians Service record keeping operations, 12,000 square feet in San Anselmo; Leswing Press Inc. publishers, 8,000 square feet in Santa Venetia; Mailliard & Schmiedell food brokers, 10,000 square feet in Sausalito; and Putnam Financial Services Inc. and Western Travelers Life Insurance Co

SEAT BELT AND HARNESS

Model Beth Murray demonstrates American Motors' 1974 lap and shoulder harness restraint system. Only when the buckle is snapped shut will the car start. A red warning light in the instrument panel and a buzzer remind the driver and front seat passenger to fasten the restraint system if the ignition is turned on before belts have been connected.

Utilities Are Good; Rebound Potential Is Above Average

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am interested in income stocks. So far I have 200 shares each of American Electric Power (NYSE) and General Public Utilities (NYSE). My plan is to retire in 5 years. Are these safe investments and why are they down so much? — J.M.

A. For several reasons, including the fact that the entire stock market is down. Utility stocks appeal to the conservative investor seeking income and moderate growth. However, when bond yields rise sufficiently, income investors tend to move out of utilities into bonds. This has been particularly apparent in the last three years; consequently price-earnings ratios for utility stocks have moved from the 16-1 times level in the late 1960s to around 10 times net currently. Thus, at this point, downside risk is minimal while yields are high, ranging around 6.5 per cent to 7.5 per cent. Furthermore, rebound potential for the group is above average.

The two issues you hold provide a current return of 6.8 per cent for American Electric and 8.0 per cent for General Public. In each case the dividend appears secure. With payout below the 1968-72 base period and earnings expected to reach $2.75 a share, a boost in AEP's dividend rate seems likely. For GPU, which also is paying out less than the allowed ceiling, a dividend increase appears less probable — unless substantial rate relief is granted. The company has pending rate increase requests of over $115 million. Construction plans for both companies will require large amounts of capital to be raised through the sale of bonds, preferred and common stock. Common share earnings will reflect not only the added interest expenses but the larger number of common shares outstanding.

Three attractive utility stocks for your consideration are: Atlantic City Electric (NYSE), Carolina Power (NYSE) and Hawaiian Electric (NYSE). Yields on these three issues range from 5.7 per cent to 7 per cent and prospects are good for a boost in these rates. Currently trading 9 to 10 times estimated 1973 net, shares are rated buy.

Mean Marin Income Highest In California

The mean income of a Marin County family is $16,136, the highest in the state, according to a Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau study based on the 1970 census.

Of 51,912 families in Marin, 44.1 per cent have annual incomes of $15,000 or more. At the other end of the income scale are 2,359 Marin families, 4.5 per cent of the total, with incomes less than the poverty level. Their mean family income is $1,519 per year.

Corte Madera $15,561; Fairfax $11,822; Larkspur $18,338; Mill Valley $16,618; Novato $12,755; Ross $25,446; San Anselmo $13,899; San Rafael $16,046; Sausalito $18,866; and Tiburon $21,253.

The educational level of Marin's population was the highest in the state. Among Marin males, the median school years completed was 13.3, and the percentage of high school graduates, 77.3. Among females, the median school years completed was 12.9, and the percentage of high school graduates, 80.9.

Market Scores Eighth Gain In Heavy Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — A wave of buying that extended throughout much of the list carried stocks sharply higher in active trading today on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts attributed the advance, the eighth in a row, largely to a return of investor confidence, perked up by the continuing flood of bright corporate earnings reports and increased dividends.

Several analysts were optimistic some of the smaller investors had finally left the sidelines—if only temporarily—attracted by the wave of earnings and increased dividends that has flooded Wall Street for two weeks.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange gained in active trading.

Texas Gulf shot up more than 2 points during the day. The Canada Development Corp., wholly-owned by the Canadian government, announced a tender offer of $29 a share for up to 10,000,000 common shares of Texas Gulf. Texas Gulf secretary David H. Crawford said at first the company was "stunned."

Chinese Restaurant To Open In San Rafael's West End

A new Chinese restaurant called Mandarin House will open next month at 1559 Fourth Street in the West End area of San Rafael at the old site of Forbidden City (formerly the Hsin Hsin).

Owner of Mandarin House is Peter C. Tien of San Francisco, who operated Chung King restaurant in San Francisco's Chinatown for the past year and was in the restaurant business in Taiwan for about 10 years before that. Tien's Chung King restaurant won plaudits in Jack Shelton's Private Guide to Restaurants in May of this year.

Tien sold the Chung King and plans to move with his family to San Rafael to devote full time to his new Mandarin House, which will specialize in Mandarin food and Shanghai and Szechwan dishes.

Tien is remodeling the interior of the old Forbidden City, putting in wall-to-wall carpeting and extending the seating area to accommodate 75 to 80 customers. The new restaurant will serve beer and wine. Tien hopes to open Mandarin House about Aug. 1.

Hughes is chairman of the Bank Counsel Seminar, sponsored by the California Bankers Association, and chairman of the San Francisco Bank Attorneys Association.

DUTCH POOL SERVICE at 1510 Grant Avenue in Novato will be sold next Tuesday to Robert J. Dougan of Sebastopol.

William E. and Walter R. Green of Novato, who operated the pool service for the past two years, will devote full time to their other business, Green Brothers House and Building Maintenance Company at 4 Rudnick Avenue, Novato. Walter Green said he gave up the pool service "because it was too much work."

THE JEEP franchise, formerly held by Brown Motors Inc. of San Rafael, is in the process of being transferred to San Rafael American at Third Street and Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

CHARLES W. HUNTER of Novato was promoted by Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies to secretary-claims in the San Francisco home office.

Hunter is responsible for nationwide automobile material and damage programs and property appraisal services. He began his insurance career as a claims representative for the Hartford Insurance Group in Detroit in 1959. He joined Fireman's Fund in 1963 as claims supervisor in the Detroit branch, and from 1969 until last February, was resident secretary-claims at the Chicago branch.

Applications for admission to the college will be available from the registrar's office until July 31. Pre-registration will be conducted from Aug. 1 through Aug. 30 on the campus.

Profit Sharing Plan Upswing Is Reported

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Profit Sharing Council of America reports that more than 100,000 qualified plans and nearly an equal number of nonqualified cash plans exist today in the business world.

Stanley D. Noble, president of the nonprofit organization which represents more than 1,400 enterprises with profit sharing plans, said the intricacies of government regulations coupled with the operational aspects of deferred income has prompted the Council to publish a new book, "Guide to Modern Profit Sharing."

Gold Price Aids Mining Company

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Fast-rising gold prices have helped the nation's biggest gold producer to more than double revenues to roughly $58 million in the first six months of this year.

The Homestake Mining Co. said yesterday its 1973 revenue figure compared to about $27 million for the comparable 1972 period and was "principally attributed to higher gold prices" although it said that increased lead and zinc sales and a $9.3 million uranium sale helped, too.

Board Told Budget Increase Is Possible

The San Rafael Board of Education was told last night that its tight tentative budget could be loosened by an estimated $305,000 in additional tax revenues permitted the district by an amendment to the controversial SB 90, the state's tax shift, school finance law. (Another board of education story, page 1.)

Tax rates will still be lower than last year, according to Supt. Donald E. Leisey, but not by so much as previously thought. He estimated the decrease at 14.8 cents per $100 assessed valuation in the elementary district and 5.4 cents in the high school district.

Leisey told the board that this year's budget, which he termed a "wait and see" project because of general confusion over the final terms of SB 90, was "looking much brighter at this particular time" with the passage of amendment (AB 1267) earlier this month.

He said several services such as extra coaching, advisors, department chairman positions, and instructional aides eliminated from the earlier "stripped down" budget would be recommended for reinstatement at the board's final budget hearing Aug. 6.

The original terms of SB 90 limited the district to the amount spent per pupil last year plus a $65 per pupil inflation adjustment, causing the San Rafael board to reduce budgets for both elementary and high school districts due to declining enrollment.

Leisey said the amendment eases the terms of SB 90 in three ways:

It increases the inflation adjustment from $65 to $70, increasing revenue in the elementary district by $20,625 and in the high school district by $21,830.

It allows the district to cut in half its estimate of declining enrollment next year, adding $162,776 to the elementary district budget, previously based on an attendance dip of 287 pupils, and adding $75,887 to the high school district budget, previously based on an attendance dip of 124 pupils. Leisey noted that SB 90 limits school district income to a per pupil basis.

It reinstates the community service tax eliminated by SB 90, adding $11,028 to the elementary and $13,032 to the high school district.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

BUS STOP — Agreed to a request from a group of Fairhills parents to relocate a school bus stop from Oakmont Drive to the top of Elizabeth Way, saying the route down is unsafe for young children because of blind corners and the absence of sidewalks.

ALTERNATIVE SCHOOLS — Heard a report presented by Marion Cedarblade, chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee subcommittee on alternative schools which recommended measures to better communication between the alternative schools and the two high schools and suggested the inclusion of Nexus School under the assistant superintendent for instructional services, who now administers the other schools.

CAFETERIA — Heard a report that the combined elementary and high school food services had made a profit this year of $5,232 and that a deficit projected for 1973-74 is not expected to exceed $1,700.

FUNDS — Heard that federal funds expected from the Elementary Secondary Education Act would provide $65,000 in the elementary and $25,000 in the high school district for special education for disadvantaged students in reading and math and would make possible hiring of 2.5 special resource teachers for the program.

HAIR — Approved a revision of policy which would end hair length as a criterion for participating in school sports.

ENRICHMENT — Authorized a $400 expenditure for a pilot program which will send 40 district students to participate in a special enrichment program at the College of Marin next year, including courses in electronics, speed reading, computers, and marine biology.

SALARIES — Adopted employee salary schedules approved earlier this month.

NOMINATION — Nominated board member Marilyn Bolinger to the California School Boards Association Delegate Assembly.

MEMBERSHIP — Approved board memberships in the California School Boards Association, Marin County School Boards Association, and the Association of California School Administrators at no increase from last year's dues of $1,450.

INSURANCE — Approved continued endorsement of the school's Student Accident Insurance Plan; Leisey said the cost of the plan, which is subscribed to voluntarily by parents, has gone up slightly but is compensated for by elimination of the former $5 deductible.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed teachers Trude Oliver and Kathleen Stapp to the elementary summer staff and Alan Hopkins and Joe Morgan to the high school summer staff at $8 an hour.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to August 6 at 7:30 p.m. when final budget hearings will be held.

Theater Group Seeking Actors

The Rainbow Players, a Mill Valley-based community theater group, has a few openings yet to be filled for its fall production, "The Education of Hyman Kaplan," according to Donna Gubbins, publicity manager.

The musical comedy about a Russian Jew who emigrates to the United States in the early 1900s will be presented every Friday and Saturday in September at a place to be announced.

PG&E Asks More Geothermal Power

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Pacific Gas & Electric Co. has asked the California Public Utilities Commission for authorization to boost geothermal electric generation at the geysers power plant to 718,000 kilowatts.

The PUC was asked yesterday for permission to construct Unit 14, a 110,000 kilowatt unit, at a cost of more than $14 million. PG&E said it would be operated with steam supplied by Magma and Thermal Power companies and the Union Oil Co. of California.
